This volume consists of two parts. The first part contains the Citation Orders of the Brigades, Regiments, etc., of the First Division. The second part contains the Addenda to the volumes previously published.

For an explanation of the contents and arrangement of each part of this volume, see the editorial notes which precede each main subdivision of the volume.

B. R. LEGGE,
Major, Infantry.

W. A. RAY,
Capt. F.A.

P. L. RANSOM,
Major, Infantry.

DEC-9'30

The first part of this volume contains the Citation Orders of the Brigades, Regiments, etc., of the First Division. The documents grouped under a particular unit are either documents issued by the unit or pertaining solely to the unit. For a complete list of citations of a particular unit, see the index published in Volume XXII.

The documents are arranged chronologically. Each document has been carefully edited and where it has been possible to determine the correct spelling of names incorrectly spelled on the original document, the correct spelling is shown in parentheses, followed by the initials of the editor.

No citation orders issued by the following units have been found:

26th Infantry Regiment
1st, 2d and 3d Machine Gun Battalions
5th and 6th Field Artillery Regiments
1st Ammunition Train
1st Sanitary Train

1st INF. BRIGADE

Headquarters 1st Brigade, 1st Division,
American Expeditionary Forces,
France, May 1, 1918.

From: Commanding General, 1st Brigade.

To: Colonel Frank Parker, 18th Infantry.

Subject: Prisoners and machine gun captured this morning 1.00 a.m.

Dear Colonel Parker:

Please accept this expression of satisfaction at the prompt response made to my demand for prisoners to be taken during the night.

The 18th Infantry continues to develope soldiers' qualities under your leadership. It has demonstrated on the Lorraine front and now on the big battle front that it is worthy of the best traditions of our Army.

With cordial good wishes to you, to your officers and to the men.

Sincerely yours,

G. B. DUNCAN,
Brigadier General

Headquarters 1st Infantry Brigade,
Coblentz, Germany, Dec. 13, 1918.

From: Commanding General,

To: Commanding Officer, 16th Infantry.

Subject: Commendation.

1. The Brigade Commander desires to express his extreme satisfaction and pride in the appearance of the 16th Infantry during the historic passage of the Rhine by this Brigade this morning.

2. At the same time, the Brigade Commander desires to to express appreciation of the most evident efforts of both officers and men towards improving steadily the appearance of the regiment after the hardships of the recent campaign. The Brigade Commander has noted from day to day a steady improvement in the 16th Infantry and he desires to express by this communication his appreciation thereof.

FRANK PARKER,
Brigadier General, USA
Commanding.

Headquarters 1st Infantry Brigade,
American Expeditionary Forces,

GENERAL ORDERS)
NO. 15.)

1. The regimental commander takes great pleasure in publishing for the information of the command the following letter of the Division Commander:

"Headquarters First Division
American Expeditionary Forces,
France, July 4, 1918.

From: Chief of Staff.
To: Commanding Officer 16th Infantry.
Subject: Raid.

1. The Commanding General desires to express to you, and to the officers and men of your regiment, his satisfaction at the result of the raid undertaken by you this morning.

2. It appears that the enemy was himself preparing to make a raid, and the timely advent of your operation not only prevented his designs upon you, but inflicted a considerable loss upon him.

3. The few casualties that were suffered by us far outweighed not only by the losses inflicted upon the enemy, but by the fact that the prisoners captured furnished very valuable information in regard to the enemy's order of battle.

Campbell King,
Chief of Staff".

HEADQUARTERS SIXTEENTH INFANTRY
DERNBACH GERMANY, FEBRUARY 2, 1919.

GENERAL ORDERS)
NUMBER 4.)

The Commanding Officer cites the following organization for its gallant conduct in the daring advance on Sedan, November 6th and 7th, 1918:

-FIRST BATTALION SIXTEENTH INFANTRY-

"Advancing swiftly along the west bank of the Meuse, the battalion skillfully penetrated the enemy lines. Fighting savagely in the darkness of the night, it overcame stubborn resistance in the villages, held by the enemy, along the river, wearied with extreme fatigue and suffering from lack of food, the officers and men fought on relentlessly through the night and the following day until the hills of Sedan had been won".

This spectacular action of brillant leadership and grim resolve ranks as one of the achievements of the war.

By order of Colonel Harrell:

C.V.Cross,
1st Lieut. 16th Infantry,
Actg. Adjt.

HEADQUARTERS SIXTEENTH INFANTRY,
SELTERS, GERMANY, JULY 19, 1919.

MEMORANDUM:

On July 18, 1919, at Coblenz Germany, the regmental colors were decorated with the Croix de Guerre with palm.

The presentation was made by Marshal Petain of the French Army, who also signed the citation, which has now become officially a part of the records of the regiment.

In the absence of the colors of the regiment in Paris, the cross was formally received with appropriate ceremony by the Regimental Commander, each of whom in turn throughout the years to come will become its official custodian.

In conversation with the Regimental Commander during the presentation ceremony, Marshal Petain warmly congratulated the regiment on its splendid record and added that it was " Tres Magnifique, Tres Gallant, et Tres Brave".

The Regimental Commander takes great pride in the decoration of the colors by such a distinguished Marshal of France. The award is richly merited by the regiment which has always maintained a record second to none for highest efficiency and splendid achievement.

The Regimental Commander desires to add his congratulations to those of Marshal Petain.

Order No. 19.693 "D" (Extract)

After approval of the General Commander in Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, the Marshall of France, Commander in Chief of the French Armies of the East cites to (the order of) the Army.

16th REGIMENT OF AMERICAN INFANTRY.

Superb regiment which has always given an example of impetuosity and admirable courage as part of the First American Division, it has been able.to force all to admire this unit which was the symbol of a nascent army. After having distinguished itself at Menil-le Tour and at Cantigny, it behaved gloriously in the counter-offensive of July 18th, 1918 south of Soissons,where, after a long march it fought for five consecutive days and captured very important booty and numerous prisoners.

At General Headquarters June 24, 1919.

2ND INF. BRIGADE

Hq. 2nd Inf. Brig.,
France, June 1,1918.

Colonel Frank Parker, 18th Infantry,

(through Comdg. General, 1st Inf. Brig.)

My dear Colonel Parker:

Permit me to express my great satisfaction and high appreciation of the fine soldierly qualities displayed by your regiment during the operations of this Brigade against Cantigny, May 28th, 29th and 30th. During this period portions of your regiment were supporting the 28th Infantry in the attack, and after the capture of the village, during the counter attacks, one of your companies was engaged in the front lines and one as carrying parties. Your assistance in organizing and commanding the reserves in the North Sub-sector during this period was of great value to me. Your promptness, energy and good judgement were everywhere noticeable.

Please accept my thanks and express to your regiment my appreciation.

Very sincerely yours,

B. B. Buck,
Brig. Gen., Nat'l. Army.

Hq. 2nd Inf. Brig.,
France, June 1,1918.

Major Harry I. T. Cresswell, 18th Infantry.

(through Commanding General, 1st Inf. Brig.)

My dear Major Cresswell:

In the hurried preparation for the attack on Cantigny by the 28th Infantry I called upon your battalion in an emergency to assist in the digging of certain portions of the jumping-off trenches, and in filling the forward munition dumps. This work was extremely dangerous as it was done under constant artillery fire. So well did your battalion do that portion of the work entrusted to it and so well did you control and supervise your men under these trying conditions that I feel it my duty to express my recognition of your valuable service.

Please accept my thanks for your efficient help on this occasion and express my appreciation to your battalion.

Very sincerely yours,

B. B. Buck,
Brig. Gen., Nat'l Army.

Colonel Hamilton A. Smith,
26th Infantry.

My dear Colonel Smith:

Permit me to express to you and your regiment my high appreciation of the excellant fighting qualities displayed by them during the period May 28th, 29th and 30th. After the capture of Cantigny, May 28th, your portion of our lines was vigorously counter attacked in force by the enemy's infantry assisted by exceedingly heavy artillery fire. Your regiment drove back the enemy each time, inflicting heavy losses upon him. The valor displayed by your regiment, during this period, is worthy of high praise.

Please express my thanks to your officers and men for their steadfast fighting qualities.

Very sincerely yours,

B. B. Buck,
Brig. Gen., Nat'l. Army.

Colonel Hanson E. Ely, Commanding 28th Infantry

My dear Colonel Ely:

Permit me to express to you and to the officers and enlisted men of the 28th Infantry my hearty congratulations of your splendid attack at Cantigny. The town was captured, the new lines were established, and the new position was organized and strengthened with trenches and wire in the face of the most determined resistance by the enemy, who opposed our troops with a tremendous fire of artillery and machine guns. During the day, May 28th, six counter-attacks were launched against our lines and six times the enemy was driven back. Four of these counter-attacks were against the 28th Infantry. In every case the enemy suffered heavy losses. The steadfast bravery of your regiment will cause the greatest rejoicing in the United States and our Allies will look upon this acheivement with satisfaction. You withstood your losses like Veterans. Repeatedly during the action word was sent back from the front lines that everything was progressing satisfactorily and that the lines would be held at all costs. On May 29th and 30th repeated counter-attacks were made by the enemy to recover the lost ground but his troops never reached our lines.

You have warranted the great confidence of your superior officers in the fighting qualities of your regiment. The day will be looked upon with pride and satisfaction by each officer and man of your regiment, and especially by your Brigade Commander. Please express my thanks to the regiment.

Sincerely yours,

B.B.Buck
Brig. Gen., Nat'. Army.

Hq. 2nd Inf. Brig.,
France, June 1,1918.

Major C. A. Davis,

Commanding 2nd Brig. Machine Gun Battalion.

My dear Major Davis:

During the attack on Cantigny May 28th and during the enemy counter attacks for the recovery of his lost positions, May 28th, 29th and 30th, your organizations showed their splendid qualities in all the trying situations with which they were confronted. In the midst of the enemy's violent artillery attacks, with shells bursting near to and in the midst of your gunners, they stood heroically by their guns and promptly replaced casualties, doing excellant work.

Please accept my thanks and express my appreciation to your Battalion.

Very sincerely yours,

B. B. Buck,
Brig. Gen., Nat'l. Army.

No. 1.)

Hq. 2nd Inf. Brigade, 1st Div.,
France, 26 July, 1918.

1. The Brigade Commander desires to congratulate the troops of this Brigade on their splendid courage, fortitude and endurance in the four days' battle which began in the vicinity of CUTRY and terminated for the brigade in the vicinity of BERZY le SEC, July 18, 19, 20, 21st and on relief from the front lines July 22 - 23rd.

You have met the best troops of the German Army and you have driven them back step by step through a distance of 8 Kilometers, capturing more than 2,500 prisoners and many guns. Best of all you have driven the enemy out of his strongholds. You have astonished him with your valor and your prowess. You have brought him to a realization that he is now fighting for his life against a powerful, vigorous foe who will give him no rest. The credit is yours. You are fighting for civilization as opposed to military tyranny and institutions. America is proud of you.

2. Commanding Officers of organizations and detachments will at once submit to these headquarters lists of members of their organizations for citation and other reward. Those present in the last day's attack to be specially considered.

3. This order will be read to every organization at its next regular formation and will be posted on company bulletin boards.

GENERAL ORDERS
No. 2.

2nd Brigade Headquarters,
France, 2 August, 1918.

1. The Brigade Commander cites the following officers and men for conspicuous gallantry in action during the Operations, 18-23 July, 1918, near SOISSONS:

Colonel HAMILTON A. SMITH, 26th Infantry
For his fearlessness and utter disregard of personal safety during the action of July 21st and 22nd. He was constantly in the front lines directing his officers and men until killed by a machine gun bullet while directing an attack on a Machine Gun Emplacement.

Lieutenant Colonel CLARK R. ELLIOT, 26th Inf.
For taking command of the advancing lines at a critical time and leading it forward until killed by a shell on July 21st.

Major JAMES M. McCLOUD, 26th Infantry.
For his great courage, leadership and devotion to duty. He led his battalion forward in the face of Machine Gun nests and although twice wounded continued forward until killed (2d day of attack).

Captain B. R. LEGGE, 26th Infantry.
Displayed remarkable ability and tactical judgement during the entire engagement, rendering invaluable assistance to his regimental commander. After the latter was mortally wounded and died Captain Legge assumed command of the regiment and directed its further movements, including the relief with unerring judgment.

Captain R. K. WHITSON, 26th Infantry.
Displayed all the qualities of a commander of men. Shortly after the engagement opened he assumed command of the battalion after the commander had been wounded, and although wounded himself directed its movements for the succeeding three days and until the battalion had reached and taken its final objective. After being severely wounded he refused to be evacuated until he had given orders for the consolidation of his position.

Major A. W. KENNER, M.C., 26th Infantry.
For extraordinary devotion to duty under the most trying conditions; he went personally from the regimental aid station to the front line and from there to the advanced post beyond the lines where his Commanding Officer had been mortally wounded, through a heavy machine gun fire and bombardment directing the egacuation of Colonel Smith's body. During the whole battle Major Kenner displayed the qualities of a fine field surgeon, handling at his advanced station more than 1,000 cases.

Prigate J. M. KOGLER, Medical Dept., 26th Inf.
Attended wounded under heavy Machine Gun fire, and, after being severely wounded himself refused to be taken to the rear and continued to assist in the dressing of the wounded.

Sergeant FRANK REITERMAN, Co. E, 26th Infantry
Stormed a machine gun nest with the remainder of his platoon captured several guns, reorganized the platoon and held the position.

Sergeant ALFRED J. HOULE, Co. C, 26th Infantry.
Displayed high qualities of courage and leadership in reorganizing his platoon after his officer had been wounded; going forward, consolidating and holding the position.

Captain JULIUS A. MOOD, 26th Infantry.
For gallant devotion to duty during the operations near SOISSONS. He rendered great assistance to his Regimental Commander, and was killed leading one of the battalions forward after its Major was wounded July 20th.

1st Lieut. C.V.P. NEWBOLD, USR, Co. C, 26th Inf.
In the face of heavy machine gun fire after the loss of many of his men, he personally led and directed the remainder although mortally wounded himself.

2nd Lieut. JAMES P. GAINES, USR, Co. C, 26th Inf.
After being wounded while in command of this company he remained with his command until the objective was reached and the line consolidated, going to the rear only on the command of his superior officer.

2nd Lieut. CHARLES H. WEAVER, USR, Co. C, 26th Inf.
Directed the maneuvers of his platoon after being severely wounded until the final objective was reached all the time being under heavy machine gun and artillery fire.

Sergeant PAUL BRAUN, Co. C, 26th Infantry.
Showed great coolness and bravery under machine gun fire and artillery in directing his platoon after his Lieutenant was evacuated, and in reorganizing stragglers. He advanced directly in the face of machine gun fire with his platoon and captured a machine gun and killed its crew. He then reorganized the position for our own defense.

2nd Lieut. HUGH H. GAFFNEY, 26th Infantry.
For his great courage and leadership of his platoon in advancing under heavy shell and machine gun fire from the beginning of the offensive until wounded. In many instances he went forward alone to reconnoiter enemy machine gun positions. In the afternoon of July 19th he led a gun crew beyond our front line into an area swept by intense machine gun fire, to demolish with the Stokes Mortars, machine gun nests which were holding up the advance of the Infantry.

2nd Lieut. EVERETT E. BORMAN, USR, Hq. Co. 26th Inf.
Lieutenant Borman maintained telephonic communication between the Regimental P.C. and Battalion P.C. throughout the attack by the regiment from July 18, 1918 to the last hour of the relief, July 23, 1918. He himself went forward with telephone lines and made frequent personal inspections and repairs of the lines during the heavy bombardment of the enemy artillery and machine gun fire.

Captain ALFRED A. HAMEL, 26th Infantry.
Although severely wounded near MISSY on July 18th continued in command of his company until killed.

1st Lieut. M. MORRIS ANDREWS, 26th Infantry.
During the advance and consolidation on July 19th, without regard for personal danger fearlessly exposed himself, inspiring his men with his coolness and courage. He displayed exceptional ability, disposing his company to cover an entire battalion front, and at the same time retaining perfect control of it.

Sergeant Major ROBERT SMEATON, 1st Bn., 26th Inf.
Displayed exceptional coolness and bravery during the advance from the PARIS road to the ridge beyond PLOISY. He assisted his battalion commander in consolidation while continually exposed to intense Machine Gun fire. His frequent and accurate observations were a great aid in making a proper estimate of the situation.

Captain J. N. C. RICHARDS, 26th Infantry.
During the attacks of July 18th and 19th displayed marked courage, leadership and coolness in directing hismen against machine gun nests, and was killed while leading his men in the third attack across the PARIS-SOISSONS road against machine guns that were causing heavy losses.

2nd Lieut. EWING W. BOONE, USR, 26th Infantry.
Displayed marked courage and coolness in leading his platoon against machine guns and was killed while charging a machine gun near the PARIS-SOISSONS road on the morning of July 19th, 1918.

Private First Class RUSSELL E. HANDWERK,Co.F,26th Inf.
When a part of the line was halted by machine gun fire he alone charged the machine gun putting it out of action. Was latter wounded by advancing with the first line.

Private First Class SATERAE N. MAKAS, Co.F, 26th Inf.
Was wounded by three machine gun bullets early in the attack on the morning of July 19th, 1918, but continued to advance with his company, using his automatic rifle with telling effect until the objective was reached.

Private First Class JOSEPH GUCWA, Co. F, 26th Inf.
Was severely wounded by shrapnel in the morning attack but remained with his company during the day and went over the top in the evening, and remaining with his company until the objective was reached.

Captain JAMES H. HOLMES, 26th Infantry.
After having lead his company in three attacks in two days displayed great leadership and exceptional bravery until killed in a fourth attack on July 19th 1918 while charging an enemy machine gun.

2nd Lieut. LAURENS G. SHULL, USR, 26th Inf.
Led his platoon with exceptional courage and skill during two attacks on the enemy and was badly wounded while charging an enemy machine gun nest which had upheld the advance of his men.

1st Lieut. JOHN L. HARMON, USR, 26th Inf.
Although wounded in a second attack on the enemy he refused to be evacuated and went over the top in a third attack on July 19th and led his men until he was again seriously wounded.

2nd Lieut. JAMES C. LODER,* USR, 26th Inf.
After having lead his men in two attacks was killed while going over the top in a third attack. Lieut. Loder showed exceptionall gallantry and self sacrifice during the engagement.

2nd Lieut. WALCOTT W. TREADWAY, USR, 26th Inf.
Led his platoon during two attacks, showing the greatest courage and exceptional bravery until mortally wounded.

2nd Lieut. FRANK H. BARNWELL, USR, 26th Inf.
Led his platoon with courage and skill, showing great judgement until wounded.

1st Sergeant EDWARD DONNELLY, Co. G, 26th Inf.
Showed great leadership and judgement in keeping liaison intact after his company commander had been killed, went forward in four attacks until severely wounded.

Sergeant JAMES E. SMITH, Co. G, 26th Infantry.
After all his company officers and his First Sergeant had been killed or wounded, took command of his company and led thembravely throughout the battle, showing exceptional leadership and gallantry.

Sergeant ROBERT E. CARROLL, Co. G, 26th Inf.
His platoon having been held up by machine gun fire from a German dug-out, he crawled to the door of the dug-out, killed the gunners and captured the machine gun, thereby allowing his platoon to advance.

Corporal WILLIAM H. FORD, Co. G, 26th Inf.
For exceptional coolness and bravery under heavy shell and machine gun fire in carrying a wounded officer to a first aid post.

Sergeant JOE OLIVER, Co. G, 26th Infantry.
After his platoon commander had been killed he took charge of the platoon and lead them bravely during the four day action, showing great courage.

Private WILLIE ALSIP, Co. G, 26th Infantry.
After his corporal was wounded, he assumed command of his squad, lead it forward through heavy fire, showing great courage.

Private WILLIAM DALRYMPLE, Co. G, 26th Inf.
For great coolness and bravery under fire. Crawled to a German sniper's post, killing or wounding all the occupants. This was accomplished at great personal risk.

Private FRANK MARLIN, Co. G, 26th Inf.
While his platoon was advancing under heavy machine gun fire, he with two other soldiers charged a machine gun position, killing the operator and bringing the gun back to our own lines, which had to be established due to the fire of this gun.

Private THOMAS SEIDEL, Co. G, 26th Inf.
While his platoon was advancing under heavy machine gun fire, he with two other soldiers charged a machine gun position, killing the operator and bringing the gun back to our own lines which had to be established due to the fire of this gun.

Private WILLIAM A. DICKERSON, Co. G, 26th Inf.
While his platoon was advanceing under heavy machine gun fire, he with two other soldiers charged a machine gun position, killing the operator and bringing the gun back to our own lines which had to be established due to the fire of this gun.

Private TOM BRYAN, Co. G, 26th Inf.
Captured 1 officer and 14 privates with the assistance of one other soldier, assumed command of his squad after his corporal was killed, lead them bravely throughout the engagement.

Private ALBERT K. RUSSELL, Co. G, 26th Inf.
For coolness and bravery under machine gun and shell fire. After his rifle had been destroyed by shell fire joined a machine gun section and advanced with them until all his comrades were wounded.

Private HARRY E. GRIFFIN, Co. G, 26th Inf.
Showed great skill in using an automatic rifle, routing the enemy from a strong point which had caused considerable damage to his company.

Corporal ELMO CORNELL, Co. G, 26th Infantry
For great coolness and bravery under fire, led an automatic rifle squad until all his men had been put out of action, then alone advanced to a forward position and eliminated an enemy machine gun which had stopped the advance of his platoon.

Corporal MICHEAL ROSKE, Co. G, 26th Infantry

Captain CHARLES WALTER YUILL, 3rd M.G.Bn.
For exceptional bravery and gallantry under heavy machine gun fire and artillery bombardment, near BERZY LE SEC, 21 July, 1918, when his men were unable to progress further, organized the infantry as well as the machine gun units, and by his own fearlessness and courage so inspired his men that he was able to engage and hold all ground gained in spite of the weakened condition of his organization.

Private JOHN HANNIGAN, Co. A, 3rd M.G.Bn.
While assisting in evacuating a wounded comrade from the field under very heavy shell fire until the litter was struck by a direct hit of a shell killing the wounded man and wounding two of the other litter bearers. He stayed by them and assisted them into a shell hole and after obtaining assistance and successfully evacuating these wounded men returned to his gun crew and served during the entire engagement showing unhesitating devotion and energy throughout the action.

