AND STUDIES OF THE FUTURE

The RAND Corporation, Santa Monica, California

INTRODUCTION

This Bibliography lists works associated with two on-going RAND projects: Automation and Technological Change, and a related informal study of future national and international problems.

The listing is by no means exhaustive; it consists largely of materials assembled to date by project members. However, some entries have been included that are relevant to but not in our collection. New entries, which have been added since the last updating of this Paper in March 1967, are indicated by asterisks.

A slight modification has been made in this version of the Bibliography. Entries formerly entered under title are now entered under corporate author or issuing agency (e.g., Illinois State Commissions, International Labour Office, National Academy of Sciences, Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, United Nations, United States Congress, and United States Department of Labor). This arrangement will facilitate the use of the Bibliography by bringing together under one heading all items published by one organization.

* Any views expressed in this Paper are those of the author. They should not be interpreted as reflecting the views of The RAND Corporation or the official opinion or policy of any of its governmental or private research sponsors. Papers are reproduced by The RAND Corporation as a courtesy to members of its staff.

Included at the end of this Bibliography is an Appendix listing private organizations currently engaged, or planning to engage, in future-oriented work.

The Bibliography will continue to be updated periodically.
