The Low Density Plasma Sheath
in Cylindrical Geometry

Jerald V. Parker

Recently Kino and Self¹ have solved for the electron density and potential in a low density (long mean free path) plasma in the slab geometry, obtaining solutions valid through the sheath region. This paper reports the solution of the problem for the case of cylindrical geometry.

We consider the problem as formulated by Tonks and Langmuir² who wrote for the electron density a simple Boltzmann dependence and for the ion generation a term proportional to the electron density

$$S(r) = \alpha n_e(r) \quad (2)$$

where $V(r)$ is the electric potential and n_0 is the axial electron density.

The ion density at any radius is then given by an integral of the source function

$$n_i(r) = \int_0^r \frac{S(\rho) \frac{\rho}{r} d\rho}{\sqrt{\frac{2e}{m_i} [V(\rho) - V(r)]}} \quad (3)$$

Combining equations 1 and 3 with the Poisson equation

$$\nabla^2 V(r) = \frac{e}{\epsilon_0} (n_i - n_e)$$

and changing to the dimensionless variables

$$s = r \frac{\alpha}{\sqrt{\frac{2kT}{m_1}}} \quad \eta = - \frac{eV(r)}{kT}$$

yields the equation governing the potential within the cylinder

$$\frac{1}{\beta^2} \left(s \frac{d^2 \eta}{ds^2} + \frac{d\eta}{ds} \right) = \int_0^s \frac{e^{-\eta(\sigma)} \sigma d\sigma}{\sqrt{\eta(s) - \eta(\sigma)}} - s e^{-\eta(s)} \quad (4)$$

where $\beta^2 = \frac{2}{\alpha^2} \frac{n_0 e^2}{m_1 \epsilon_0}$

Solutions to equation 4 were obtained numerically for the potential $\eta(s)$ and for the normalized electron density n_e/n_0 for several values of the parameter β . Figure 1 shows the potential $\eta(s)$ with the location of the wall marked for several possible ion species. The location of the wall is determined by the condition that the current of electrons and ions be equal. The ion current is given by $$J_1 = \int_0^r S(\rho) \frac{\rho}{r} d\rho$$

while the electron current is assumed to be the flux from an electron gas with local density and a Maxwell-Boltzmann velocity distribution,

$$J_e = \frac{n_e}{2\sqrt{\pi}} \sqrt{\frac{2kT}{m_e}}$$

Setting these two currents equal and changing to dimensionless form we have

$$\sqrt{\frac{m_1}{4\pi m_e}} = \exp(\eta(s_w)) \int_0^{s_w} \exp(-\eta(\sigma)) \frac{\sigma}{s_w} d\sigma \quad (5)$$ where s_w is the radius of the wall.

In Figure 2 the electron density for a mercury plasma is plotted against s/s_w for several values of the parameter β^2 .

A quantity which is of interest in microwave experiments is the ratio of the zeroth to second moments of the electron density

$$\frac{\int_0^{r_w} n_e(r) r^3 dr}{\int_0^{r_w} n_e(r) r dr} = r_w^2 M \quad (6)$$

The number M is plotted as a function of β^2 in Figure 3.

At the end of the report are tabulated the potential, the electron density, and the first and second derivatives of the potential for several values of β^2 . For values of $\beta^2 \geq 10^7$ one may use the table for $\beta^2 = \infty$ with an error of less than 0.3% except for the sheath which is less than $0.002 s_w$ thick for these values of β^2 . At the end of each table is listed the value of s_w and the average electron density

$$\frac{\bar{n}_e}{n_0} = \frac{\int_0^{r_w} n_e(\rho) \rho d\rho}{\frac{1}{2} r_w^2 n_0}$$ for each ion species.

In attempting to compare this theory with experiment one should note that it is not necessary to know α . The value of β^2 can be calculated from where $\lambda_e^2 = \frac{\epsilon_0 k T_e}{n_0 e^2}$ is the Debye length at the center of the cylinder.

I wish to express my appreciation to Prof. R. W. Gould for suggesting this problem and to the Office of Naval Research and the National Science Foundation for supporting the research.