Private WILLIAM McLOUGHLIN, Co. A, 3rd M.G.Bn.
While under a most violent bombardment showed great coolness in advancing against enemy machine gun nest, killing or capturing a whole machine gun crew single handed. He alsodisplayed great bravery in getting into action with his heavy machine gun and during a most trying barrage trained his gun on the retreating enemy. His example and coolness enabled other gun crews to regain calmness under the most trying circumstances, and inflicted much distress and damage on the retreating foe.

2nd Lieut. NORBERT W. MARKUS, Inf.,USR, 3rd M.G.Bn.
Displayed exceptional coolness and courage in handling his platoon under violent bombardment, though wounded refused to be evacuated until he had advanced with his men to the third objective. placed his guns in position and though weak from loss of blood and exhaustion, continued to direct the fire at a very critical time until wounded four times by machine gun fire. One previous citation per G.O. 29, Hq. 1st Div., A.E.F, dated June 22, 1918.

2nd Lieut. JOHN H. MOORE, Inf. USR, 3rd M.G.Bn.
Displayed coolness and courage in handling his section under violent bombardment, advanced to second objective assisted infantry in reducing enemy machine gun nest, advancing toward the third objective encountered a most intense artillery bombardment was knocked down and stunned by concussion of a shell; as soon as revived by his men, struggled to his feet, rallied and reorganized his section, started to lead them out of the shelled area, he himself reconnoitering in advance to locate the less dangerous routes; while so doing he was killed, his sacrifice enabling most of his men to go on.

First Sergeant DAVID R. MEYERS, Co. D 3rd M.G.Bn.
In charge of platoon advanced to third objective, directed the fire of his machine guns and that of another squad detached from its company; organized a squad of rifle-men, charged the artillery and assisted in the capture of a cave containing several hundred enemy including several officers, showing exceptional coolness in the handling of the prisoners. He then went forward with the first wave to gain the final objective has been missing since this attack.

Sergeant JAMES E. DURHAM, Co. D, 3rd M.G.Bn.
The officer commanding his M.G. platoon having been wounded, took command of his platoon and adjacent infantry whose officers had become casualties, displayed extraordinary heroism in leading both to attack the enemy artillery while subject to direct fire from their guns. By his conspicuous coolness and unfaltering courage at a very critical time inspired great confidence in the men under his control wile consolidating the positions at the final objective.

Private First Class DICK HEYDENBERK, Co.D, 3rd M.G.Bn.
In charge of a machine gun squad showed utter disregard of personal danger in leading his men to the final objective; after entire gun crew had become casualties and himself severely wounded continued to operate the gun until relief was sent him, even then refusing to be evacuated until he was carried to his company commander to whom he gave most valuable information regarding the enemy and the location of their machine guns.

1st Lieut. C. E. MURRAY, USR, 3rd M.G.Bn.
Displayed exceptional initiative and bravery during the attack between BERZY LE SEC and SOISSONS July 18-22, 1918, throughout the entire five days. At different times he organized infantry as well as machine gun units, and voluntarily led infantry forward against enemy machine gun fire, and being unable to advance because of shell fire and MG fire, having weakened his organization, he halted, organized the sector and held all ground gained. He served as an exceptional example for his men to follow.

2nd Lieut. JAMES A. COOPER, USR, 3rd M. G. Bn.
He led his men forward in the attack and used every opportunity in the attack to aid the advancing infantry by the use of his machine guns. Through his fearless devotion to duty and while leading his men forward he was killed.

2nd Lieut. TRACY R. STAINS, USR, 3rd M.G.Bn.
Led his men forward in the attack and although severely wounded soon after the engagement started, he continued forward and placed his guns in commanding positions at the first objective., from which the enemy positions could be commanded. He then gave final instructions to his men before leaving for the aid station.

2nd Lieut. ALLEN A. TUKEY, USR, 3rd M.G.Bn.
Commanded his platoon under heavy shell fire both while advancing and while in position. By his courageous conduct, greatly aided by his guns. While advancing on the second day of the attack he was wounded. He attempted to go forward but was unable to do so. He then gave final instructions to his platoon sergeant and notified the company commander of the disposition of his guns.

Sergeant GERARD P. LANDRY, Co. B, 3rd M. G. Bn.
On July 19, 1918, after his platoon commander was wounded he took charge of the platoon. During the entire attack he showed great ability in disposing his guns and by his fearless conduct led his men to their positions under all circumstances.

Sergeant JAMES LEVAS, Co. B, 3rd M. G. Bn.
After his platoon leader was killed he took charge of the platoon. Soon afterwards he himself was wounded and severely bruised by a shell. He dressed his wound and continued forward. Later he took his platoon forward under heavy MG fire and placed his guns in commanding positions as far forward, as possible in order to help mutualize enemy MG fire. In this attempt he was again severely wounded. He reported back in person to his company commander the position of his guns.

Private EMMET S. CLARY, Co. B, 3rd M. G. Bn.
He was shocked and bruised by a shell. He was taken to the aid station and tagged by them to be evacuated. When infantry reinforcements passed he joined them taking a rifle, bayonet and ammunition. GENERAL ORDERS
No. 3.

2nd Brigade Headquarters,
France, 2 August, 1918.

1. The Brigade Commander cites the following officers and men for gallantry in action during the Operations 18 - 23 July, 1918, near SOISSONS:

Major CLARENCE R. HUEBNER, N. A., 28th Inf.
This Officer commanded the front line battalion on morning of the attack and got it into position after an exhausting march. During the advance to the first and second objectives all the officers of this battalion were killed or wounded. Reorganizing his battalion, he continued his advance and captured the second objective. He displayed skill and courage in handling his battalion and remained with it at the very front until wounded on July 20th.

2nd Lieut. JIM QUINN, U.S.R., 28th Inf.
This officer, with a small platoon, attacked and captured a fortified French farm house in an open field. He so courageously and skilfully handled his men that this German strongpoint, held by one hundred men and five machine guns was promptly captured.

Captain FREDERICK W. BLACK, M.R.C., 28th Inf.
A Battalion Surgeon at the second battle of the Marne, July 18-24/18, who went over the top to the attack in the first wave and was wounded on the morning of the first day. Disregarding his wound, he pressed on with the attacking troops and crossed and recrossed the sector immediately behind the most advanced wave, rendering first aid to wounded and placing them in shell holes. Worked unceasingly without slepp or rest and was again wounded by shell fire on the fourth morning. Though twice wounded he steadily refused to be evacuated until the evening of the fourth day, when he was exhausted and suffering severely from his wounds. B this cool and courageous conduct he was able to save many lives.

Private 1/c MAX C. CHAMBERLIN, Company A, 26th Inf.
On July 19th, altho twice wounded by machine gun bullets at the beginning of an attack, continued to advance with his company until the day's objective was reached. When his wounds were discovered by his platoon sergeant, this soldier persisted in remaining with his platoon until from weakness, caused by loss of blood, he was unable to longer serve his automatic rifle. The courage and devotion to duty of this soldier was of highest order.

Private JOSEPH E. MCVEY, Company M, 28th Inf.
Displayed extraordinary heroism on July 19th/18, freely exposing himself to heavy machine gun fire, while giving first aid to his wounded comrades. Was killed while engaging in this work.

1st Lieut. LEO M. NEAGLE, U.S.R., 28th Inf.
During occupation and retention of Berzy le Sec, July 21st and 22nd, showed unusual devotion to duty and exceptional courage by remaining in command of his company and directing its operations after all the other officers had become casualties and after he himself had been incapacitated for over four hours by severe shell shock. Though Lieut. Neagle was severely shaken by shell shock, he refused to be evacuated but remained in Berzy le Sec with his depleted company, and by this personal example of courage and determination, fired his men with the same spirit and encouraged them to hold on until relieved by another organization.

1st Lieut. SOREN. C. SORENSON, U.S.R., 28th Inf.
During attack on Berzy le Sec July 21st was wounded early in the operation, but refused to leave his post at the jumping off point until the progress of the attack and his own inability to advance with the men necessitated his removal to the rear. During the attacks made July 19th-21st, and in the organization and preparation for the attack on Berzy le Sec Lieut. Sorenson set an inspring example to all around him by his coolness, intrepid courage and conspicuous gallantry. To his cool leadership determination is greatly due the success of the operation.

Captain JOHN N. MERRICK, M.R.C., Motor Supply Train.
For distinguished conduct in volunteering his services as field surgeon on the battlefield, who left his proper organization behind the lines and for five consecutive days and nights administered first aid to the wounded, and under the most trying conditions under heavy bombardment at Missy aux Bois, Berzy le Sec, and along the Paris Soissons road without a thought for personal safety, and continued his work until the entire Division was relieved from the front lines.

2nd Lieut. JOHN H. CARON, U.S.R., 28th Inf.
During the offensive operations of July 17th-22d was in charge of the regimental signal section. He personally supervised the laying of lines to the forward stations, between which headquarters he succeeded in establishing communication in spite of extreme heavy shell fire. During the last two days of the operations, after the majority of his section had been either killed or wounded he repeatedly repaired and tested lines which were always under extremely heavy shell and machine gun fire. All during the operations he displayed great courage, calmness, and determination, thus inspiring his men to carry on when at times they were unquestionable on the verge of breaking down for the want of much needed rest.

Private EDWARD MCHUGH, Company D, 28th Inf.
Remained along on sentinel post during a heavy bombardment refusing to take shelter in desire to perform more than his actual duty required, during the attack on Berzy le Sec, July 22nd, 1918.

Sergeant JOHN E. LICKLIDER, Company D, 28th Inf.
Gave proof of unhesitating devotion and energy during the offensive operations against Berzy le Sec, July 20, 1918, in brilliantly leading four men against a machine gun delivering intense fire, and capturing same.

Private EDWARD J. BACKLEY, Company D, 28th Inf.
During the action against Berzy le Sec, July 20, 1918, showed exceptional courage and devotion to duty in unhesitatingly advancing against intense machine gun fire and aiding in capturing the gun with four men.

Captain A. D. COFFEY, M.R.C., Motor Section Ammunition Train.
For distinguished conduct in volunterring his services as field surgeon on the battlefield, who left his proper organization behind the lines, and for five consecutive days and nights administered first aid to the wounded and under the most trying conditions under heavy bombardment at Missy aux Bois, Berzy le Sec, and along the Paris-Soissons road without a thought for personal safety, and continued his work until the entire Division was relieved from the front line.

Corporal ROBERT VOLLMER, Company D, 28th Inf.
Showed his steadfast devotion to duty and calmness in the face of danger in aiding in the capture of a machine gun, delivering terrific fire, during the offensive operations against Berzy le Sec, July 20, 1918.

Private MICHAEL IKEVAIVICZ, Company D, 28th Inf.
During the offensive operations July 20, 1918, against Berzy le Sec, proved his exceptional bravery and courage in ably supporting the capture of an enemy machine gun delivering an intense fire.

Private EDWARD KLEPACZYK, Company D, 28th Inf.
Made an exceptionally courageous and gallant showing in supporting with the help of a handful of other men in the capture of an enemy machine gun delivering heavy fire, during the attack against Berzy le Sec, July 20, 1918.

Corporal ALBERT J. KUNZE, Company I, 28th Inf.
One of the men of his platoon was wounded by a sniper while digging in a new position during the advance wouth of Soissons. Without hesitation Cpl. Private 1/c RICHARD H. BRANTON, Company I, 28th Inf.
Carried messages under fire and aided in organizing and leading the mixed companies at the objective. Through the whole affair he displayed the greatest courage and presence of mind.

Private RUSSELL B. CATURA, Company I, 28th Inf.
During the advance across the open he carried messages for his lieutenant to neighboring units, enabling him to establish and maintain liaison during the attack. In doing this he crossed and recrossed ground swept continually by machine gun fire and torn by exploding shells.

Private WILLIAM O. WEAVER, Company K, 28th Inf.
Through intense machine gun and heavy shell fire, carried messages from Bn Hdqrs to the front line during all the operations leading up to and including the attack on Berzy le Sec, exhibiting great courage and devotion to duty, July 21st, 1918.

Captain FRANCIS M. VAN NATTER, 28th Inf.
During the offensive of 18th to 21st July 1918 in the vicinity of Soissons, Captain Francis M. Van Natter was battalion bombing officer, 2nd Bn. 28th Inf., after having become separated from his battalion he went forward to the first line and organized a group of French soldiers, who had lost all their officers, and led them to their objective.

The objective gained he organized the line and assumed command of all the troops in the vicinity and established liaison. He then led all the men forward in the next advance remaining with them and keeping them under control until he was severely wounded by machine gun fire during this advance. He showed utter disregard for his personal safety and untiring energy in procuring and sending forward ammunition until he became separated from his battalion.

Captain HOWARD E. HAWKINSON, 28th Inf.
During the attack in the vicinity of Soissons 18th to 21st July 1918 Captain Hawkinson advanced through heavy machine gun and artillery fire and after suffering the loss of a large number of his company and having all the company runners wounded or killed he advanced upon and captured a German Battery with its Battery Commander. He then reversed one of the guns and used it to fire upon the enemy.

Private 1/c EARL T. GREEN, Company K, 28th Inf.
During the second days fighting assisted his officer to the aid station through heavy shell fire and returned to the front line, showing great bravery and the highest soldierly qualities.

1st Sergeant ARTHUR MURPHY, Company L, 28th Inf.
Assumed command of his company after all officers were casualties, on July 19th, and participated in every attack up to and including the capture of Mt Gourmelle Farm and Ploisy. Was finally wounded on the hill above Ploisy on morning of July 21st, just before the attack on Berzy le Sec.

Corporal THOMAS FINLEY, Company L, 28th Inf.
Showed gallantry and leadership during the operations of July 18-23rd. Although wounded, kept going forward until exhausted.

Sergeant PRICE ROARK (MISSING) Company L, 28th Inf.
Displayed great courage and ability for leadership, taking command of his platoon after platoon commander had been killed, and keeping on in the attack on Paris-Soissons road, July 19, 1918. At this point he disappeared and his fate is so far unknown.

Private WILLARD M. CAMPBELL, Company L, 28th Inf.
Carried himself with great gallantry all during the operations, being finally wounded in attack on Berzy le Sec, July 21, 1918. When wounded he refused all assistance offered by his comrades and urged them on saying he "could take care of himself."

Private OMAR H. HURST, Headquarters Company, 28th Inf.
With Intelligence Section on night of July 19th, during the attack on Ploisy, hemaintained his position in an observation post in a tree under machine gun fire until the end of the attack, sending down clear reports as to the progress made; he was always willing to take any risk in order to gain information

1st Sergeant MANIPHE STONECIPHER, Company M, 28th Inf.
With utter disregard to danger he continually exposed himself to heavy machine gun and artillery fire in order that he might better direct the men. He was killed on July 19th by a sniper while directing operations in the attack near Soissons.

Captain JOHN S. MANNING, 28th Infantry.
Displayed great courage and coolness under heavy machine gun fire, leading his company in a successful attack near Soissons, until wounded, he continued to direct operations until evacuated to the first aid station.

Private JAMES E. HANLON, Company M, 28th Inf.
Attached to the machine gun company as an ammunition carrier during the attacks near Soissons. On July 20, 1918, one of our gun crews being put out of action by an enemy shell he rushed forward and single handed placed the gun in action.

Private JOHN KILLDUFF, Company M, 28th Inf.
During the fourdays attacks near Soissons did exceptionally fine work as a sniper. Continually exposed himself in order to better his work.

Supply Sergeant VINTON PAWEL, Company M, 28th Inf.
Although so ill tha the couldbarely walk, he insisted on going over with his company in the attacks near Soissons July 18 to 22nd. Displayed exceptional courage and devotion to duty until wounded on the fourth day.

Chaplain COLEMAN E. O'FLAHERTY, 28th Inf.
Displayed bravery under fire and with utter disregard for personal danger, aided the wounded and buried our dead, and assisted frontline troops in every possible way during action.

Private HARRISON BRUCE, Company B, 28th Inf.
Bravely fought during five days of severe fighting and on the last day advanced further into the enemy's lines than any of his comrades, where he captured a German in a dugout and drove out a German machine gunner.

1st Lieut. S. W. MARSHALL, U.S.R., 28th Inf.
Displayed untiring zeal in discharge of his duties as Regimental Operations Officer and successfully reconnoitered the front line after the capture of Ploisy under heavy shell fire.

1st Lieut. VANCE MERSHON, U.S.R., 28th Inf.
Displayed exceptional qualities of leadership and command during the four days battle near Soissons. In the advance of the 1st Bn. 28th Inf., on morning of July 19th, he displayed great coolness and judgment in helping to reassemble the company when scattered by heavy shell fire. In the attack of the 1st Bn., 28th Inf., on the evening of July 19th, seeing the rifle companies moving out, and having no definite orders himself took command of company in absence of company commander, and so conducted the march that the company passed through heavy Machine Gun and shell fire to the objective without a casualty. Sited the machine guns extraordinarily well and kept in liaison with Bn. Commander. Helped greatly in conducting advance of Company to jumping off positions for the attack on Berzy le Sec, July 21, 1918, and so well coordinated his part of the show that the elements under his command fulfilled their mission after he had been seriously wounded at the start.

2nd Lieut. GEORGE A. GARRIGAN, U.S.R., 28th Inf.
Displayed exceptional qualities of leadership and command during the four days battle near Berzy le Sec. So conducted his platoon at all times that with a minimum of casualties he obtained maximum results. Fearlessly led his platoon through all heavy bombardments and barrages, cooly picking best routes, so as to avoid heavy casualties. Arrived at all objectives with the infantry, sited his guns to best advantage to cover his missions, made temporary emplacements, salvaged enemy machine guns and ammunition for offensive work, saving his small amount of Hotchkiss ammunition for defense. Volunteered the night of July 19th to go out and find ration cart and fatigued. Gave first aid to the wounded and arranged for their evacuation to an aid station. In the attack and capture of Berzy le Sec, believing his company commander to be killed, took command of all guns in Berzy le Sec, organized the position for temporary defense, gained liaison with the commanding officer with a view to further advancing and later assisted infantry officers in estqblishing the line of resistance.

Sergeant JOSEPH L. OBBRICH, (Olbrych)-P.L.R. M. G. Company, 28th Inf.

Acting as platoon commander during the four days battle near Berzy le Sec, displayed such exceptional qualities of leadership and command the entire time, that it won a commendation from the men of his platoon to his company commander. He at all times displayed coolness and good judgment, and in the attack and capture of Berzy le Sec moved forward with his guns under extremely heavy machine gun and artillery barrage in such a manner that he arrived at the objective with all but one of his guns, taking advantage of several opportunitites during the advance to site guns at enemy machine guns and helping to keep down their fire so as to facilitate the advanceof the infantry. Upon reaching the objective, though still under heavy artillery bombardment and enemy machine gun fire he sited his guns and took on targets of fleeing enemy and enemy machine guns. He maintained good liaison throughout the operation with the company commander thereby adding materially to the success of the operation.

2nd Lieut. VICTOR E. GARRETT, U.S.R., 28th Inf.

Displayed exceptional courage and self sacrifice to duty during the four days battle near Berzy le Sec. His calmness and judgment during an extremely heavy shelling on the morning of July 19th, while company was moving from Cutry to Breuil greatly aided in keeping the company together, when several large caliber shells struck in among the men and animals. He personally supervised the taking care of the wounded and getting them to an aid station, during the entire operation he so conducted his platoon that his percentage of casualties was extremely small. He fulfilled all missions given him in an exceptionally good manner, always self sacrificing himself to his duty and the comfort and welfare of his platoon. In the attack and capture of Berzy le Sec he conducted his platoon from Mt. Courmelle Farm to the jumping off trenches above Ploissy* under extremely heavy artillery and machine gun fire in such manner as to have practically no casualties where he took up support positions and gained touch with Regimental Headquarters.

Mechanic FRANK H. HUMPHREY, Company G, 28th Inf.

Courageously charged ahead with one other man and attacked a machine gun nest, putting the guns out of commission and killing the gunners. Showed conspicuous gallantry in action throughout the whole attack.

2nd Lieut. ROBERT J. WALLACE, U.S.R., 28th Inf.

Helped materially in the success of the operations of his company (Machine Gun Co., 28th) during the four days battle near Berzy le Sec by maintaining perfect liaison throughout the entire attack between the front and rear echelons. On the first day of the attack without any knowledge of the whereabouts of his company he succeeded in locating it although exposed to extremely heavy artillery fire in so doing. Rations and water were delivered whenever required under the most dangerous circumstances. On one occasion he searched from 7:00 P.M. to 3:00 A.M., through a heavily shelled area until company was reached and rations delivered. While not actually engaged in delivering rations to the front Lieut. Wallace was scouring the country for ammunition to send forward. On several occasions it was necessary for him to bring the entire train of carts to forward positions which he did in a most efficient manner through heavy shelled areas with very ow percentage of casualties for such a good target. He displayed exceptional good qualities of good judgment and command throughout the operation.

Private 1/c EDWARD F. BOWMAN, M.G. Company, 28th Inf.

In the attack and capture of Berzy le Sec on July 21, displayed exceptional coolness, bravery and self sacrifice to duty. After carrying his Machine Gun through a very heavy artillery and machine gun barrage to the far side of town he went into action in the open, firing on an enemy machine gun that was firing down the main street of Berzy le Sec. Despite the fact that artillery was brought into action against his gun, he continued his fire until he silenced the enemy gun and immediately turned his attention to a second enemy machine tun. Before silencing this gun he was struck by artillery fire and instantly killed.

Corporal EDWARD SPEARS, M.G. Company, 28th Inf.

In the attack and capture of Berzy le Sec on July 21st displayed conspicuous bravery by returning through an extremely heavy artillery and machine gun barrage for his machine gun which had been carried by a member of his squad, who had become a casualty early in the advance and returning to Berzy le Sec through the same barrage, set his gun up and went into action against the retreating enemy. His exceptional conduct and behavior throughout the four days battle lent materially to the success of the operation.

Private 1/c FRANK J. REYNOLDS, Medical Corps, 28th Inf.

Attached to the M.G. Co., 28th, displayed exceptional zeal, devotion and self sacrifice to duty during the four days battle near Berzy le Sec, during this prolonged operation he worked continuously in shell and machine gun swept areas giving first aid to wounded, time and again going out into badly swept areas to render first aid and succor. His untiring energy and zeal helped greatly toward the success of the operation.

Sergeant EDWARD M. DOLAN, Machine Gun Co., 28th Inf.

Displayed exceptional courage and self sacrifice to duty in the attack and capture of Berzy le Sec, July 21st, when knocked down and stunned by shell fire picked up two boxes of ammunition dropped by wounded men and went through a heavy shell and machine gun fire and rejoined his platoon in the town.

Private 1/c GUY N. HILL, Company E, 28th Inf.
When the advance was held up by the enemy machine gun, he rushed it single handed, put it out of commission and took the crew prisoners. This occured during the offensive of July 18 to 20, 1918, near Soissons.

Private CHARLES KEMME, Co. F, 28th Inf.
Did while in action display exceptional bravery and utter disregard of his own life, by advancing on a machine gun nest, of two guns and six men and by working his way up to the rear of the guns put them out of action in hand to hand combat. On the 20th day of July, Private Kemme again advanced on a machine gun which was doing great damage to the men in his sector by sniping. He put this gun out of action and returned to the trenches with the gun.

2nd Lieut. Edgar C. Westervelt, 26th Inf.
For his great courage and leadership of his platoon in advancing under heavy shell and machine gun fire from the beginning of the offensive until wounded. In many instances he went forward alone to reconnoiter enemy machine gun positions. In the afternoon of July 19th he led a gun crew beyond our front line into an area swept by intense machine gun fire, to demolish with the Stokes Mortars, machine gun nests which were holding up the advance of the Infantry.

Rev. B. V. Edworthy, Y. M. C. A.
During the attack near SOISSONS went into the forward area and distributed cigarettes and chocolate to the soldiers, both French and American, thereby increasing their morale and comfort.

Private Elmer E. Feb, Co. F 28th Inf.
Did on the 19th day of July, 1918, advance on machine gun snipers on the PARIS-SOISSONS road after the snipers had killed 10 men and wounded others, showed exceptional bravery by reaching the machine gun and killing the snipers with hand grenades and automatic rifle.

Private EARNEST V. BOLLINGER, Co. F 28th Inf.
On the 19th day of July '18, advanced on machine gun snipers on the PARIS-SOISSONS road after the snipers had killed 10 men and wounded others. Showed exceptional bravery by reaching the machine gun and assisting Private Feb in putting it out of action with hand grenades and automatic rifle.

Private First Class RAYMOND RILEY, Co. F, 28th Inf.
Did on the 19th day of July '18, show an absolute disregard for his own life by advancing upon a machine gun which was holding his platoon up, and finally putting it out of action, after he had been wounded.

Private GEORGE S. CALDWELL, Co. G, 28th Inf.
Deeming it of great importance to stop artillery fire which was causing heavy losses in our ranks, rushed three hundred yards to the front killing two and capturing thirteen of the enemy.

Private CASEL WILSON, Co. G, 28th Inf.
Deeming it of great importance to stop artillery fire which was causing heavy losses in our ranks, rushed three hundred yards to the front, killing two and capturing thirteen.

Mechanic FRANK H. HUMPHREY, Co. G, 28th Inf.
Courageously charged ahead with one other man and attacked a machine gun nest, putting the guns out of commission and killing the gunners. Showed conspicuous gallantry in action throughout the whole attack.

Headquarters 2nd Infantry Brigade,
American Expeditionary Forces,
Montabaur, Germany, 24 May, 1919.

GENERAL ORDERS)
NO. 3)

The Brigade Commander cites the following officers and men for gallantry in action and devotion to duty during the operations of the 2nd Infantry Brigade, American Expeditionary Forces, France, 1917 - 1918.

"CORPORAL WILLIAM A. CARNEY, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "In charge of Headquarters group of his company maintained perfect liaison between his company P.C. and the platoons of his company. Established a system of relay stations between the company P.C. and Brigade Headquarters, voluntarily made numerous trips himself over ground subject to heavy machine gun fire and constantly being shelled by enemy artillery. Upon being severely wounded reported to his company commander giving him all data available of the enemy positions and the locations of friendly troops on the right and left of his company."

"PRIVATE GEORGE M. OWENS, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn."For exceptional gallantry in crossing a zone under heavy machine gun fire and artillery bombardment to carry messages to battalion commander. Fearlessly exposing himself to carry orders of the Brigade Commander who wanted information from troops some distance away. Carrying out all tasks with utter disregard to personal safety and upon his brigade being relieved volunteered as a runner to take incoming troops to their proper positions."

BUGLER JOHN SABOTCHICK, Co. "D", 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "During the operations against Berzy-le-Sec, July 21, 1918, showed exceptional courage and gallantry in action by aiding his platoon commander to locate the enemy positions. Volunteered to go forward to locate a hidden machine gun nest which was holding up the advance of his company. Locating same he harassed the enemy machine gunners with pistol fire until they were forced to abandon their positions and were captured in trying to make their way to the rear. Throughout the entire engagement tho wounded continued to carry messages to his company P.C."

PRIVATE EMIL SCHRAM, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Materially aided his company commander in organizing his company for the attack and later, his company commander being wounded, cooly and steadfastly led the left part of the company into the attack upon the third objective. Consolidating his positions he continued to direct the movements of the troops of his command although severely wounded."

PRIVATE 1/C PETER SERGIEKO, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Showed exceptional coolness and heroism in assisting in the capture of an enemy machine gun which was delivering a terrific fore into American troops. By rushing the emplacement with hand grenades he succeeded with a comrade in the silencing of the enemy gun."

PRIVATE 1/C VINCENT P. SMOLGIUS, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun/ Bn. "Showed exceptional coolness and heroism in assisting in the capture of an enemy machine gun which was delivering a terrific fire into theAmerican troops. By rushing the emplacement with hand grenades he succeeded, with a comrade, in silencing of the enemy gun. Being severely wounded in the operation."

CORPORAL SAMUEL W. KOPP, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Throughout the ten days of attack by the First Division kept most careful watch of his men, personally seeking for safe positions for them. Performing this so thoroughly that only one man of his entire squad was wounded, altho they had been in a most severe bombardment. When placed in charge of section by his company commander, showed unfaltered courage in leading his men to the attack and placed his gun to protect the advance of the infantry battalion to which he was attached."

CORPORAL WILLIAM BREEN, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "During intense shelling led forward two reorganized squads of machine gunners to exposed, forward positions in order to protect a wholly open flank at a time when the situation was critical and a counter attack impending. Himself reconnoitering the gound so as to place the guns in the most effective position."

CORPORAL BYRON C. ECHORS, Co. B,3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Handled his squad in an energetic and efficient manner. When the Infantry was held up by two machine guns he took his gun and crew out under fire and silenced these guns by killing and wounding the enemy crews. He was wounded on October 10,, 1918 while taking his gun forward to neutralize the fire of enemy machine guns."

PRIVATE 1/C LESLIE P. ERSKINE, Co. B, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "During the attacks at Cantigny, Soissons, St. Mihiel and the Argonne Forest, he has shown exceptional bravery and efficiency in delivering messages under the most trying and dangerous circumstances. Every mission intrusted to him has been successfully carried out and as a liaison agent he has been invaluable."

PRIVATE 1/C L. D. FROST, Co. B, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "During the attack at Soissons he and one other private carried their machine gunsforward after the rest of his squad were casualties, and put the gun in action; at all times showing great courage and initiative. Private Frost has taken part in all the attacks of this Division and has always shown high soldierly qualities."

1ST SERGEANT JOHN B. BRYANT, Co. B, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "An excellant soldier, in the attack west of Soissons,July 18 - 23, 1918, by his personal bravery and coolness and total disregard for danger, inspired and kept a high morale among the liaison group which he commanded. Made frequent trips through intense shell fire and machine gun fire, obtaining and reporting back valuable information to his company commander and by his efficient handling of his liaison group did much to keep his company commander in touch with all his guns during the entire five days of the attack. He displayed exceptional bravery and efficiency in the attack at Cantigny as commander of liaison for barrage group. His record with the First Division has been an excellant one, as his promotions from private to 1st sergeant of his company testifies."

SERGEANT AXEL J. CARLSTROM, Co. A, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Although wounded early in the engagement, refused to leave the field, and continued cooly to lead and encourage his platoon under the most trying circumstances. By willing cooperation and unfailing devotion to duty proved himself a fearless soldier and an intelligent leader."

SERGEANT JEROME PACK, Co. A, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "During the whole engagement led his men cooly and intelligently continuing forward, although wounded, only leaving the field when rendered weak and exhausted."

PRIVATE JOHN C. MATE, Co. C, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "For his devotion to duty, exceptional bravery and coolnes in action through the operations of this company from May 28, 1918 to November 11,1918. Private Mate acting as a runner carried many important messages under heavy fire and volunteered his services for many dangerous missions. Private Mate was wounded at Cantigny and Soissons."

PRIVATE PATRICK MULVIHILL, Co. C, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "For his exceptional coolness under heavy machine gun fire at St. Mihiel. When the Infantry was held up temporarily by enemy machine guns, Private Mulvihill placed his gun, and furnishing covering fire, silenced the enemy machine guns. Infantry advanced and captured gun crews with very few casualties."

SERGEANT FRANK FAIMAN, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "After three days most intense and prolonged fighting showed exceptional bravery, courage and endurance by leading his men through heavy and terrific machine gun and shell fire in the attack on Berzy-le-Sec."

PRIVATE 1/C WESLEY GOODE, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Although seriously wounded refused to allow any of his gun crew to give him first aid, declaring that fire must be maintained at any cost, and crawled to a dressing station alone."

PRIVATE 1/C LEWIS PAYNE, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "His corporal a casualty and the remainder of the gun crew put out of action, procured help and resumed fire with the gun, although wounded he continued to direct the fire."

SERGEANT PETER RIEZUCK, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "While under heavy shell fire showed great courage and coolness in inspiring confidence in his men and directing the fire of his guns."

PRIVATE 1/C TILMAN E. SMITH, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Displayed great bravery in keeping liaison within the battalion and constantly passing through machine gun fire."

CORPORAL RAY W. MINOR, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. " "Showed exceptional ability in flanking an enemy machine gun and tho wounded succeeded in putting the enemy gun out of action."

PRIVATE 1/c JOHN NOVACK, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Showed extraordinary bravery in advancing under heavy shell fire to rescue a comrade and return with him to a place of safety."

CORPORAL GEORGE W. HASEMEYER, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Displayed great coolness in leading his squad forward and in directing the fire of his machine gun, until wounded."

PRIVATE 1/C LLOYD W. GEARY, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Showed extraordinary bravery in assisting in the capture of two enemy machine gun nests."

CORPORAL CLEO E. FITZHUGH, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Displayed extraordinary coolness and judgement in the directing of fire from his machine gun."

MESS SGT. PERCY HOUSE, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Showed utter lack of fear in carrying rations to the front. He organized carrying parties to enable the men in the advancedpositions to obtain food and coffee. During the entire engagement he displayed great courage in evacuating the wounded while subject to heavy shell fire."

PRIVATE 1/C WORNIE C. CRISP Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "After being wounded showed great courage by continuing his duties as a runner and kept liaison between his platoon and company P.C. while subject to heavy machine gun fire."

PRIVATE 1/C MALCOLM C. CLARK, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Without regard for personal safety, showed great courage in exposing himself in order to obtain effective fire on an enemy machine gun."

STABLE SERGEANT WILLIAM H. WEAVER, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Displayed great courage and coolness in maintaining ammunition supply to the troops in the front line. Personally carrying machine gun ammunition to the extreme advanced positions while subject to heavy shell fire."

PRIVATE 1/C DENNIS G. BURNS, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Without regard to personal safety did repeatedly carry messages for his company commander to his platoon leaders. This during a most violent bombardment."

PRIVATE PETER O. LENSETH, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Showed great courage and skill in performing his duties of a runner. Repeatedly carrying messages to Brigade P.C. from his company commander. This through heavy machine gun and artillery fire."

SERGEANT HARRY LACUSH, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Displayed exceptional coolness and courage in handling his platoon under violent bombardment. Though wounded refused to be evacuated until he had advanced to the third objective, placed his guns in position and though weak from loss of blood and exhaustion, continued to direct the fire at a very critical time; setting an example of high courage for the men under his command."

PRIVATE JOHN FARRELL, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Consistently performed his duties as runner under extremely dangerous circumstances with great bravery. At a time when connection was very necessary with troops on the left of his company, volunteered to carry messages to them, showed utter fearlessness while shells from enemy artillery firing point blank at himself and comrades were bursting nearer each moment. Succeeded in obtaining communication with troops on the left and on the return to report to his company commander was severely wounded but refused to be evacuated untill he was carried to the company P.C. and made his his report in person to the company commander."

PRIVATE 1/C IKE H. GOLDMAN, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "As a runner performed his hazardous duties for three days and nights without sleep in a praiseworthy manner. Being wounded he was evacuated to a dressing station, but upon learning the remainder of the runners in his company were casualties and that runners who knew the location of the troops were greatly needed for the success of the operations, reported to the company commander for duty. Volunteered for all hazardous work and though weak from loss of blood continued his duties until again severely wounded this time necessitating his removal to the rear in a very critical condition."

SERGEANT ARCHIE TREON, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Although badly bruised from an attack by the enemy on the 27th of May, 1918 and suffering from numerous cuts received during the fight, refused to go to the rear and on the 28th May, 1918 at the head of his platoon led the attack on Cantigny. Showed utter disregard for his own personal safety by reconnoitering his positions alone while his platoon was entrenched in an enemy trench and leading the men forward to an advanced position. Placing his guns in such a manner that when the enemy launched four counter-attacks he was able to inflict heavy loss upon the advancing troops. Upon being ordered to the rear after being wounded, refused to leave his men until an officer had been sent forward to obtain the firing data and location of the enemy positions."

2nd Lieutenant WILLIAM B. MCCALL, Inf., 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "For untiring devotion to his duties as Supply Officer in bringing up food to his company which was in advanced positions. And for his work in carrying up food for the whole regiment on one occasion and to the battalion to which his company was attached. Personally conducting his carts through artillery harassed and gassed areas. Doing this at a time when no other officer was available for the duty, and thus exposing himself voluntarily to danger which he could have avoided without neglect of duty or any disgrace to himself."

1ST LIEUTENANT GERWIN D. ADAIR, Inf., 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "By his conspicious coolness and unfaltering courage, reorganized his company which had been separated during a most violent bombardment. And leading themin the attack gained the second objective. Seeing the Infantry on his right being held up by heavy machine gun fire, led a platoon of his company in a flank attack against the enemy. Scattering them and allowing the infantry to advance. At the head of his company, fought his way through a dense patch of woods, cleaning it of the enemy snipers who were inflicting loss upon friendly troops. Upon twice being wounded but able to walk, fearlessly exposed himself to enemy machine gun fire in order to assist another officer to the rear. When he (Lt. Adair) could have found safety without neglect to duty."

1ST SERGEANT DAVID R. MEYERS, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "In charge of platoon, advanced to third objective. Directed the fire of his platoon and that of another platoon detached from its company. Organized a squad of rifle-men charged the artillery and assisted in the capture of a cave containing several hundred of the enemy, including several officers. Showing exceptional coolness in the handling of the prisoners. Reorganized his company and catching up with the first wave, led his troops in the final attack. And though severely wounded continued to direct the movements of his company and parts of another that were separated from their battalion."

MECHANIC MAYNARD LOCKWOOD, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "Displayed high qualities of courage and devotion to duty during the attack, and fighting which followed it; he effected the capture, without help, of a number of prisoners in spite of machine gun and snipers fire; he patrolled the front of his platoone alone and without orders. Bringing back valuable information to his company commander. Voluntarily crossed an open space subjected to heavy artillery and machine gun fire to aid three comrades who had become buried by the exploding of an enemy shell. He set a high example of devotion and courage for the men of his company."

CORPORAL STEPHEN B. KNOX, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "In charge of squad showed exceptional coolness and courage in directing the fire of his machine gun. His entire squad becoming casuals organized a section of Infantry and charged the artillery. Assisted in the evacuation of the wounded until he himself was severely wounded."

PRIVATE WILLIAM J. O'BRIEN, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "After entire gun crew became casualties and tho wounded himself, carried ammunition to another machine gun position far advanced. Assisted in locating the enemy snipers and continued to operate the gun after his gunner had been killed. Exposing himself to extreme danger when he could have returned to the rear for first aid. He was removed to a dressing station four hours later in a critical condition."

CORPORAL PATRICK J. SLEVIN, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "His section leader becoming a casualty took command of the section and by his conspicious coolness and courage inspired great confidence in the men under his command. Led an attack upon the enemy in a dense wood penetrating deep into the enemy lines. Always in the lead of his troops to locate hidden enemy machine guns he captured a Hun kitchen and three heavily loaded wagons, doing this unassisted and at great danger as the enemy resisted to the last man."

SERGEANT JOHN JERKE, Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Bn. "His platoon leader a casualty and the platoon very scattered, reorganized the platoon and led them in the attack upon the enemy artillery, inflicting heavy loss upon the artillery and enabling the Infantry to advance on his right. Organized a scout platoon and far in advance of the Battalion located and silenced enemy machine gun nests until he himself was severely wounded. After being wounded reported to his battalion commander and gave him valuable information regarding the enemy positions and method of evacuation."

SERGEANT ORMA A. MILLER, M.G. Co. 26th Infantry. "During an enemy attack near Cantigny, he operated his machine gun in a courageous manner until his gun was disabled and his platoon leader killed. He took command of his platoon, secured another gun and successfully repelled the enemy. During the whole at attack he showed extraordinary courage and coolness."

FIRST LIEUT. RAYMOND C. WINTERS, Co. G, 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism in action near Nonsard, France. Lieut. Winters was supporting the right flank of Co. E, 28th Infantry, and the company being checked by machine gun fire from a strong point, led his platoon forward under intense machine gun fire and during the fire advanced with an automatic rifle team and a squad of rifle-men to the right flank at a great risk of his own life, and personally directed and controlled their fire so skillfully that, although under continuous fire, fire superiority was gained, and this contributed greatly to the capture of the strong point. Eighty prisoners were captured at this point."

SERGEANT JESSE D. SMITH, Co. B, 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism in action at Hill 263, 1918. He displayed unusual courage and disregard for personal danger while setting up a Stokes Mortar in defense of Hill 263 which was exposed to very heavy machine gun fire from three (3) sides. As a strong counter-attack was inevitable, Sgt. Smith worked faithfully under great danger in order to consolidate and hold the position."

SERGEANT MARTIN JENSEN, Headquarters Co. 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism in action near Exermont, France. Sgt. Jensen displayed exceptional courage and coolness under a very heavy bombardment of German field pieces shooting direct fire and with entire disregard for personal danger he organized his platoon under heavy shell fire and machine gun fire and prepared to repulse enemy counter-attacks which were imminent. For unusual and exceptional courage at Cantigny, France, Sgt. Jensen did voluntarily, under terrific shell and machine gun fire, aid in the capture of an enemy machine gun. After capturing this gun, Sgt. Jensen turned it around, and did, himself, operate it successfully against the enemy."

SERGEANT PETER SMITH, Headquarters Company, 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism in action at Exermont, France. Sgt. Smith displayed great courage and ability while commanding a 37mm cannon. He fired on an enemy field piece which was firing point blank and continued to do so under heavy shell fire, until he had succeeded in driving the crew away from the field piece.. For unusual courage and exceptional courage at Hill 263. Sgt. Smith showed great skill and courage by knocking out machine gun nests while under very, very heavy fire."

CORPORAL FINDLEY B. GREEN, Headquarters Company, 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism in action near Exermont, France. Corp. Green took charge of the Battalion Detachment of the Signal Platoon after the detachment leader was wounded and thru his personal efforts and courage and devotion to duty obtain communication with Regimental Headquarters under very heavy machine gun and artillery fire. In order to maintain communication with the Headquarters he had to lay several lines to the rear and worked continuously through this whole period."

CORPORAL BASIL S. YAHNER, Headquarters Company, 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism in action near Hill 263. He displayed great courage and determination in hand to hand fighting and even after being wounded continued to fight until victory for himself and his companions had been assured. He also aided in the capture of several prisoners."

SERGEANT BERT WENTWORTH, Co. C, 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism near Exermont, France. Sgt. Wentworth displayed great courage and disregard for personal danger while operating a 37mm gun against a German 77mm cannon, and although the German gun was shooting directly at him at a distance of one thousand (1000) yards he succeeded in silencing the 77mm cannon thereby greatly aiding troops in making an advance. Showed great bravery and ability in hand to hand fighting during this operation."

2ND LIEUT. VICTOR ERAL GARRETT, 28th Infantry (deceased) "For extraordinary heroism in action near Exermont, France. Lieut. Garret displayed extraordinary heroism and self-sacrifice to duty during thethree days previous to the attack on Exermont, in that suffering acute pain in an injury to his foot, refused to be evacuated, remaining constantly at his post. In the attack on Exermont, while acting as liaison Officer he was with his five men suddenly confronted by twenty Germans, drawing his pistol he led the attack but was killed doing so. However, his dauntless courage and example enabled his men to take the Germans prisoners."

SERGEANT JOSEPH L. OLBRYCH, Machine Gun Company, 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism and leadership in action near Exermont, France. When all officers of his company became casualties he took direct command and choosing excellant positions for his guns. He aided materially in the capture of Hill 240. On the following morning when changing positions he so conducted his men as not to lose a man. His display of extraordinary heroism and courage throughout the entire operations served as a backbone to the company which could not be broken."

SERGEANT JOSEPH J. MCDERMOTT, M.G. Gun Co., 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism in action near Exermont, France. Sgt. McDermott was suffering from chills and fever for three days previous to the attack on Exermont, but refused to be evacuated. He was struck in the head with a splinter from a shell. He again refused to be evacuated until ordered to the rear by his company commander. His example of self sacrifice and extraordinary heroism helped the operations of the company very materially."

SERGEANT JOSEPH A. TROMBLEY, M.G. Co., 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism in action near Exermont, France. Having taken complete command of his platoon, when his platoon commander was killed. Sgt. Trambley fearlessly and skillfully led his men to the attack on Exermont. When his platoon position was heavily shelled he fearlessly exposed himself to shell fire to aid his men until he was killed."

CORPORAL PELHAM SMITH, Machine Gun Company, 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism in action at Cantigny, France. Corporal Smith then a private volunteered to take a message thru a terrific barrage of artillery and machine gun fire from a wounded officer to his company commander. He delivered the message and returned to the front with an answer with the least possible delay. He returned to his gun position which was then in fron of the front line and remained with it until dark when it withdrew to the front line."

SERGEANT FRANK KENT, Machine Gun Company, 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism in action near Chehery, France. During the advance having learned that one of his men had lost his gas mask on the night before he crossed the battle field under intense direct Machine Gun and Artillery fire to procure one, again while his platoon was advancing it encountered severe direct Machine Gun and Artillery fire he skillfully manouvered his men by the left flank and got his entire platoon out of the range of the enemy guns, and had his men in safety before the enemy could lay his guns on them reaching the desired distance with a minimum of casualties. His actions throughout the engagement helped the succes of the operations very materially."

PRIVATE JAMES A. GALANOS, M.G. Co., 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism in action near Chehery, France. His platoon having halted on the Southeastern edge of Chehery, Pvt. Galanos voluntarily and without regard for personal safety went out into the open field which was swept by direct artillery and machine gun fire and carried back wounded men to the aid station. He did this on four different occasions until all of the men of his platoon who had been wounded during the advance were in safety."

PRIVATE 1/C AUGUST JOHASKY, M.G. Co., 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism in action near Exermont, France. When his Lieut. was killed in attack on German position he led the attack and with the aid of four other men from his company took the position and some twenty prisoners. He returned the prisoners over to proper authorities and continued the advance until he was severely wounded. His display of self sacrifice and heroism throughout the attack was a source of encouragement to the entire Company."

MECHANIC KONDRAT TARASUK, M.G. Co. 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism and courage in action at Cantigny, France, May 28,1918. Private Tarasuk volunteered to go back to the rear and bring up ammunition to the guns in the front line which were badly in need of it, repeated this twice during a terrific machine gun and artillery fire. He volunteered to go for rations and water, and again during a counter attack by the enemy he brough forward ammunition and water to the guns showing no regard for his own personal safety while the enemy barrage lasted. On reaching the front line he found that the line on the right and left of his platoon had withdrawn, he attacked an enemy patrol armed only with an automatic pistol, and succeeded in killing one and driving back the others to their lines. On the night of May 30, 1918 while acting as guide for a relief he was wounded but refused to be evacuated until he was certain that the relief was made properly."

SERGEANT BURTIS POSTEMA, M.G. Co., 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism in action near Chehery, France, November 7,1918. His platoon having halted at the South-eastern edge of Chehery, Sergeant Postema voluntarily and with no regard for his own personal safety went out into the open field which was swept by direct artillery and machine gun fire and carried one of his men who had been wounded to the first aid station, he repeated this act four times until all the men of his platoon who had been wounded during the advance were in safety."

PRIVATE STEPHEN DAVIS, Company C, 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism in action, although sick and exhausted he volunteered as a runner, and displayed exceptional bravery and devotion to duty by time after time carrying messages through terrific artillery and machine gun fire."

PRIVATE JOHN C. THOMAS, Co. D, 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism and devotion to duty in action near Exermont, France October 4, to 12, 1918. He rescued two of his comrades who were wounded and lying in an exposed position in front of his company, exposing himself to intense machine gun and direct artillery fire, in utter disregard of his own personal safety. He twice volunteered to go from the front line to Regimental Headquarters a distance of more than two kilometers under heavy artillery fire to bring up rations."

PRIVATE 1/C ROY RUMMEL, Medical Department, 28th Infantry. "Who was a stretcher bearer attached to Machine Gun Company, 28th Infantry during the Meuse-Argonne offensive. He was with the company while making the attacks and during the days following. During this prolonged time he repeatedly on his own iniative left the security of the trench to administer first aid and evacuate wounded in the advance of the trenches. This while under heavy shell fire and in full view of enemy snipers and machine gunners. Neither heavy fire, excessive work nor exhaustion prevented him from persisting in this work. His conduct had a great effect and his prompt and efficient attention of the wounded prevented much suffering and saved some lives."

SERGEANT ALLEN S. GREW, Medical Department, 28th Infantry. "Was a stretcher bearer during the battle of Cantigny and for three days and nights strove unceasingly to bring the wounded into safety, dressing them and giving them food and water. During these prolonged operations he worked in area which was swept by shell, machine gun and rifle fire. He brought in a wounded comrade under heavy shell fire. Neither fire nor excessive work nor exhaustion deterred him from persisting in this work."

SERGEANT GEORGE FRANKLIN CREIGHTON, M.D., 28th Infantry. "Who was a stretcher bearer strove unceasingly for three days and nights to bring the wounded into safety, dressing them and getting them food and water. During these prolonged operations he worked in an area which was swept by shell, machine gun and rifle fire and one time was knocked down and partially buried by enemy shells. He brought in a comrade under heavy shell fire and on another occasion brought in a wounded man under view of enemy snipers and machine gunners. Neither fire nor excessive work nor exhaustion deterred him from persisting in this work."

PRIVATE 1/C PRIESTLY P. POOLE, Co. K, 28th Infantry. "SHOWED extraordinary heroism during the action near Sedan on November 7,1918. In addition to fulfilling his duties as company runner he fearlessly exposed himself to heavy machine gun and direct artillery fire, to give aid to the wounded. While bandaging a wounded comrade he observed and enemy machine gun team in the act of mounting their gun. Notifying his lieutenant, immediately the two succeeded in preventing the gun being used, killing one of the enemy and driving the other three from their position."

SERGEANT ARTIE G. MANCO, Co. E, 28th Infantry. "During the offensive of September 12 - 15, 1918, in the St. Mihiel Sector, he displayed unusual ability in re-organizing a group of men from his own and other companies, and led them against a machine gun nest, which had hold up the advance. He successfully flanked the nest with a few picked men and brought in almost a hundred prisoners."

SERGEANT CHARLES N. HOGAN, Co. E, 28th Infantry. "During the offensive of 12-15 September 1918, St. Mihiel Sector, he was an excellent leader, and although wounded in an attack on a machine gun nest, he continued ahead and helped organize the attack."

CORPORAL CHARLES C. MORRISON, Co. E, 28th Infantry. "During the offensive of 12 - 15 September 1918, in the St. Mihiel Sector, he showed good leadership and coolness when placed in command of a section and in gathering men together and re-organizing."

PRIVATE PATRICK H. ALLEN, Co. E, 28th Infantry. "During the offensive of 12 - 15 September 1918, in the St. Mihiel Sector, he was wounded in the beginning but continued in the fight, and assisted in rushing an enemy trench."

PRIVATE ERNEST A TRUITT, Co. E, 28th Infantry. "During the offensive of 12 - 15 September, 1918, in the St. Mihiel Sector, he displayed courage and efficiency as an automatic gunner, and with a few chosen men out-flanked a machine gun nest and brought in almost a hundred prisoners."

PRIVATE MICOLA DONATELLO, Co. E, 28th Infantry. "During the offensive of 12 - 15 September, 1918, in the St. Mihiel Sector, he displayed courage and ability as a platoon runner, and was ahead of the platoon finding paths through the barbed wire for his platoon and in other ways assisting their advance."

PRIVATE FENNESSY, JOHN, Co. B, 26th Infantry. "Displayed extreme bravery and devotion to duty. Although mortally wounded he stayed at his post until the enemy had been repulsed, and when being evacuated in a dying condition, thought only of his duty, advising his platoon commander to place another auto rifle on the post as his rifle was broken."

PRIVATE RUSSELL HANDLEY, Co.B, 26 Infantry. "Showed great devotion to duty and utter disregard of personal safety when in broad day light and plain sight of the enemy he carried out the difficult mission of wiring a position under intense, direct machine gun fire."

PRIVATE WILLIAM POHRER, Co. B, 26th Infantry. "Showed great devotion to duty and utter disregard of personal safety when in broad daylight and in plain sight of the enemy, he carried out the difficult mission of wiring a position under intense, direct machine gun fire."

SERGEANT CHARLES WOODS, Co. B, 26th Infantry. "Having lost many men of his platoon from a demoralizing fire displayed great courage and excellent qualities of leadership by gathering together and organizing stragglers and pushing forward under intense machine gun fire. He was wounded while reducing a strong point."

SERGEANT BREWER, EUGENE P. Hq. Co., 26th Infantry. "On the morning June 9,1918, displayed an extraordinary amount of courage and bravery while maintaining telephone communication under a heavy gas and high explosive bombardment. He kept constant communication between his battalion P.C. and Regimental Headquarters."

CORPORAL JACOB L. ROHLOFF, Co. G, 26th Infantry. "For coolness and bravery under machine gun fire near hill 212 on October 4, 1918. He took charge of a section and routed an enemy machine gun firing from a strong point which was doing great damage to his company, killing the crew and capturing the gun."

SERGEANT ROM BULIARD, Co. D, 26th Infantry. "During operations in Argonne Forest, October 9,1918, when his company was in danger of a flank attack, volunteered and led attack against an enemy position. Attacking from rear killed number of enemy and routed remainder.. Consolidating his position, he allowed enemy machine gun crew to pass him, then attacked them, killing the crew and capturing the gun which he turned on enemy positions. The severely gassed remained in position until relief of his company."

SERGEANT ALLEN S. RIMINGTON, Co. D, 26th Infantry. "During operation South of Soissons July 18-21, 1918 was in charge of a combat patrol covering the flank of his battalion. During the attack was cut off from his company but continued to advance beyond the objective and captured a machine gun which up to that time had direct fire on the company. The wounded, remained in the advance position, protecting left flank of battalion."

CORPORAL BARRY B. SUMLEY, Co. D, 26th Infantry. "The badly gassed, he refused to be evacuated, and on October 7, 1918 led a patrol of six men against enemy machine gun positions on Hill 269. With admirable judgement he flanked the position and attcked from the rear, killing or wounding all members of one crew in hand to hand combat. With but two men left he turned the gun on enemy guns and succeeded in silencing three others, thus gaining a foothold on Hill 269 of great tactical importance."

SERGEANT REUBEN HAWK, Co. D, 26th Infantry. "Commanded platoon throughout first Argonne attack. Was severely gassed on October 5, 1918 and ordered to the rear, but refused to be evacuated. Fought his way to flank positions and the cut off from his company, conformed to the advance of his battalion on Hill 269, regained connection with his comapny. Volunteered to lead patrol and cut gap in enemy wire throuth which his company advanced and held position in advance of battalion on October 3, 1918."

CORPORAL BIRGIL UNDERWOOD, Co. D, 26th Infantry. "During the operations in Argonne Forest, October 3, 1918 Corporal Underwood was sent out with a combat patrol to establish contact with the enemy. After majority of patrol had been killed or wounded, including his platoon commander, Corporal Underwood remained in his position and with his automatic rifle covered the retirement of his patrol, and maintained his position for 48 hours without any communication with the rear and by so doing was able to gain information which could have been obtained in no other manner."

PRIVATE JOSEPH MASCARO, Co. D, 26th Infantry. "During advance of his battalion was a member of combat patrols. He advanced beyond position gained by patrol and in company with one other man gained position in rear of German lines killed four members of crew of one machine gun and captured the two remaining men. As a result of his action was able to give valuable information as to enemy dispositions."

PRIVATE 1/C HENRY SOUBERT, Co. D, 26th Infantry. "During the operations South of Soissons, Private Soubert a member of an automatic rifle team tho wounded remained with his gun and effectively fired on two enemy machine guns which could be covered in no other manner except from his position thus enabling his company to consolidate their positions."

CORPORAL EVERETT F. BARGER, Co. D, 26th Infantry. "During the operations Argonne Forest, October 3, 1918, Corporal Barger was sent out with a combat patrol to establish contact with the enemy. After majority of patrol had been killed or wounded , including his platoon commander, Corporal Barger remained in his position and with automatic rifle covered retirement of his patrol and maintained his position for 48 hours without any communication with the rear and by so doing was able to gain information which could have been obtained in no other manner."

SERGEANT DON B. PRITCHARD, Co. D, 26th Infantry. Sergeant Pritchard has participated in every action taken part in by the 26th Infantry. During operations in the 1st Argonne Battle October 5 - 10, 1918, tho wounded, refused to be evacuated, led small combat patrol against two enemy machine guns on Hill 269, killed the crews and refused to be avacuated until his positions had been consolidated, using one enemy gun effectively in repelling the 1st counter-attack.

PRIVATE 1/C GUS METZLER, Co. D, 26th Infantry. "During the operations South of Soissons, Private Metzler, a member of an automatic rifle team, tho wounded, remained with his gun and effectively fired on two enemy machine guns which could be covered in no other manner except from his position, thus enabling his company to consolidate their position."

PRIVATE JAKE CARTER, Co. K, 26th Infantry. "For continued bravery and devotion to duty throughout all the fighting in which his regiment has participated. For exceptional bravery and devotion to duty, when on the morning of October 11,1918 he carried very important attack orders thru three heavy concentrations of phosgene gas and thru very heavy shell fire for a distance of three kilometers. In order that the orders might reach the battalion in time he hadto cover this distance under above conditions in one hour."

CORPORAL ERNEST EDWARDS, Co. A, 26th Infantry. "When his Corporal was killed, took charge of a liaison squad which he led very efficiently, being of great assistance to his company commander in organizing details and handling messages under heavy artillery and machine gun fire. In all actions of the division showed exceeding coolness and was a wonderful example to his comrades."

PRIVATE CLARENCE WITTEN, Company A, 26th Infantry. "Volunteered to go into the Germna lines to bring back a wounded comrade, which he did and while giving first aid was hurled from the ternch by an enemy shell but immediately returned to administer first aid to his comrade and several others, although continually under heavy shell and machine gun fire."

CORPORAL WILLARD DILLENBECK, Co. A, 26th Infantry. "Displayed efficiency, tenacity and courage in leading liaison squad during two days of attack, regardless of heavy artillery and machine gun fire. Although wounded due to his exposing himself so as to obtain observation and to locate a machine gun nest, he refused to be evacuated until overcome from fatigue and exhaustion resulting from his wound."

PRIVATE DESMUS A. TREST, Company A, 26th Infantry. "With one other man, volunteered to carry in severely wounded officer lying between the lines being at all times under the observation of the enemy. Although coming under heavy machine gun fire he accomplished his mission."

CORPORAL MELETIUS E. SCHARF, Co. A, 26th Infantry. "Although he had been evacuated to a Field Hospital with a shell wound in his head he persuaded the Medical Officer in charge to allow him to return to his company afetr which he made an important patrol to gain information as to the position of the enemy. Upon his return, after he had accomplished his mission he rescued two wounded comrades and brought them back to our lines. In all actions of the first division he has shown marked courage, coolness and evidence of leadership."

PRIVATE AUGUST B. TIETZ, Co. A, 26th Infantry. "Volunteered to go into the enemy lines from an outpost and bring back wounded Americans. Altho he had to pass and was fired upon from, several enemy machine gun nests, he accomplished his mission thus preventing the enemy from gaining identification and information."

SERGEANT JOHN BILEK, Co. M, 26th Infantry. "When his company was held up by direct machine gun and artillery fire led his platoon into a position from which he flanked the enemy and captured 130 prisoners. He personally killed 17 of the enemy in hand to hand fighting."

1ST LIEUTENANT THOMAS L. CORNELL, 26th Infantry. "Went out in front of our lines under heavy machine gun fire, at the risk of his own life and brought in a severely wounded lieutenant. The previous day hearing someone calling for help in NO Man's Land, called for a volunteer, went forward advancing from shell hole to shell hole, constantly being fired upon by machine guns and snipers, he at last found a man who with a broken leg had been there three days. He successfully brought this man back to our lines."

SERGEANT BESOIA COBB, Co. A, 26th Infantry. "After his platoon commander had been killed took command of his platoon which he handled skillfully and courageously throughout the battle. At one time he led a patrol in a flank movement that overcame several machine gun nests which otherwise would have held up and decimated the battalion."

CORPORAL GEORGE G. PIERCE, Company A, 26th Infantry. "When his platoon leader became exhausted he took command and very efficiently led his platoon through four days of battle. At one time he halted and reorganized a body of stampeded men and led them into action at all times showing great coolness and evidence of leadership."

PRIVATE 1/C ROBERT W. STITT, Co. I, 26th Infantry. "While giving first aid to a wounded comrade was hurled from trench by enemy shell, he immediately returned to his wounded comrade, administered first aid to him and to several other wounded men, being continually under heavy shell and machine gun fire showed utter disregard of his personal safety."

PRIVATE 1/C FLOYD O. SHEARS, Co. I, 26th Infantry. "After two other runners had tried and lost their lives volunteered to carry an order which had to be delivered quickly across an open space raked by direct fire from enemy machine guns and rifle-men who were distant not more than 800 yards. He succeeded making his way to the company P.C. and delivering the order."

CORPORAL CHESTER G. HALLUM, Co. A, 26th Infantry. "Conspicuous while in action for his coolness and intelligence and energetic handling of his squad, greatly encouraging all about him by his splendid example."

PRIVATE FLOYD E. WEISENBALER, Co. A, 26th Infantry. "Volunteered while on outpost with one other man to carry in a wounded comrade whom he heard calling between the lines, although in doing so he was constantly fired upon by snipers and machine guns."

CORPORAL JOHN S. WELLS, Co. A, 26th Infantry. "When on important patrol came under heavy machine gun fire. The majority of his men being either killed or wounded he showed the greatest bravery and evidence of leadership, capturing two machine guns in a hand conflict with the enemy."

PRIVATE WILLIARD FELTY, Co. A, 26th Infantry. "Displayed conspicuous bravery and coolness during the progress of an enemy attack, when under the fire of two hostile machine guns, he so maneuvered his auto-rifle, disregarding utterly his personal safety, that he put one enemy machine gun out of action and kept down the fire of the other until his weapon became useless."

CORPORAL FRANCIS E. KERNEY, Co. K, 26th Infantry. "While on an important patrol his party was cut off and completely surrounded by the enemy. By his courage and leadership he enabled his men to hold out until they were able to work their way back to our lines, covering their withdrawal with effectively directed auto-rifle fire."

CORPORAL CARTER C. SELFE, Co. K, 26th Infantry. "Although severely wounded, displayed coolness and courage in going with his auto-rifle team to the assistance of his comrades who were about to be cut off from the platoon by the enemy attack."

PRIVATE ANTON L. MINTON, Co. K, 26th Infantry. "Although wounded early in the fight refused to be evacuated. He displayed great coolness and daring in a hand to hand combat with the enemy with pistol and grenade, driving off a raiding party by his bravery and gallantry."

PRIVATE 1/C BENJAMIN F. FERRELL, Co. K, 26th Infantry. "Displayed remarkable coolness and daring under heavy barrage and machine gun fire by climbing a tree that he could better observe the approach of the enemy and upon seeing them warned the platoon commander of an approaching attack, thereby ebabling the platoon to put up a better defense which resulted in complete defeat of the enemy."

SERGEANT JAMES S. CLARKE, 37 mm Platoon, 26th Infantry. "Volunteered to go with his platoon commander to shell hole with 37 mm gun and under heavy machine gun fire, covered the advance of his battalion, and by the fire he directed on enemy's guns, greatly assisted in holding down the casualties suffered by his battalion."

SERGEANT GROVER YARBROUGH, Co. D, 26th Infantry. "Preceded the assault waves on a combat patrol in the advance October 5, 1918. When the officer commanding was killed he directed the operation with skill and heroism. Though severely wounded, under the fire of five machine guns on front and flanks, he with one other man attacked the gun on his front, killed the gunner and turned the captured gun on the enemy guns still in action, enabling his patrol to withdraw the information gained."

GENERAL ORDERS }
NO. 6 }

The Brigade Commander cites the following officers and men for gallantry in action and devotion to duty during the operations of 2nd Infantry Brigade, American Expeditionary Forces, France, 1917-1918.

"MAJOR JAMES V. WARE; then a Captain in Command of Company H, 28th Infantry, displayed extraordinary hereoism near Hill 240, north of Exermond*,France, on the morning of October 5, 1918. His bravery, dash, and fearless-ness greatly inspired his men and assisted in the capture and consolidation of his position. During the period from October 5-9, 1918, this position was held by Captain Ware and the remainder of his company. He exhibited extraordinary bravery and fearlessness by remaining continually in the most advanced positions of his line, encouraging his men by his presence and excellent example.

CAPTAIN GEORGE E. BUTLER, 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary heroism and conspicuous bravery in action near Exermont, France, from October 4-12th, 1918. Captain Butler, then First Lieutenant, assumed command of the 1st Battalion, 28th Infantry, after two Battalion Commanders had been wounded, and led his battalion forward in the attack on Hill 240, near Exermont. He reorganized the battalion and on October 9, 1918, attacked and captured Hill 263; although he was gassed and in a bad condition physically, he refused to be evacuated and reorganized the remnants of his battalion and held his position until the Division was relieved.

First Lieutenant William H. Barry, 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary hereoism and bravery during the Argonne-Meuse Offensive, October 4-12, 1918. On the morning of 5th October 1918, Lieut. Barry assumed command of Company F, 28th Infantry, after his Company Commander became a casualty. He led his Company forward in the attack against Hill 240, near Exermont, France, October 5, 1918, and although two-thirds of his Company became casualties during this attack he reformed his Company time after time and personally led them forward in the attack. His complete disregard for personal safety and his devotion to duty greatly inspired his men and was a large factor in making it possible to take and hold the position.

SERGEANT HERBERT WARD, 57104, Company C, 28th Infantry. "For extraordinary hereoism in action near Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 19, 1918. Sergeant Ward took command of his platoon when his platoon leader was wounded, and reorganized it under intense machine gun fire, successfully leading it to its objective; arriving at the objective, on the plateau by Berzy-le-Sec. Sergeant Ward pushed ahead with a patrol under terrific machine gun fire and was shot through the head while endeavoring to locate the enemy's front line. Evacuated to hospital, Sergeant Ward insisted on being returned to duty and did so, although a rifle bullet lay lodged over his right eye. In the Argonne he was shot through the back, but refused to be immediately evacuated.

SERGEANT BARTLEY LARKIN, 57151, Company D, 28th Infantry. During the attack on Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 1, 1918. Sgt. Bartley Larkin, then Corporal, showed great courage and devotion to duty when he successfully reorganized his men while under heavy machine gun fire, being himself continually exposed to danger, continually running up and down the line encouraging his men as they dug in, only seeking shelter himself after all his men had finally dug themselves in. Sergeant Larkin was wounded himself a little later in the attack.

CORPORAL EARL J. WILBER, 57314, Company D, 28th Infantry, For extraordinary hereoism and devotion to duty. During the operations against Cantigny, May 28-31, 1918, he acted as a Regimental runner, carrying messages to and from Battalion Headquarters and front line trenches, the lines of communication being cut off by hostile artillery fire as fast as they could be re-established and the only means of communication were by foot messenger. On the first day of the operations, Corporal Wilber was rendered unconscious by a large caliber shell, after recovering was ordered to the rear by the Battalion Surgeon, but refused to be evacuated, and continued with his duties until the Regiment was relieved.

SERGEANT ROBERT B. MOORE, 56758, Company B, 28th Infantry, For extraordinary heroism and bravery during the Meuse-Argonne by bringing rations and water up to the front lines during the day of the battle, and upon returning from the lines he assisted three wounded men to the rear and a place of cover.

CORPORAL DAVID B. STEWART, 57297, Company D, 28th Infantry, For extraordinary heroism while under intense machine gun fire in the attack on Hill 240 in the Argonne Forest, October 5, 1918. Corporal Stewart then Private showing great courage and devotion to duty, called for a German-speaking comrade, and advanced thru woods for about one hundred fifty yards in front of his Company, capturing two machine guns and twelve prisoners who delayed the advance. Turning the prisoners over to a man going to the rear, he again joined his Company, being wounded as his Company reached its final objective.

SERGEANT CLAIR A. WALLACE, 57102, Company C, 28th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action at Soissons and in the Meuse-Argonne. At both Soissons and in the Meuse-Argonne, when his seniors had been either killed or wounded, Sergeant Wallace reorganized his platoon under intense enemy fire and successfully consolidated his objective. At Berzy-le-Sec, Sergeant Wallace took command of the remnants of a Company of Engineers and led them thru a hail of machine gun fire, on the final attack on Berzy-le-Sec.

SERGEANT JOHN TO WINTERS, 57188, Company C, 28th Infantry. For exceptional gallantry at Cantigny, May 29, 1918. Sergeant Winters was in charge of a ration detail bringing food and water to the front line trenches by the Villers-Tournelle-Cantigny road. The eneym's artillery constantly fired on this road and it was crossed by bands of machine gun fire. Dsepite this fact, Sergeant Winters took his party through more than a mile of intense shell fire, in which he himself was severely wounded, and succeeded in delivering rations to his Company. July 1918, at Soissons, France, Sergeant Winters repeated his heroic acts, repeatedly bringing rations thr heavily shelled areas.

REGIMENTAL SERGEANT MAJOR HENRY W. ELLIOTT, 28th Infantry. "For exceptional courage and devotion to duty from date of arrival of Regiment in France, 26 June 1917, to the signing of Peace, 29 June 1919. During all of this time, and expecially during the oritical days in June and July, 1918, by his devotion to duty, his conscientious work, and mental ability, he added materially to the success of the 28th Infantry in the four major operations participated in by the Regiment.

PRIVATE 1/CL HARRY KRUSE, 57026, Company H, 28th Infantry. At Berzy-le-Sec, July 1918, Private volunteered to go on a patrol to reconnoiter the enemy's position. This patrol was caught in a double barrage, laid down both by American and German guns. Private Riddle, a member of the patroll, had his arm blown off, and Private Kruse, at great personal risk, went to his assistance and succeeded in bringing him back inside of the American lines.

PRIVATE 1/CL RALPH P. EDGAR, 3487057, Company G, 28th Infantry, In the Meuse-Argonne battle after destroying an enemy machine gun nest, displayed conspicuous bravery in going to the assistance of a wounded man, administering first aid and later removing him to a place of safety while under terrific machine gun fire.

CORPORAL MAURICE W. WATSON, 56279, Headquarters Company, 28th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action at Cantigny May 1918. Corporal Watson displayed great bravery after having his leg broken by shell fire he lay in the field all day and fired all of his ammunition against the German counter-attacks and after expending his own ammunition he obtained a French rifle and fired VB Grenades.

CORPORAL WILLIS J. SELF, 57075, Company C, 28th Infantry. At Cantigny, Soissons, and the Meuse-Argonne he repeatedly delivered messages thru terrific shell fire and machine gun fire. At Soissons he accompanied his Company Commander on a hazardous patrol and in a duel with a German rifleman came out victor. On the plateau at Berzy-le-Sec, he carried messages up and down the fron line under heavy machine gun fire. In the Argonne, as a member of a patrol, he pushed far ahead of our advancing lines and assisted, after hand to hand fighting, in capturing a large machine gun nest.

MESS SERGEANT FRANK GARSKI, 56298, Machine Gun Company, 28th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism and devotion to duty during the operations at Soissons, July 1918. Making a trip every nigh to the front line under intense enemy artiller fire, he always succeeded in locating the Company although on several it required the entire night to find the Company as the exact location was never known to him. His extraordinary courage and devotion to duty helped materially in the success of the operations.

2ND LIEUTENANT BENJAMIN H. GARDNER, 28th Infantry. Lieut. Gardner displayed extraordinary heroism during the Aisne-Marne Battle July 1918. During the advance of his Battalion from the 2nd to the rd objectives, he reorganized a platoon of demoralized Infantry and led them against a strong Machine Gun position. This platoon was successful in its mission but Lieut. Gardner was killed by snipers before it arrived at its objective.

PRIVATE JOHN L. COCKILL, 57736, Headquarters Company, 28th Infantry. For exceptional heroism and devotion to duty. Exposed himself to rifle and machine gun fire to maintain liaison between the front line and the Battalion P.C.The Battalion Commander and all the officers having been killed or wounded he joined another platoon with which he fought and displayed remärkable self-denial and utter contempt for danger.

CORPORAL RALPH HATHAWAY, 56118, Headquarters Company, 28th Infantry. Displayed untiring devotion to duty and utter disregard for personal danger as a motorcycle courier during the Aisne-Marne Battle, July, 1918. He successfully carried messages to and from Regimental Headquarters to Brigade Headquarters thru shelled areas, thereby very materially aiding in the operation by maintaining liaison.

PRIVATE OLLIE B. MASON, 57757, Company G, 28th Infantry. A soldier with splendid qualities of courage and bravery. During the St.Miehel*3Offensive, September 12-13, 1918 displayed great gallantry and devotion to duty.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL B. R. LEGGE, Headquarters 1st Division. An officer of exceptional qualities of tactics and leadership. As Adjutant of the 26th Infantry during the Soissons operation July 18-23, 1918, when all senior officers had been killed he took command of the regiment and directed its movements the last day of the battle. In the Meuse-Argonne operation he led his battalion successfully through five days of terrific fighting displaying many times an utter disregard for personal safety and danger.

By command of Brigadier General Bamford,

George J. Forster
Captain, Infantry,
Acting Brigade Adjutant.

General Orders
No. 26.

1. The 28th Infantry was charged in orders of the 10th French Army Corps and of 1st Division, American Expeditionary Forces, with the taking of CANTIGNY.

With only three days for preparation, the operation was carried out with such dash, precision and efficiency as to prove to our Allies and to our own troops in this, the first real offensive of the U.S. troops in France, that the U.S. troops have the highest soldierly qualities. The taking was easy and the loss light; consolidation was accurately and quickly accomplished;- the five successive counter attacks were repulsed with ease and great loss to the enemy.

Not the taking, consolidating or repelling of counter attacks were the real test of the soldierly qualities of the personnel of this regiment, but the holding for three days and nights until properly relieved, and danger of counter attacks had passed.

Swept by the fire of hidden machine guns, pounded by all the enemy artillery in front of three divisions and fired into many times by enemy aeroplanes hovering over the position at 300 to 600 meters elevation, this regiment sustained losses among its officers and men which many veteran regiments would not have stood.

The sustaining of these losses, without the happy distraction of combat to assist them, was the true test of discipline and the highest soldierly qualities and gives assurance to our Allies that the U.S. soldier is a worthy and dependable comrade; and to the soldiers of our country that American manhood has not lost those qualities of courage, endurance and devotion to duty that shone forth so strongly on both sides in our Civil War.

2. The Regimental Commander takes great pleasure in publishing for the information of the command, the following letter of the Division Commander and the indorsement of our Brigade Commander:

"Headquarters First Division,
American Expeditionary Forces,
France, June 2, 1918.

From: Commanding General, First Division.
To: Commanding Officer, 28th Infantry. (Thru Commanding General 2nd. Brig.)
Subject: Commendation of the 28th Infantry for capture and holding Cantigny.

1. The Division Commander takes great pleasure and feels it his duty to recognize as much as in him lies, the gallant and efficient action and bravery of your regiment in the taking and holding of Cantigny for three days, May 28th, 29th and 30th, under the most determined resistance and repeated counter attacks of the enemy. Your losses in officers and men were very large, and the strain upon you very great, but you won. Your conduct was admirable.

2. The Division Commander will use every effort to cause due recognition to be given to all worthy instances of gallantry and self sacrifice. Communicate the thanks of the Division Commander to your regiment.

GENERAL ORDER No. 11.875 "D" (Extract)

After approval of the General Commander-in-Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, the Marshal of France Commander-in-Chief of the French Armies of the East, cites in the ARMY ORDERS :

28th REGIMENT OF U.S. INFANTRY :

" A regiment inspired by a magnificent offensive
" spirit. On the 28th of May 1918, under command of " Colonel H.E. ELY, this regiment rushed forward
" with irresistible dash to attack a strongly forti" fied village. It reached all its objectives and " held the conquered ground in spite of repeated
" counter-attacks. "

Headquarters Fifth Division,
American Expeditionary Forces,
A. P. O. #745, 6th May, 1919.

To the Twenty-Eighth Infantry:-

1. I commanded the 28th Infantry from December 15th, 1917, to July 15th, 1918. During this time the regiment underwent a course of most intensive training, took its place in the Toul Sector, where it sustained strong raids on the part of the enemy and made successful raids itself; it afterwards moved to the Montdidier Sector, a very lively sector, sustaining and making raids.

2. The 28th Infantry, during all this period, had an exceedingly high morale, an excellent esprit de corps, and very superior discipline. It is probable that on this account it was selected, after careful consideration, as the regiment in all the American Expeditionary Forces to make the first American offensive, the capture of Cantigny. It captured Cantigny May 28th, 1918, a most brilliant action, highly praised not only by our own superior officers, but by the French, under whom we were then acting. In this action the regiment lost over one half of its officers, in killed and wounded, and over one third of its men, those actually participating in the action. The sustaining of these losses is evidence of its superior discipline; it accomplished everything asked of it; it never gave up an inch of territory it had gained. The result of this first American offensive showed our French and English allies, as well as our own people, the high class of the American soldier.

3. I have followed the doings of the regiment since with much interest and have been informed by Major General Summerall and others that it has always retained this high state of discipline and morale, which makes it stand out as one of the very best, if not the very best regiment in the American Army.

4. I am proud to have commanded it.

H. E. Ely,
Major General.

AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES
Coblenz, Germany, June 11, 1919.

To the 28th Infantry:

If I were asked why the First Division was First, I should say that one of the principal reasons was the 28th Infantry. The history of the 28th Infantry in the Great War, while intensely interwoven with the operations of its sister regiments and organizations of the First Division, contains distinctive achievements that had a marked influence upon the career of the Division and upon the reputation of American troops. For a long time after our entry into the war, the value of our forces was an unknown quantity. While our allies were anxiously wondering whether our soldiers would endure the terrible ordeal of real battle, our enemies were contemptuous of our untrained and untried Army.

It fell to the lot of the 28th Infantry, at Cantigny, to dispel forever any doubts. The resolution of its advance, the tenacity of its resistance to counter-attacks and shell fire and the courageous endurance of its losses became an inspiration not only to the American Army but to our allies and the corresponding discouragement to our enemies.

At Berzy-le-Sec, the task of upholding the reputation of the American troops was again thrust upon the 28th Infantry. This strong objective had defied the French Division to which it had originally been assigned. When it was transferred to the First Division, it was faced by the 28th Infantry. With the close cooperation of the 26th Infantry, the 28th made one of the most gallant charges of the campaign and carried the position in a manner that demonstrated the value of the American soldier as a factor in the war.

The reputation of the regiment was such that on one occasion, a French General, who was offered an American regiment in a great emergency, asked for one of two regiments and he named the 28th Infantry as first choice. At St. Mihiel, it was a scout platoon of the 28th Infantry that effected the junction of the First Division with the troops from the opposite side of the salient and at the Meuse-Argonne, the regiment sustained its reputation for hard fighting in spite of opposition and losses that would have baffeled any but veteran troops of the first class.

Many instances of individual heroism of the officers and soldiers of this regiment have received recognition by both the French and American governments but they only reflect the spirit that animated the entire personnel and made the regiment invincible.

C. P. Summerall,
Major General.

GENERAL ORDERS
No. 69.

1. The Commanding Officersdesires to call the attention of all officers and men of this command to the words of congratulation offered to the 28th Infantry as a unit, upon the decoration of the Regimental Colors by Marshal Petain at Coblenz, 18 July 1919.

2. Marshal Petain stated that he desired to congratulate the 28th Infantry upon their fine work at Soissons from July 18th to July 23r. 1918; furthermore, that France, as a Nation, appreciated the splendid efforts put forth by the Regiment at all times.

Par. 2. The Brigade Commander desires, in addition, to commend the following organizations and individuals of the Brigade for services on the morning of March 1st, 1918:
2nd Battalion, 6th F. A. - Rapid opening of Normal barrage. Maintaining accurate fire under heavy hostile fire. In addition, Battery "E" is mentioned for rapid resupply of ammunition under heavy fire, Battery "F" for accurate fire at night on a hostile working party near our wire and the 4th section, Battery "D", for maintaining the rate of fire prescribed under an exceedingly heavy bombardment by enemy which produced destructive hits on emplacement; fearless exposure while removing from the emplacement logs thrown in front of the gun during bombardment and continuing at great risk, to serve a gun injured by enemy fire.

1. It becomes the privilege and proud duty of the Brigade Commander to communicate the following letter to the First Artillery Brigade:-

American Expeditionary Forces,
France, March 11, 1918.

From: Division Commander.
To: General C. P. Summerall, Commanding 1st Artillery Brigade.
Subject: Action of Artillery Brigade in REMIERES and RICHECOURT Raids, March 11, 1918.

I wish to express to you and to the officers and men of your command my appreciation of the efficiency of your work in the raids just completed.

The accuracy and effectiveness of the fire of your guns has enabled the raiding detachments to perform their missions without interference by the enemy and without loss of a man, and has undoubtedly inflicted heavy losses on the enemy in addition to destroying his fortifications.

The infantry has been inspired with a great confidence by the assurance of instant and effective support by the Artillery.

Please communicate my congratulations to your command.

(Signed) R. L. Bullard,
Major General, N. A.

2. The Brigade Commander desires to add his profound appreciation of the efficiency of the services and the high order of duty to which the Division Commander has so generously testified. In acquitting itself of the grave responsibilities that have rested upon it, in establishing a standard for the action of Artillery during the formative period of our greatly augmented forces, this Brigade has vindicated the methods of discipline, training and soldierly deportment that have been exacted throughout the command. By continuation of these virtues and by earnestness of purpose and devoted zeal on the part of officers and men, the Brigade will enhance its reputation and will add new standards to the traditions of the Arm.

3. This Order will be read to every battery, company and detachment of the Brigade within six hours after its receipt at each place.

1. At the conclusion of the operation and defense of CANTIGNY, the Brigade Commander desires to express his profound admiration of the high soldierly qualities, the marked efficiency, and the admirable spirit displayed by the officers and men of the Brigade in the performance of the duties that devolved upon them.

Reports from the Infantry officers show that the support afforded by the artillery fire as well as the preparation for the attack left nothing to be desired.

The repeated efforts of the enemy to recapture the position were largely frustrated by the quick and accurate response of the batteries when called upon for any class of fire.

The cheerful devotion to duty during the days and nights that followed the action, when continued action of the guns permitted little rest and their service involved great fatigue, is worthy of the highest commendation.

The performance of the Brigade insures future success in what ever operations await us, and it is incumbent upon all to cherish those soldierly virtues for which the Command is already distinguished.

1st F.A. Brigade, A.E.F.,
A.P.O. 729, June 5, 1918.

Memorandum to C. O. 1st Amm. Train.

The attention of the Brigade Commander is invited to the excellent service rendered by the Ammunition Train last night. The 10th Corps, after having assured the Brigade Munitions Officer that they would deliver 9,000 rounds of 75 m/m ammunition to the reserve positions of the new French regiment, informed us at 10:30 P.M. that transportation would be furnished and delivery effected by our Ammunition Train. Despite a serious shortage of men for the number of trucks employed, the Motor Battalion by speeding up the work assigned to it and by a display of fine cooperation succeeded in making the delivery of not only this 9,000 rounds but an additional 3,000 rounds to our own battery positions.

This work was performed in addition to the evacuation of ammunition from old positions near Villers-Tournelle and Broyes.

The manner in which the Ammunition Train has performed the arduous duties required of it in this sector reflects great credit upon the administration and upon the spirit of the personnel.

The accomplishment on the night of June 4th, reflects a high degree of efficiency on the part of all concerned and the Brigade Commander desires to extend his high commendation on the zeal and devotion to duty which made the deed possible.

My Dear Colonel Kennedy

Your letter of October 20th, congratulating me on behalf of the Fifth Field Artillery, has touched me more deeply than anything which I have experienced. Theloyalty and good wishes of such a superb command of officers and men is a heritage in which I take supreme pride.

While advancement to a higher command is a promotion for which I am most grateful, it is with a feeling of genuine regret that I severed my intimate personal relations with the 5th Field Artillery, and I shall ever consider the command of the 1st Field Artillery Brigade as one of the chief honors of my life. It was indeed due to the efficiency and loyalty of the splendid officers and men of that command that whatever efforts I was able to make was brought to the attention of my superiors. I am therefore chiefly indebted to the members of your command for all the good that has come to me since my arrival in France.

I hope that you will convey to the officers and men of the 5th Field Artillery my deep appreciation of their remembrance and the assurance of my abiding interest in all that concerns my future welfare.

With my earnest wishes for your continued success and safety of your command, I am,

Faithfully yours,

American Expeditionary Forces

France, 30 October, 1918.

From: Commanding General, V Army Corps.

To: Commanding General, 1st Field Artillery Brigade, (Through Commanding General, 1st Division).

Subject: Commendation.

1. I desire to commend most earnestly the officers and soldiers of the 1st Field Artillery Brigade for the conspicuous devotion to duty, the fine morale exhibited by them, and the great assistance that the Brigade rendered to this Corps during the operations that have been in progress since the relief of the 1st Division.

2. On account of the need for artillery, this Brigade was retained actively in the Corps front during the period when it was necessary to relieve the remainder of the 1st Division for rest. recruitment, and training. In spite of the fact that the personnel of the 1st Field Artillery Brigade has been without rest during this time, they have rendered services of the highest value, and have exhibited a self-sacrificing devotion to duty which is worthy of the 1st Division and of the best traditions of our service. With such troops our future success is assured.

American Expeditionary Forces

France, 2 November, 1918.

From: Commanding General, V Army Corps.

To: Brigadier General D. E. Aultman, Chief of Artillery, V Army Corps.

Subject: Commendation.

I desire to convey to you and to the Officers and Soldiers of all Artillery serving in this Corps, my profound appreciation and my high admiration of the brillant manner in which the Artillery of all classes has performed the difficult tasks allotted to it, especially during the advance on November First.

Although the Artillery has been constantly in action day and night, sustaining the battle since the beginning of the present offensive, it has responded with a self-sacrificing devotion to duty and a superb efficiency that is beyond all praise. While our dauntless Infantry have advanced against the enemy's prepared positions with a courage that elicits our greatest admiration, it must be recognized that without the powerful and skilful co-operation of the Artillery, it would have been impossible to accomplish the results which they have so brilliantly achieved.

The tremendous volume of fire, the skilful arrangement of all objectives, and the perfect coordination with the Infantry and machine guns, have made the action of November first a model of completeness, and it must stand as a tribute to the able administrative officers who conceived the plans, and to the technical ability and the fidelity to duty of those who executed them.

I beg that you will convey to the Officers and Soldiers of all units of Artillery, the foregoing sentiments, and will assure them of my abiding wishes for their continued success in the campaigns that lie before them.

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH ARMY CORPS
American Expeditionary Forces

5th November, 1918.

From: The Chief of Artillery, 5th Army Corps.

To: The Commanding General, 1st F. A. Brigade.

Subject: Commendation.

I transmit herewith, letter of commendation from the Corps Commander regarding the action of the Artillery in the operations of November 1st.

In transmitting this letter I desire to add my own thanks and appreciation to you and to the officers and men of your Brigade for the hearty cooperation that has resulted in such a brilliant success.

To have enabled our Infantry to advance in one day over a distance of 9 kilometers with small loss, capturing over 100 guns, 200 machine guns, and more than 2.000 prisoners, is an achievement of which the Artillery may well be proud, and I congratulate your entire command on having so well performed its share in the operation.

I desire that the contents of the letter of the Corps Commander be made known to the officers and men of your command, as well as my own appreciation of their splendid conduct.

(SGD.) DWIGHT E. AULTMAN

HEADQUARTERS FIRST FIELD ARTILLERY BRIGADE,
AMERICAN FORCES IN GERMANY,
U.S.A.P.O. #729.

August 16, 1919.

NUMBER 14.)

The Brigade Commander cites the following officers and men for gallantry in action and devotion to duty:

Private John Wesley Edwards, 126795, Hdqrs. Co., 7th Field Artillery,
"acting as runner ot Regimental Headquarters during the entire period from October 1, to November 9, 1918, displayed high devotion to duty and utter disregard of personal danger delivering many important messages successfully through heavy shell fire."

Private William Jude Goyette, 127933, Hdqrs. Co., 7th Field Artillery,
"acting as runner at Regimental Headquarters during the entire period from October 1, to November 9, 1918, displayed high devotion to dutyand an utter disregard of personal danger delivering many important messages successfully through heavy shell fire."

2nd Lieut. Benjamin T. Abrams - 7th Field Artillery,
"at Aisne-Marne Offensive, July 19, 1918, during an annihilating shell fire, during which he was severely wounded, rendered valuable services to wounded men, with no thought of personal safety nor comfort. He refused personal aid until all the wounded men had been dressed and properly taken care of."

Private 1st Class Kenneth R. Vesler, 127766, Battery "D", 7th Field Artillery,
"at Aisne-Marne Offensive, July 18 - 25, 1918, as liaison operator rendered faithful and untiring service thru out the operations, displaying remarkable ability and devotion to duty heedless of all personal danger, repeatedly went out under heavy shell fire carrying messages and maintaining liaision between the Infantry and Artillery."

Corporal John F. McGhee, 127648, Battery "D", 7th Field Artillery,
"during Meuse-Argonne Offensive, between October 8th and 12th, 1918, after having been severely gassed while on liaision where he rendered valuable work, returned to the firing battery where he continued his valuable service as a gunner, refusing to be evacuated to the hospital."

Private Matt Piontek, 127653, Battery "D", 7th Field Artillery,
"during the Mondidier*Noyon Defensive, on April 28, 1918, while driving a wheel team on a slat wagon, carrying logs to the front, encountered violent shelling on the road. The other two drivers left their teams, leaving Private Piontek alone with all the horses. One of his own horses was shot down under him. He coolly unhitched the other horses and brought them back to safety. All horses were wounded."

Private 1st Class Archie E. Pinnock, 127652, Battery "D", 7th Field Artillery,
"while at Ansauville Sector, between March 1st and April 3, 1918, continually going out under heavy shell fire which tore up the lines of communication and repairing same, without any thought whatever of personal safety."

Corporal William H. Odell, 127650, Battery "D", 7th Field Artillery,
"while at Ansauville Sectior between March 1st and April 3, 1918, did continually go out under heavy shelling and repair wire which had been blown away, without any thought of personal safety, but only with devotion to duty, thus maintaining communication."

Private Archie E. Pinnock, 127652, Battery "D",7th Field Artillery,

"at Mondidier*-Noyon Defensive, between May 25 - 30, 1918, did show conspicuous gallantry under violent artillery bombardment of heavy shells, by repeatedly going out under this bombardment and repair and maintain communications between the firing battery and the O.T., thereby enabling the firing battery to fulfill its mission."

Corporal William H. Odell, 127650, Battery "D",7th Field Artillery,

"at Mondidier*-Noyon Defensive between May 25 - 30, 1918, did show conspicuous gallantry under violent artillery bombardments of heavy shells, in establishing and maintaining communications after same were being continually blown away, thus enabling the battery to fulfill its missions."

"Private John J. Quinn, 127739, Battery "D", 7th Field Artillery,

"did at all operations that this regiment participated in, namely, Mondidier*-Noyon Defensive, April 23 - July 7, 1918; Aisne-Marne Offensive, July 18 - 25, 1918; St. Mihiel Offensive, September 12 - 13, 1918; Meuse-Argonne Offensive, Octoberl - 6, 1918, voluntarily drive the battery water cart from the echelon to the firing battery under heavy shell fire, thereby supplying the men with water for which they were in great need. This man was going practically day and night during all of these operations with no thought of personal safety nor comfort, but with great devotion to duty. Thru-out his service, driving the water cart, he showed great coolness and daring, never failing to bring water where others had failed."

2nd Lieut. John R. Smith (then a sergeant). 7th Field Artillery,

"during the Meuse-Argonne Offensive, did serve in the capacity of executive of the battery between October 26 - November 1, 1918, in which he handled the battery in the most admirable fashion, showing a complete disregard for danger and inspiring the men to do their duty. His example of cool and determined bravery during this period, under continual shell fire, insured the proper firing of the battery. His devotion to duty and maintainance of discipline, performing the duties of a commissioned officer, are worthy of the finest traditions of the army."

Corporal Harry B. Hancock, 127454, Battery "C", 7th Field Artillery,

"near Cantigny, France, on May 28, 29 and 30, 1918, while on liaison duty with the Infantry, repeatedly volunteered and carried messages of great importance from the Infantry lines to the Regimental P.C. By his courage and contempt of danger, he set an example to all others engaged in that work. Particularly on 28th May, 1918, when all lines of communication had been destroyed, and although he had been gassed he went thru a heavy enemy barrage and delivered his messages."

Private 1st Class George R. Gardner, 127437, Battery "C", 7th Field Artillery.

"near Exermont, France, on 4th October, 1918, while on duty with the firing battery, although slightly wounded himself, he attended his wounded comrades under exceptionally heavy enemy shell fire, helping them to shelter and attending them until they could be removed."

1st Sergeant Frank L. Hayden, 127101, Battery "A", 7th Field Artillery.

"near Eglaisefontaine *1, France, on October 4th, 1918, being at the battery position displayed marvelous coolness, courage and contempt for personal danger, while his battery was being heavily bombarded by heavy enemy shell fire. He remained upright at his post, under the heaviest fire directing and encouraging his men to perform their duties, rendering prompt aid to the wounded and by his splendid example of courage and self-control, helped to preserve the morale and efficiency of his battery."

Sergeant George W. Parmer, 127157, Battery "A", 7th Field Artillery,

"near Apremont, France, on October 5th, 1918, voluntarily carried a message to the battery position of his battery over a road exposed to enemy view and constantly raked with enemy shell fire. In so doing his horse was killed under him, but he nevertheless proceeded without regard for personal safety beyond the demand of duty."

Corporal John Duggan, 127070, Battery "A", 7th Field Artillery,

"near Servilliers*2, France, on May 25th, 1918, showed contempt for personal danger by voluntarily returning to the battery position which had been subjected to heavy enemy gas shell fire, and removed all fire control equipment which was abandoned when the personnel were ordered to abandon the position. The gas penetrated his mask and he was treated at the First Aid Station, and later evacuated to the Hospital."

Private Thomas J. Richards, 127171, Battery "A", 7th Field Artillery.

"near Servilliers *2, France, on May 25h, 1918, Private Richards showed contempt for personal danger by voluntarily returning to the battery position, which had been subjected to heavy enemy gas shell fire, and removed fire control equipment which was abandoned when the personnel were ordered to abandon the position. The gas penetrated his mask and he was treated at the First Aid Station and later evacuated to the Hospital."

Corporal Chris S. Elliott, 127074, Battery "A", 7th Field Artillery.

"near Servilliers *2, France, on May 24th, 1918, Corporal Elliott displayed marvelous coolness, courage and contempt for personal danger while on duty as lineman, between P.C. and Battery Position, repeatedly repaired lines while under heavy shell fire, enabling the battery to carry out it's mission, successfully."

From: Major General C. P. Summerall, U.S.A.

To: The Commanding General, 1st Field Artillery Brigade (through the Commanding General, 1st Division.)

Subject: Appearance of Brigade.

1. Realizing, as a former brigade commander, the difficulties under which the 1st Field Artillery Brigade labored in preparing the horses and materiel for the parade in New York City on September 10th, I desire to express to you my congratulations on the fine showing made by the Brigade, and upon the condition of the horses and the materiel.

2. These results were not obtained without enormous labor on the part of all concerned, but the success of the efforts put forth must be a rich reward for all concerned.

C. P. Summerall.

GENERAL ORDERS)
No. 15)

1. The Brigade Commander cites the following officers and men for gallantry in action and devotion to duty:-

Captain Stanley F. Bryan, 5th Field Artillery.
"acting as Battalion Commander during the Aisne-Marne Offensive, July 18-25, 1918, displayed high devotion to duty and utter disregard for personal danger by making advanced reconnaissances and personally establishing liaison with the Infantry in the face of hostile artillery and machine-gun fire, thereby insuring effective support and protection of the Infantry under his command."

Captain Lawrence M. Marks (then 2nd Lieut.) 5th Field Artillery
"as Battery Officer in a position near Beaumont, France, March, 1918, repeatedly displayed great courage and high devotion to duty, time and time again exposing himself to heavy enemy fire. The example set by his coolness and utter disregard for danger were an inspiration to the men of the command in holding an almost untenable position."

2nd Lieut.Fred L.Sherman (then Corporal) 5th Field Artillery.
"acting as gunner in a battery position near Welles-Perrennes* France, June 8th-9th, 1918, displayed great courage and high devotion to duty by continuing to lay and serve his piece after being severely gassed, refusing to be evacuated until the emergency created by the enemy - Montdidier-Noyon Offensive was terminated."

2nd Lieut. Lee W. Walker, 5th Field Artillery.
"acting as battery commander near Charpentry, France, October 5, 1918, displayed great courage and high devotion to duty by successfully withdrawing his battery from a position rendered untenable by enemy shell fire, under destructive bombardment and while heavy casualties were being suffered. Only the example set by his coolness and personal disregard of danger rendered the successful completion of this maneuver possible."

2nd Lieut.Robert C.Boyd (then a Corporal) 5th Field Artillery.
"on duty in a battery position near Beaumont, France, March 28, 1918, during an extremely heavy and accurate enemy fire for destruction, displayed extraordinary courage and high devotion to duty by twice leaving shelter and entering the shelled area to rescue wounded comrades."

2nd Lieut.Stephen L.Griffin (then a Corporal) 5th Field Artillery.
"serving in a battery position near Bathlemont*, France, November 21, 1917, displayed great courage and devotion to duty by abandoning safe shelter to rescue wounded comrades under heavy shell fire."

Sergeant Isaac J. Holland, 123306, Supply Co., 5th Field Artillery.
"during Meuse-Argonne operations, October 1st to November 8th, 1918, rendered faithful and untiring service throughout the operations, displaying remarkable ability and devotion to duty, heedless of all personal danger, going practically day and night, locating the batteries and maintaining liaison between the Supply Company, under hostile fire."

Color-Sergeant Jesse W. Jeffries, 124185, Headquarters Co., 5th Field Artillery.

"at Gannes, Montdidier-Noyon Sector, May 25th, 1918, while on duty as Stable Sergeant, Battery "C", 5th F.A., effected the removal of battery horses from stables under heavy shell fire, showing utter disregard for his own safety and displaying great devotion to duty."

Battalion Sergeant Major John P. McGuire (then Corporal) Hdqrs. Co., 5th F.A.

"near Soissons, on July 21, 1918, during a heavy bombardment of gas and high explosive, when all communication with his Battalion had been broken off by the shelling, maintained communication as a runner with the neighboring battalion, being forced to pass through heavy bombardments to maintain this communication."

Private Edward Doolin, 124135, Hdqrs. Co., 5th Field Artillery.

"at Mandres, on September 10th, 1918, showed great courage and devotion to duty by voluntarily remaining on duty at the battalion switch-board during a heavy bombardment while all other members of the battalion staff had sought cover."

Private Frank Young, 123634, Headquarters Co., 5th Field Artillery.

"during the St. Mihiel offensive on September 12, 1918, displayed great courage and disregard for his personal safety when he voluntarily and on his own initiative remained all night at a cross road which was under heavy shell fire, in order to maintain communication between the battalion P.C. and the forward P.C.'s of the batteries, maintaining a telephone station open there after the wiring party had run out of wire."

Private Frank Andrews, 123543, Headquarters Co., 5th Field Artillery.

"during the St. Mihiel offensive on September 12th, 1918, displayed great courage and disregard for his own personal safety when he voluntarily and on his own initiative remained all night at a cross road which was under heavy shell fire in order to maintain communication between the battalion P.C. and the forward P.C.'s of the batteries, maintaining a telephone station open there after the wiring party had run out of wire."

Supply Sergeant John Segerdahl, 123467, Headquarters Co., 5th F.A.

"at Mesnil St. Firmin, May 26th, 1918, after several linesmen had returned to the Central and reported that the telephone line to a forward O.T. could not be repaired due to gas, he volunteered to go out and repair the line. At complete disregard of his own safety, he repaired this line and re-opened communication.

Sergeant George W. Creighton, 123522, Headquarters Co., 5th F.A.

"at Soissons on July 22nd, 1918, displayed great courage and devotion to duty by refusing to be evacuated from his post as wireless operator after being buried in a trench by an exploding shell."

Cook Edward Pearson, 123510, Headquarters Co., 5th Field Artillery.

"at Exermont, France, on October 26th, 1918, remained in his kitchen and continued to cook after the building was more than half demolished by shell fire, displaying great courage and devotion to duty."

Private Rawson Dixon, Headquarters Co., 5th Field Artillery.

"at Mesnil St. Firmin, on May 26th, 1918, displayed great courage and devotion to duty by re-establishing the regimental wireless station during heavy shell fire after it had been demolished by an exploding shell."

Private William R. Williams, 123639, Headquarters Co., 5th Field Artillery.
"at Mesnil St. Firmin, France, on May 26th, 1918, displayed great courage and devotion to duty by re-establishing the regimental wireless station during heavy shell fire after it had been demolished by an exploding shell."

Private Orville A. Lowe, 123006, Headquarters Co., 5th Field Artillery.
"near Fleville, France, on November 1, 1918, displayed great courage under fire by removing a wounded comrade to a place of shelter, and obtaining first aid treatment for him, with total disregard for his own safety."

Corporal Julius Raffles, 124361, Headquarters Co., 5th Field Artillery.
"showed exceptional courage and devotion to duty by volunteering to bring back a wounded man from an observation post which was being shelled by enemy artillery, near Perrennes*, France, June 1, 1918."

Corporal Francis S. Morrison, 123566, Headquarters Co., 5th Field Artillery.
"near Hill 240 on October 25, 1918, displayed great courage and devotion to duty by voluntarily remaining on duty at a forward O.P., thus insuring liaison between the Infantry and Artillery. Although he was sick from gas, he remained on duty furnishing valuable information."

1st Sergeant Frank Bilowith, 123446, Headquarters Co., 5th Field Artillery.
"at Charpentry, France, on October 26th, 1918, displayed extraordinary courage and devotion to duty by entering shelled areas at the risk of his life to rescue wounded comrades."

Sergeant 1st Class George W. Munroe, 2713, Med. Det., 5th Field Artillery.
"in the Meuse-Argonne operations during the period from October 1st to 31st, inclusive, near Charpentry and Fleville, France, repeatedly exposed himself to heavy shell fire and other danger in order to care for and evacuate the wounded in his regiment. He showed at all times remarkable coolness and disregard for personal safety."

Private Albert G.Herrick,808296,Med.Det., 5th Field Artillery.
"in the Meuse-Argonne operations during the period October 1st to November 1st, 1918, did repeatedly expose himself to heavy shell fire, showing remarkable coolness at all times and regardless of personal danger carried out his duties as runner with the utmost dispatch. His soldierly qualities in the face of danger in the trials of warfare were worthy of the best traditions of the service."

Private Lester D.Hopkins,1501,Med.Det.,5th Field Artillery.
"in the Meuse-Argonne operations near Charpentry and Fleville, France, during the period from October 5th to 31st, 1918, repeatedly distinguished himself for his bravery and devotion to duty. In spite of the fact that he was suffering from the effects of gas, he refused to be evacuated and continued to care for the wounded of his battery as well as rendering such aid as was possible to the wounded of other organizations passing his station."

Private 1st Class Floyd D. Shuttleworth, 1781, Med. Det., 5th Field Artillery.
"did in the Montdidier-Noyon Sector on June 9th, 1918, distinguish himself for great bravery and devotion to duty in caring for wounded comrades under heavy shell fire and in spite of the fact that his battery was being heavily gassed at the time."

Private James F.Snyder, 1508, Med.Det.,5th Field Artillery.
"in the Meuse-Argonne operations, near Exermont and Hill 262, during the period from October 5th to 31st, 1918, repeatedly exposed himself to shell fire. His bravery and devotion to duty in caring for the wounded of his battery made his services indespensable at a time when there were many wounded and few to care for them."

1st Sergeant John Wolotkevicz, 123681, Battery "A", 5th Field Artillery.
"did during the full period of American participation in the war, show extraordinary zeal, ability and soldierly character, under all circumstances. Repeatedly under the most trying conditions he was in full command of the battery echelon, and in the face of fire or bombing his unusual example of coolness and judgement preserved the lives of men and animals many times."

Supply Sergeant Horace W. Beckwith, 123705, Battery "A" 5th Field Artillery.
"did during the Meuse-Argonne Offensive, on October 5th, 1918, near Eclisfontaine, France, in the face of heavy enemy shell fire, successfully lead his train of supplies to the battery position furnishing an unusual example of contempt of danger and control of personnel under fire."

Sergeant Irvan R. Furnish, 123715, Battery "A", 5th Field Artillery.
"did in the Aisne-Marne Offensive near Cutry, France, on the 20th of July, 1918, show marvelous courage and coolness in commanding his section and continuing his fire in the face of concentrated enemy shell fire and in spite of heavy casualties."

Private Joseph S. Mattos, 123870, Battery "A", 5th Field Artillery. (deceased)
"during the Meuse-Argonne offensive from October 1st to October 5th, 1918, when he was killed in action, as driver of a ration cart, he repeatedly exposed himself to shell fire and bombing in order to keep the battery supplied with rations, showing a remarkable courage and devotion to duty."

Private Samuel A.Ogle, 123771, Battery "A", 5th Field Artillery. (deceased)
"during the Meuse-Argonne Offensive from October 1st to October 5th, 1918, when he was killed in action, as battery agent he repeatedly exposed himself to heavy enemy shell fire and gas carrying messages. He displayed an utter contempt of danger and a remarkable coolness and devotion to duty at all times."

Cook Samuel B.Pierson,123772, Battery "A", 5th Field Artillery.
"during the Meuse-Argonne Offensive on October 5th, 1918, near Charpentry, France, when two of his fellow cooks had been killed, volunteered to take their place under heavy shell fire and prepare food for the battery."

Sergeant William H. Warnick, 123709, Battery "A", 5th Field Artillery.
"in preparation for the St. Mihiel Offensive, near Mandres aux Quartre Tours, France, on September 5th, 1918, showed remarkable courage and contempt of danger by continuing to direct the work on his gun pit during several hours of severe harassing fire, without protection of any kind."

Corporal Willie M.Devine,123825,Battery "A",5th Field Artiller
"did, in the Aisne-Marne Offensive, near Cutry, France, July 19th, to 27th, inclusive, repeatedly expose himself in absolute disregard of personal safety, to bombardments of gas and high explosive, while unloading and distributing the ammunition of the battery, showing a courage and an excellence of morale which was an inspiration to the men about him."

Private 1st Class George E. Long, 123768, Battery "A", 5th F.A. (deceased.)

"from October 24th, 1917 to October 5th, 1918, when he was killed in action near Charpentry, France, he was present in all operations of the battery and showed an extraordinary gallantry and devotion to duty. As a messenger he was called upon to risk his life repeatedly in passing through shelled areas or gas concentrations, but never once did he hesitate in the face of danger or fail to accomplish his mission in spite of distressing difficulties."

Private 1st Class John F. McKenna, 123769, Battery "A", 5th Field Artillery.

"in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive, near Charpentry, France, October 5th, 1918, after the battery position had been evacuated, he risked his life by remaining to carry the wounded to a place of safety, in the face of concentrated enemy shell fire."

MEMORANDUM:

Men of the 7th Field Artillery, we have been together since the birth of the regiment but the misfortunes of war demand that we should part. It has been an honor and pleasure to have served with you, it was glorious to command you in battle. You arrived on the last battle field after an exhausting march, you went to battle with the highest spirits and fought with courage and devotion. You have attained the high pinnacle and I know that no stain will ever dim your splender.

I bid you all good bye and may God be with you.

My dear Colonel Ruggles:- - -

As my brigade passes into divisional reserve and your support passes from it to my successor I am very anxious to have you know how much I appreciate the able and constant assistance of your regiment. Its support has been always satisfactory and reassuring and has in every instance been effectively, rapidly and easily obtained. inevery special mission my observers have attested the power and accuracy of your regiment's fire, while in my attack on the COTE DE CHATILLON the violence and force of its support contributed appreciably to the result.

I deplorevery much the thought that through my brigade the well earned relief of your regiment must have been deferred. However,it is only fairness to add that I had no intimation of the return of your command until after that had been effected.

With my best wishes and thanks to your regiment and yourself,

I am,

Very cordially,

Douglas MacArthur.

MEMORANDUM:

1. The Commanding Officer has just received, with pleasure, a letter commenting upon the excellant way in which Company D constructed the barracks for the Artillery School, and in particular the fine handling of construction parties by some of the non-commissioned officers of the Company.

2. It is with similar pleasure that the Commanding Officer noted to-day, that notwithstanding the terrible condition of the roads, our transportation moved successfully, outclassing that of other organizations which we passed on the way. We owe much to our black-smiths who worked night and day that our animals might be rough shod.

3. It is with pride that these two instances of the true engineer-working spirit are mentioned as we are on our way to the front. Let us keep up the good work. Many of us may follow in the footsteps of our comrades, Corporal Russell W. Sprague, Corporal Charles G. Hewett and Private W.E. Brown, but keep ever in mind the words of Company A: "Good luck, and give 'em hell".

Memorandum:

1. The Commanding Officer of the Regiment notes with much satisfaction the absence of casualties in Engineer troops during the heavy gas attack by the Germans on the night of May 4-5.
2. In this attack more than 5,000 shells of the Blue Cross, Yellow Cross, Phosgene, Green Gas, B & T .Stuff, were fired, and the concentration of gas was very heavy. One Regiment of Infantry suffered casualties to the number of 670. The total casualties of the Engineer Regiment, of which more than two companies were in the same vicinity as that occupied by the infantry, was less than five.
3. The above speaks very highly of the excellence of the gas discipline maintained within the regiment, and to the thoroughness with which individuals have accepted their training. The Divisional Gas Officer complimented the Regiment on their lack of casualties in this, the heaviest gas attack through which American troops have gone.

France, May 14th, 1918.

From: Commanding General.
To: Major George F. Lewis, 1st Engineers
(Through Division Commander)

1. During the past three nights you have been in charge ofof all the arrangements and details of working from 800 to 2,000 men of Infantry and Engineer units in the construction of 6 kilometers of communication trench. The entire length of trench has been dug to at least 1 meter's depth and approximately 3 kilometers has been completed. The work was carried on in a dangerous area and the movement and guiding of the widely scattered units to their working places required great care in order to avoid the heavy losses from the enemy's artillery fire.

2. I wish to commend you for the success with which you carried out your arduous and difficult task without incurring the losses which might reasonably have been expected. I also wish to thank you for the energy and good judgement you have displayed.

3. The communication trench paralelling the ROUEN-LILLE National Road between the BOIS VILLERS and the front lines will be officially designated as Boyau Lewis.

"Tank Corps
Group XII. July 20, 1918.

"Report of Major Commanding XIIth Group of Tank Corps, on the aid given by a Company of Engineers, 1st D.I.U.S. during the battle of 18th July 1918.

"The XIIthh Group having no accompanying infantry and the passage of the great ravine of COEUVRES necessitating considerable work for clearing the roads, the C.O. of this group asked for a company of Engineers to the D.I.U.S. on the 17th morning. This company of Engineers stationed at Palesne was ordered to place itself at the disposal of the Tank Group at Mortefontaine. No trucks being available, it had to walk all the way through, the heat being very great. It reached its destination at 7:30. Once on the spot, the three sections gave invaluable aid, working with remarkable ardour and intelligence and obtaining wonderful results. The aid thus afforded was at least equal to the one that could have been obtained from a very good Infantry company accompanying and working with the group since a long time. Without this company of Engineers it is very likely that the group, which has no Infantry to accompany, could not have been able to climb on the hill and take part in the battle from the start.

"The way through Cutry for instance was not possible without fixing it up. During the fight the sections remained at the disposal of the group Commander, following the tanks closely.

"Signed X
"Commanding Group XII.

"The Company of Engineers of the 1st D.I.U.S. placed at the disposal of the tank group has been above all praise. I wouldd be pleased if officers and men receive due felicitations for their bravery and zeal.

General Orders
No. 2.

The following citation is announced:

The First Battalion, First U. S. Engineers, for distinguished service in the taking of Hill 269, Bois de Moncy, France, at 4 P.M. October 8th, 1918, during the Meuse-Argonne Operation. This battalion of Engineers with great courage and determination captured Hill 269, Bois de Moncy, together with many prisoners and machine guns, and successfully held it against strong enemy counter attacks. On October 9, 1918, and afterward, this battalion of Engineers, participated in the general attack of the First Division, obtaining all of their objectives and capturing prisoners.

The action of this battalion in the capturing of Hill 269 without the assistance of the special infantry weapons, other than the rifle and bayonet, is especially to be commended, in that they carried out a difficult mission outside of the line of their normal engineer duties with great skill, initiative and courage.

Subject: General Order No. 2, Fifth Army Corps.

1. The Chief Engineer, A.E.F. has just received copy of General Order No. 2, Fifth Army Corps, citing the First Battalion of the First Regiment for its distinguished service on the 8th of October, 1918, in taking Hill 269, Bois de Moncy.

2. The citation allows me to picture the valor and courage displayed by that organization, and the manner of their taking this position and promptness with which they carried their objective and carried out their mission is a record which should be a source of pride to each officer and soldier of the First Regiment of Engineers.

3. The Chief Engineer desires to express his pleasure and appreciation of the distinguished service of your regiment.

TO THE MEN OF THE FIRST U.S. ENGINEERS:

1. The undersigned in relinquishing command of the 1st Engineers desires to express his appreciation of the hearty co-operation and loyal support he has received from every officer and man in the regiment during the period in which we have served together.

2. The Division Commander this morning in bidding me good bye said that in his opinion the spirit of the First Engineers was undoubtedly higher than any other organization of the division. This should be a source of gratification and pride to every member of the regiment and a spur to every man to see that the regiment's enviable reputation in this respect is always maintained. We must, however, remember that every man in the engineer regiment of a division has a double duty to perform, not only his duty to the regiment of preserving its reputation and making it the most efficient organization possible, but also a duty of serving the division. It is only in carrying out this second duty, of always being able and willing to work for the benefit of the whole division no matter what sort of work may be required, that a divisional engineer regiment really fulfills the function for which it is organized.

3. This duty to the division has always been fullfilled by the First Engineers, and whether it was fighting, flag poles, or feed boxes, we believe we have produced the desired results.

4. In bidding you all good bye, I think none of you can appreciate just how much it means to me to leave the organization which I came over with; served with during many campaigns; and always considered "my regiment".

Good luck and God bless you.

Subject: Award of Fourragere.

1. The attached advance copy of a War Department General Order is furnished for your information.

The following copies of the citations, taken from press reports, are furnished in advance of receipt of the formal citations themselves. Regimental General Order publishing the citations will be issued when the citations are received:

French Order 24023 D:

E X T R A C T.

"First Engineers, First Division:

"This regiment brilliantly co-operated in the operations of the First American Division in the sector of Menil-la-Tour in January, February and March, 1918, displaying an admirable esprit de corps and the most praiseworthy ardor. It again distinguished itself in the attack of Cantigny in organizing the conquered terrain in spite of the violent reaction of the enemy artillery."

French Order 24024 D:

E X T R A C T.

"The First Regiment of Engineers:

"A regiment which under all circumstances displayed ardor in combat and the finest technical and moral qualities. During the counter-offensive to the south of Soissons it contributed to the success of the operations of the First American Division in attacking with the Infantry on July 20, 21 and 22 and capturing all its objectives. In the course of the operations between the Argonne and the Meuse from September to November, 1918, it again showed itself worthy of its magnificent reputation."

SUBJECT: Acknowledgement of Organization's Efficiency.

1. In justice to the Officers and men of your organization, it is only fair that acknowledgement be made of the willingness, energy and fine spirit which each driver and assistant displayed in the night and daywork required of them by this office in the distribution of rations during the recent move of the division to this sector.

2. Although working under constant strain and with what sleep they could obtain on the seats of their trucks, no grumbling was heard during the entire period and every order was obeyed with spirit and alacrity that speaks well for the discipline of your organization.

No. 1)

1. Upon relinquishing command of the 1st Supply Train, I desire to express to the officers and men of the train, my pride and satisfaction in having been privileged to command such a capable and loyal organization. Since assuming command on the 1st of August, I have found it necessary to call on both officers and men for service of the most trying and tiresome nature but of the highest importance to the Division and the successes which have so covered it with glory. During all of the trials and hardships, rendered more difficult because our work brought forth neither the applause of outsiders nor the personal satisfaction of a city taken at the point of the bayonet or of a hostile battery reduced to silence, there has been no word of complaint, no effort to evade duty.

2. The cessation of hostilities has confronted us with new problems. These problems must be solved by the same spirit of loyalty and obedience as the old ones so that, when you are returned to your country and homes, you may leave the train with that sense of pride in having been privileged to serve in so fine a command, which your Commanding Officer feels at this time.

REPORT OF MOTOR TRANSPORT INSPECTOR, FIRST DIVISION,
27th May 1919.

1. Inspection made this date of Companies A,B,C,F,E,D, First Supply Train and the following noted.

The general condition of this train is Excellent. There is evidence of keen supervision and frequent inspection. In a few cases the outer shells of mufflers were found missing. I was informed by the Adjutant these parts had been requisitioned, and were expected shortly. In appearance Company "F" takes first place in the train.

The second part of this volume contains the Addenda to Volumes I to XXI inclusive.

In the progress of the work of publishing the records, certain documents became available only after the volume in which they properly belonged had been published. In the majority of cases, these documents published as addenda were loaned by officers and men who served in the First Division during the war.

The additional General Orders, First Division, published as Addenda to Volume V comprise those which were rejected for publication when Volume V was published because they appeared to be of little or no historical value. Since that time it has been decided to include all the General Orders. To facilitate research in the General Orders, First Division, there is included in the Addenda to Volume V an index to the General Orders, First Division, showing the volumes in which the orders have been published.

OPERATIONS SECTION

Hqrs., American Inf. Div.,
February 14, 1918.

Memorandum for the General Commanding the 1st Brigade:

Subject: Change in the Plan of Defense and Emplacement of Units.

I. In view of the radical change in the Plan of Defense of the sector, the following orders are given:

a. Beaumont Zone:

The Company of Battalion F, located at Seicheprey, will be withdrawn to position 1 bis. during the night of the 15th-16th, February. Half of this company and its Commander will be placed in the draw 500 meters north of Beaumont. The rest of the company will be placed in Mandres.

This company will take over the mission prescribed for Company M/1 in instructions No. 3 of Headquarters under date of February 16.

b. Zone Rambucourt.

The effectives of Center I will be reduced to two companies (complete) during the night of February 15, 1916. The units withdrawn will be placed at Rambucourt. This will give two companies of Battalion I for the defense of Center G.

c. The Garrison of Center H will be reduced to 2 complete companies during the night of February 16-17. This organization will permit the localization of a complete company at the Beaumont Quarries for the defense of Center D and a complete company at Rambucourt for the defense of Center E.

d. Reserves:

Battalion M (less Co. M/2) which will continue to carry out its mission for the present and Battalion N and L, in case of alert, will occupy the first line of the second position. They will be under direct control of headquarters of the division.

By order of General Bullard.

FIRST AMERICAN DIVISION

Headquarters, February 15,1918.

From General Bullard, Commanding the 1st American Division,

To the General Commanding the XXXII Army Corps.

I. I have the honor to send you herewith as a report the order prescribing the reduction to two companies the troops occupying position 1 in Centers H and I.

The withdrawal of the Seicheprey Company leaves still in Center F three companies. The 3d will be withdrawn in the near future and the disposition prescribed by Note 471/S3 will then be realized.

II. The Seicheprey Company will constitute the garrison of Center B on position 1 bis. Company M 2, provisionally keeps its alert emplacement in Center A on position 1 bis.

Company M 2 will become available for the occupation of the second position as soon as the 3d Company of Center F will have replaced it in Center A.

III. A provisional alert order is given to Battalions L, M, and N for the occupation of the second position.

Subject: Work Details of Battalions L, M, and N.

1. In compliance with orders from Corps Headquarters Battalions L, M and N, are detailed for work on Position 2. This includes the Division and Brigade posts of command, the quarrying of rock and the construction of ammunition dumps.

2. Work details will be made by the District Engineer (Major Besson) under the direction of the Chief Engineer Officer.

3. Eight hours will sonstitute a day's work, but troops located more than 2 kilometers from their designated place of work will be allowed a reduction of 10 minutes working time for each kilometer, in excess of four (2 each way), they are required to march.

4. Organization commanders are not authorized to excuse men from this work beyond the necessary details for kitchen police, etc.

The Engineer Officer will keep a record of the strength of platoons reporting for work.

5. This order will be handed over by Commanders of Battalions L. M, and N, to the Commanding Officer of the Battalion relieving them, this transfer taking place at each relief.

Subject: Approval of Plan of Defense, Part I, and Provisional Instructions, No. 9.

I. I have the honor to send you herewith for your approval, first, Plan of Defense, first part; second, Provisional Instructions concerning the occupation and defense of the second position. I would be obliged if you would be good enough to let me know as soon as possible your decision, in order to be able to put into force the new dispositions which this Plan of Defense involves.

II. The villages of SEICHEPREY and BOUCONVILLE are included in position 1 bis. as advanced posts. The combat group, some machine guns, supported by one-half section, also the anti-tank guns, will constitute the garrison of these positions. The distance which separates position 1, eventually the zone of surveillance, from the position 1 bis, also the nature of terrain, make it necessary to create these islands, which can offer a strong resistance, if some shell-proof dugouts can be commenced there.

XIVRAY - MARVOISIN does not seem to come under the same heading because of its proximity to the enemy lines.

III. Centers X, Y, and Z on the second position each accomodate a battalion. This distribution is arbitrary and is only provisional.

From the time the works on that position are more advanced and its organization better known, these limits will be modified. Company M 2 continues its mission in case of alert on position 1 bis., also the 3d Company of Center F will not have been withdrawn.

2. All liaison by couriers (runners, cyclists and mounted men) will be established. Liaison by projectors will be established to the rear only.

Telephones and wireless will not be used, except between Division Headquarters and the following points: Center Z, GERARD SAS, L'ETOILE, HERMITAGE, MENIL la TOUR and BOUCQ.

3. (a) The drill will be terminated by the return of liaison agents from higher headquarters.

(b) Each commander will keep a careful record of the time required to

- get troops into positions
- establish liaison with their units
- " " " adjacent units
- " " " higher headquarters.

(c) Brigade, Zone and Center commanders will submit a report on the drill to next higher commanders, including such recommendations as seem desirable.

4. Advance notice will not be given for future Division Alert drills. It is done in this case to avoid disrupting the work schedule for Position 1 bis and Position 2.

OPERATIONS SECTION

No. 33/3

Headquarters, 1st American Division,
France, February 25, 1918.

The Commanding General.

To the Commanding General, XXXII Army Corps.

Subject: Machine Guns for the 2d Position.

In accordance with your Memo. No. 846/3 of February 21, I have the honor to submit the following proposition on the subject above:

a. The machine gun defense of the first line of position 2 will be assured by pieces of the Divisional Machine Gun Battalion (2 companies each at 12 pieces).

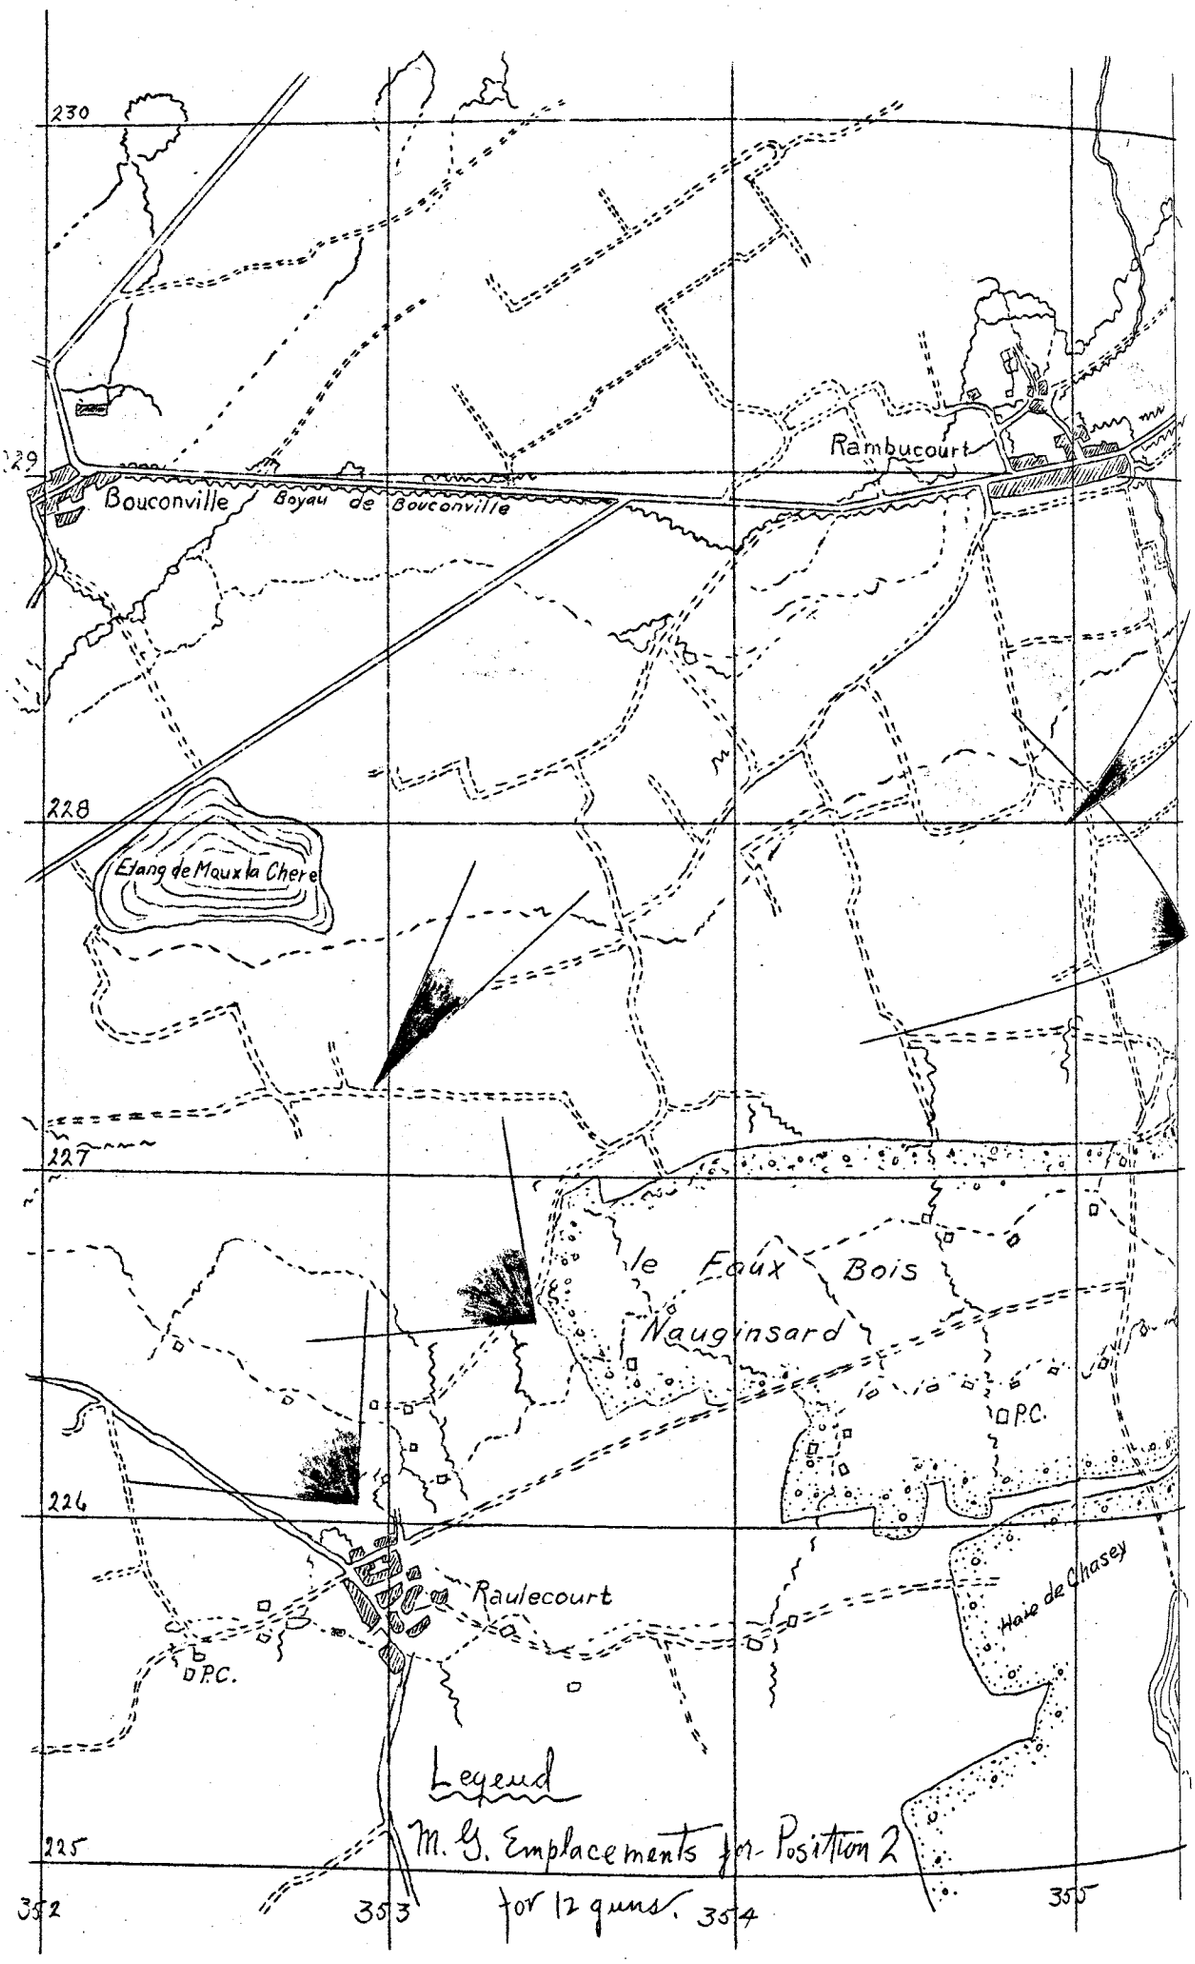

About 12 emplacements will occupied in a permanent manner by six pieces of each company. The 12 other pieces will be kept in rear and utilized when necessary for harassing fire or interdiction fire at long range.

b. A reconnaissance of Position 2 has been made by the Machine Gun Battalion Commander and the emplacement of positions fixed (see sketch herewith). A company of the battalion will arrive in the sector on the 27th of February to begin the construction of emplacements and dugouts and in order to furnish for the second position an immediate machine gun defense.

The intention is to bring the other company of the battalion, as soon as dugouts are ready, after the relief of the First Brigade by the Second.

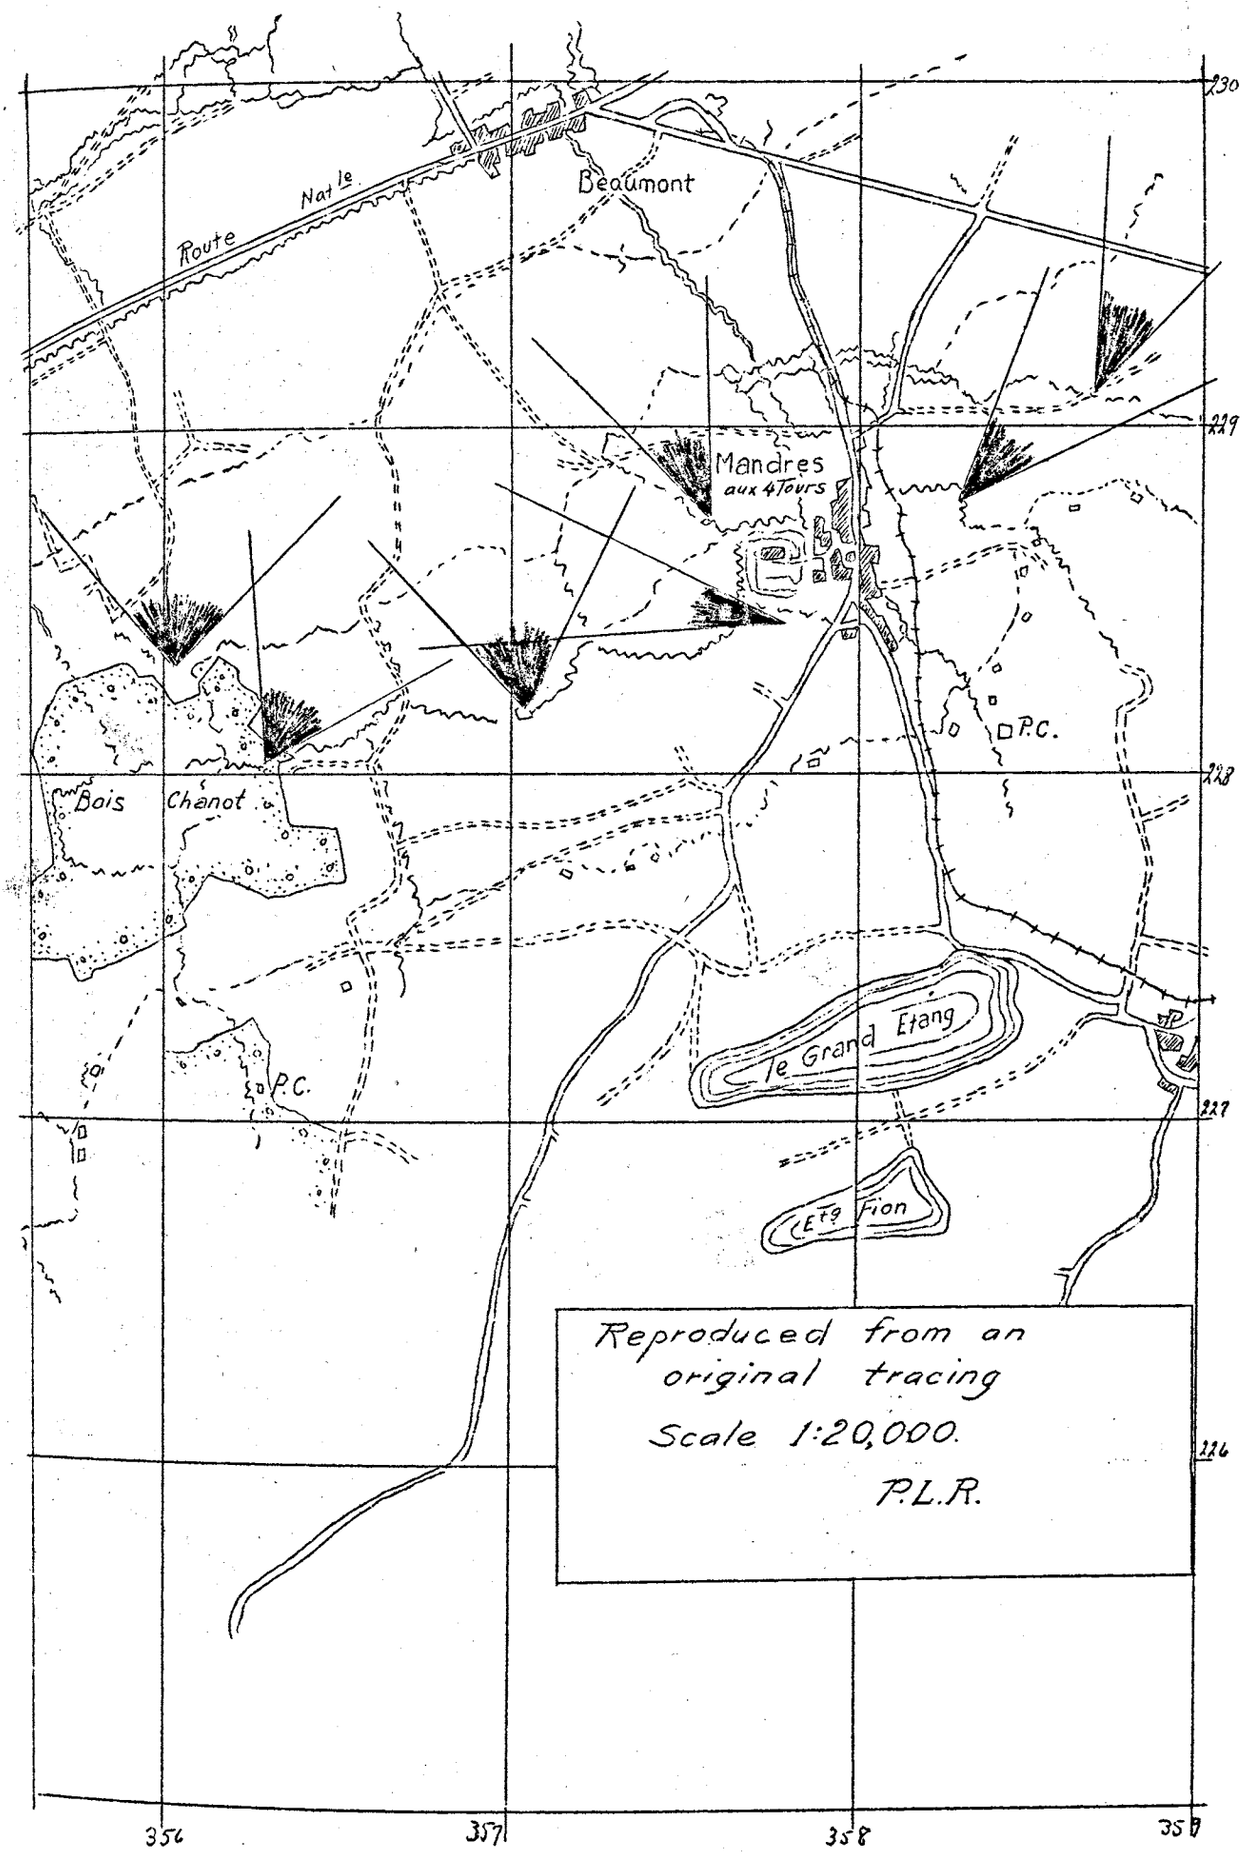

The battalion is provided with automobiles and the company in rear may be brought into the sector in case of emergency four hours after the receipt of the order.

(Signed) Bullard.

OPERATIONS SECTION

No. 52/3

Headquarters, 1st Division,
American Expeditionary Forces,
France, March 2, 1918.

From: General Bullard, Commanding 1st Division.

To: The Commanding General, XXXII Army Corps.

Subject: Approval of Plan of Defense,
Chapters II and III.

I. I have the honor to send you herewith for your approval Chapters II and III of the Plan of Defense, that is to say Chapter II --- Organization of Command and Distribution of Troops. Chapter III --- Orders in Case of Division Alert.

II. In addition to what is provided in Chapter I of the Plan of Defense sent on the 17th of February and the approval of which has not yet been made, Chapter III A includes also orders in case of alert of the Army Corps.

1. The Division Alert surprises the division in its normal life with two companies in the centers of the first position. It should then be ready to stand a partial attack or raid of the enemy.

Battle is delivered on the first position. Any portion of it which has been lost should be immediately retaken by counter-attack.

2. The Corps Alert prescribes the distribution in depth of the troops conforming to the prescriptions of Notes 470 S/3 and 472 S/3. It does not include counter-attack on the first position, which has now become the position of surveillance. Information of the intentions of the enemy have in time permitted the reduction of effectives on the first position. That is held now by only four sections per center (F-H-I).

III. Chapter III provides for the occupation of Center A (position 1 bis.) by Company M 2.

From today, in conformity with Order No. 50/3, one-half company of F 3 will be in Center A or immediately to the south of the dugouts.

The second-half company, stationed at Seicheprey, will have, before the 5th of March, rejoined the first-half company of Center A, relieving thus completely Co. M 2, which has again become available for Center X.

IV. I would be very much obliged to you if you will kindly let me know if you approve the dispositions prescribed in Chapters I, II, and III of the Plan of Defense.

These orders will not be enforced until you advise me if they conform to your orders.

Instructions No. 7.

Subject: Circulation and Traffic Regulations.

The following regulations supersede all previous circulation and traffic instructions:

1. Circulation is free south of the line indicated by the northern fringe of the PETIT REGAL*, JOLI BOIS*1, FORET de la REINE, BOIS de la REHANNE*2.

2. Circulation is forbidden during the daylight, except in a dense fog, to all vehicles and allowed only to men travelling alone or in groups of 2 or 3 north of the line indicated by RAULECOURT, northern fringe of FAUX BOIS NAUGINSARD*3, BOIS CHANOT and MANDRES*4.

3. In the zone lying between the lines above stated, circulation during the day, except in a dense fog, is limited to single vehicles or to groups of not over 20 men with intervalsof 500 meters.

4. In exceptional cases automobiles of the Division Staff and ambulances will be allowed by day to move separately on the BEAUMONT-RAULECOURT-BOUCONVILLE road.

5. A special pass for a particular occasion in an emergency may be given automobiles and motorcycles for exceptional circulation by the Chiefs of the General Staff Sections of the Division, the Chief Engineer Officer, the Chief Signal Officer, and the Commanding Officers of separate engineer and signal units.

6. Motor trucks and wagons will in general be governed by the same regulations as automobiles.

7. Automobiles and motorcycles pertaining to units north of the line RAULECOURT-FORET de la REINE, BOIS de la REHANNE*2, will be governed in their circulation north of that line by such regulations as their respective Brigade Commanders may consider necessary.

8. Automobiles not pertaining to the Division will obtain special permits from Division Headquarters regulating their circulations.

9. To avoid occasioning a gas alarm, Klaxon horns will not be blown north of the parallel of ROYAUMEIX.

10. Lights on truck trains or wagon trains will be extinguished north of the line indicated in Paragraph 1.

11. Single vehicles are authorized to keep their lights on as far north as the road fork about 300 meters south-east of BEAUMONT.

12. The Assistant Provost Marshal is charged with making the necessary police details to enforce these instructions.

URGENT AND [redacted]

From the Commanding General

To the Commanding General, XXXII Army Corps.

Subject: Proposed Raids.

I. I have the honor to submit for your approval the following plan to renew the raid operation on the German trenches at salient 82.33 north of the western edge of the Bois de Remieres and on the flank of the Richecourt salient in 58.28.

II. The Assault Detachment will be constituted as previously.

a. The Remieres raid should be executed at dawn on March 11; barbed wire before it cut by an elongated charge placed during the artillery preparation, from H plus 2 to H plus 5. The raid should be executed in a general manner similar to the previous plan, but the artillery fire reinforcing the box barrage should be more intensive and in greater depth.

Box barrage fires of diversion should be executed on the east flank of the Richecourt salient and other points during the Remieres raid.

b. The Richecourt raid should be executed at twilight of March 11, that is to say about 12 hours after the Remieres raid. The barbed wire before it should be cut in the afternoon of J minus 1 day by the fire of artillery; and the repair of the wire should be prevented during the following night by harassing machine gun fire. While the barbed wire will be cut at Richecourt, it will be cut likewise in the salient north of the Etang de la Grande Croix. The destruction of the wire at these two points should serve as a diversion (simulated attack) to the Remieres raid. The Remieres raid will serve then effectively as a diversion for the Richecourt raid. The raid should be executed in a general manner similar to the previous plan with the exception that the Assault Detachment will pass through the breaches existing in the wire, under cover of the artillery preparation from H plus 1 to H plus 5.

III. The following additional artillery units are requested:

3 groups of 75's: Which should arrive in the sector on March 8.

3 batteries of 120's (railroad): Should arrive in the sector on March 9.

These units above to be directed on the same destinations indicated in your Special Order No. 323.

(Signed) R. L. Bullard.
Maj. Gen., N.A.

Subject: Switch-line RAMBUCOURT-BOIS CHANOT.

I. In the hypothesis of an enemy attack in the direction of Flirey-Toul, I have admitted in the plan of defense of the 1st U.S. Infantry Division that the enemy's right might extend up to a point situated between Beaumont and Rambucourt, or even Rambucourt.

With a view to limiting his advance and in order to give a base for counter-attack in that hypothesis, I am desirous of establishing a switch-line Rambucourt-Bois Chanot. *

I have the honor to request if you will kindly let me know if you approve this project. In the affirmative, this switch-line will be laid out under the direction of the Colonel commanding the Engineers of the 1st U. S. Inf. Div. and carried out by the troops proposed for work on Position 2.

II. I will be obliged to you if you will let me know likewise if the establishment of the switch-line Mandres-Bois-de-la-Hazelle is my responsibility. *1

France, April 21, 1918.

Memorandum for Commanding General, 2d Brigade.

Subject: Machine Gun Company for 16th Infantry.

1. In the zone to be taken over by the 16th Infantry there are four machine gun companies actively employed. There are only three companies available in the 1st Brigade to relieve these four companies.

Therefore you will designate one Machine Gun Company for temporary duty with the 16th Infantry.

2. The Commanding Officer of the company so designated will report to the Commanding Officer 16th Infantry at ANSAUVILLERS at 10 A.M. April 22d to receive instructions for the reconnaissance and for the relief of the French company concerned.

A report will be made to these headquarters of the company designated for this duty.

3. Each of the two battalions of the 2d Brigade which are to enter the sector as Corps reserves was to have a machine gun company attached. The company referred to in par. 1 above will be considered as one of these two companies.

M E M O R A N D U M

The Commanding General, 10th Army Corps desires to draw attention to the tasks of the commanders of brigades and divisional infantry.

All matters concerning infantry, its tactical employment, its life in the sector, its protection against gas, supervision of its instruction, etc., concern them.

According to the instructions which they have received from Commanding Generals of Divisions, they have to fulfill, under present conditions, a particularly difficult task. They should, particularly at the present time, pay attention to the following points.

1. Supervise the employment of infantry in the work on the defensive organizations which have only just begun (distribution and proper employment of workmen, echloning of units in depth, drawing up schemes for the occupation and defense of positions, for counter attacks, etc.).

2. Supervise the working of the intelligence service, and, with this end in view, issue daily orders stating the tasks assigned to reconnaissances and patrols in the various sub-sectors, and also verify and transmit the information obtained either by these detachments or by observation.

Cause all necessary infantry O. P.s to be established and see that they operate properly, (posting of documents and care of the regulation instruments, liaison, etc.).

3. Supervise, with the greatest of care, the operating and the development of all means of liaison which the infantry may be called upon to use.

4. Endeavor, by all means which are at the disposition of the infantry, to increase the wearing strain which the enemy is already suffering from the fire of our artillery, and, in particular, to draw up a plan of indirect long range machine gun harassing fire against the objectives which are disclosed daily by reports and observation.

Commanding Generals of Divisions will render a report upon the measures which they have taken to date for the efficient execution of the above prescriptions. These reports will be sent in on the 12th of May, 1918.

General VANDENBERG, Commanding the 10th Army Corps.

Chief of Staff.

Hq. 1st Div., A.E.F., France, May 10, 1918. To Commanding General 1st Brigade.

1. Your attention is invited to the above instructions of the Corps Commander which will be carefully observed.

2. With reference to the supervision of the Intelligence service you will carry out the spirit of the Corps Commander's instructions without disarranging the functioning of this service under the direction of the G-2 Section, these headquarters.

3. With reference to long range gun fire the Commanding Officer, Division Machine Gun Battalion has been directed to report to your for the purpose of assisting you in directing this fire. Regimental Stokes mortars will be actively employed along the front to harass the enemy.

4. Airplane Photographs.
The G-2 section of the 32nd Army Corps requires that Commanding Generals of Divisions, and Colonels commanding the Artillery and Engineers of the Army Corps, will submit, on the 28th of each month, to the Commanding General of the Army Corps, G-2, a list of the areas within their sector, (both allied and enemy lines) to be photographed during the following month. This list will indicate the degree of urgency in regard to each area.

In order to make it easier to photograph the exact point desired, requests should call for photographs of a strip of ground about 1 kilometer wide, including desired point. To allow the methodical continuation of the established photographic schedule, irregular requests for photographs should be made only in case of emergency. (indications of gas attack, impending raids, etc.)

All requests for photographs should be accompanied by a sketch, scale 1/50000, of the area to be covered.

In order that the above may be strictly complied with by these headquarters all requests for photographs should reach G-2, 1st Division on or before the 27th of each month.

EDITORS NOTES

The following index is published to facilitate search for any particular General Order.

The appearance of these General Orders in various volumes is the result of the classification and publication of all documents according to category i.e. General Orders of an administrative nature in Volume V, General Orders dealing with Training in Volume XX, Citations in Volume XXIII etc.

When Volume V was published only those documents of historical value and interest were included. Since then it has appeared desirable to publish all the General Orders for the period 1917 - 1919. Those General Orders of an administrative nature, omitted from Volume V are published here, as addenda to Volume V.

General Orders
NO. 32.

1. The court of inquiry of which Brig. Gen. Omar Bundy, U. S. Army, is president, convened by par. 4, Special Orders No. 42, Headquarters First Division, American Expeditionary Forces, France, August 8, 1917, to examine into and report upon certain alleged derelictions of duty on the part of Captain , Infantry, has submitted the following findings as to the facts:

That the drills of Captain company on board ship were conducted by him in an unsatisfactory manner, and that Captain did not display the requisite zeal and diligence in personally superintending the work of his company.

That the police of the kichen of Captain company and the location and police of the latrines of his company, while in temporary camp at port of disembarkation in France, were not satisfactory, but that the conditions relating to police of kitchen and latrines were not confined to Captain company.

That both on board ship and at St. Nazaire, the irregularities observed were not corrected until they were called to Captain attention.

That there is a doubt as to Captain responsibility for not obtaining trucks for moving his company property from the camp to the place of entrainment, as it appears in evidence that it was the duty of Lieut. to assign the trucks for this work.

That Captain was attentive to his duties on the trip from St. Nazaire to his present station and that on arrival at his present station, he was prompt in getting his company into billets.

That there was a condition of apathy on the part of the non-commissioned officers of Captain company at his present station, and that the company did not make the progress which it should have made with the regular captain.

That Captain was not directly responsible for the sixteen men being on sick report, as he was absent on other duties, and the sick report was signed by another officer.

2. The record of the proceedings of the court of inquiry having been submitted to the Division Commander, the foregoing findings are approved.

General Orders
No. 92.

You are not in friendly territory. Its inhabitants are your enemies. You are not in a state of peace. Hostilities are merely suspended. The will of the United States and of the countries associated with it has been forced upon this enemy. That will was and is to compel a peace depending upon conditions. The enemy asked for an armistice. They accepted its conditions. The armistice - a suspension of hostilities - was granted. But those were not the conditions of a peace. The latter have not been made known. They are of no interest to the officer or soldier as such.

Our officers and soldiers represent the United States on the military side. They represent its strength, its power to damage, to injure, to destroy, to impose its will upon others. Chosen from the population of the United States they will be regarded by strangers as the best of the manpower of that nation.

The enemy population about us is composed not only of people who have not had an active part in the war but of discharged officers and soldiers, perhaps of officers and soldiers not yet discharged. The families have lost sons, brothers and fathers. They have suffered discomfort and privation. They supported an unjust war.

They resent their losses. They have been taught to hate. There is no reason conceivable for their being truly friendly to us. By appearing friendly they may study our character, discover our weaknesses, establish profitable connections, become possessed of information of military importance. There is no real friendliness. There is only its appearance for calculated profit.

The officers and soldiers from these people burned, wrecked, looted, raped, enslaved, murdered, drowned, destroyed, treacherously called "Kamarad". Their government violated every humane principle of international law, whined about legitimate hostile acts against itself. Its victims were women and children and civilian men on land and at sea, as well as soldiers and sailors. The German government and its army were cruel, savage, lustful. Robbery, pillage, treachery, torture, bribery, calculated and malevolent brutality were their instruments. They were unfair in battle. Our own gallant comrades are in graves because of their fiendish acts.

A people from whom such an army came cannot possibly in a month have become our friends. They are our enemies. We are theirs. War may conceivably be resumed.

These people have been trained to respect authority, to admire soldierly appearance and efficiency, to be polite, even obsequious, to military men. Good nature, amiability, soft words, familiarity on the part of our officers and men towards them will be interpreted to mean a weak will; slouchiness, untidiness, dirty, wrinkled and unbuttoned clothing, unshaven faces, uncut hair, to mean indiscipline; straggling, dirty harness and vehicles, rusty and stained equipment, to mean inefficiency; failure to salute and to salute correctly or to march erectly in compact, proper formations to mean lack of power; lack of reconnaissance and security detachments, careless performance of guard duty as deficiency in training.

We belong to a division distinguished by arriving first from America, by fighting the longest, by heavy losses, by unfailing success even against the flower of the German Army, by numerous acts of gallantry, by many citations of the division, of its organizations and of individuals.

We are among a hostile, warlike people, trained in military life, skillful, quick and bitter in criticism, hating the United States because of its decisive part in their defeat, servile and ingratiating in the hope of benefits, curious, inquisitive, selfish, brutal at heart.

We have the glorious reputation of a hard-fighting division in our hands. We are the sign of a free, noble, high-hearted, generous people.

Let us by our military bearing, appearance, courtesy and conduct show that we are the best soldiers in Europe. Let us by our dignity, calmness, aloofness, justice and severity prove true to the memory of our fallen comrades. Let us by our straight living, good habits, pride, courage and self-reliance give reason for a just estimate of our countrymen. Let us by self-discipline, by supervision and by performance of the duties of command, prepare ourselves for a resumption of war, for a continuance of the suspension of hostilities or for that peace which has been the purpose of the war.

Paragraph 33: Assembling of Germans.

Inhabitants are prohibited from assembling in crowds except as noted in (a) and (b).

(a) Regular church services are authorized.
(b) Indoor political meetings are authorized, when vouched for by responsible people and approved by the Civil District Commander or G-2 Division Headquarters.

Paragraph 43: Circulation.

(a) Passes issued by G.H.Q., Headquarters First, Second and Third Armies, C. G., S.O.S., Commanding Generals Third, Fourth and Seventh Corps, Provost Marshal Paris, Regulating Stations (to their own personnel) and those issued by the French Tenth Army and English Second Army when stamped by the American Liaison Officers on duty with these armies, and travel orders issued by Corps or higher commanders, or orders issued pursuant to instructions from these sources, will be accepted by all A. P. M.'s., M. P.'s. and other traffic controls as valid authority for circulation throughout the area of the Third Army.

(b) Division Commanders may authorize the issue of passes to members of their commands to circulate within the area of their corps and the area of adjacent division of other corps by mutual agreement between the division commanders concerned.

(c) All passes will show the name, rank, organization and station of bearer; dates on which the passes are valid; destination and route of travel or area within which pass is good.

Paragraph 63: Correspondence, Official.

(a) All correspondence of any nature whatsoever will be forwarded to these headquarters in quadruplicate. Failure to comply with this order will result in unnecessary delay in forwarding correspondence.

(b) Attention of this command is directed to Par. #174, Compilation of General Orders, etc., War Department on the subject, method of writing letters and indorsements and particularily to that portion prescribing that the first indorsement will begin one-half inch below the rank after the signature of the writer of the letter, and succeeding indorsements will follow one another serially, with a space of about one-half inch between indorsements.

(c) When a communication contains more than one sheet, there should be an entry at the top of succeeding sheets to identify it and keep it connected with the preceding matter as "15160 - Smith, John - Allotment", etc. Sheets should be numbered serially, midway of page and about one-half inch from the bottom.

(d) In referring to an indorsement, it should be "to ___ indorsement, page____".

(e) Attention is also directed to Par. #779 A.R. requiring official communications to be signed or authenticated with pen.

(f) Indorsement forwarding papers should express approval or disapproval, with remarks (A.R. 786). The use of the words "Forwarded" or "Returned" are unnecessary and will not be used.

Paragraph 101: Hunting.

(a) Repeated requests are received from the civil population to be permitted to hunt wild boars. Many of these requests come from the rural population who desire not only to protect their crops but to secure the meat. Many also come from people who hold hunting licenses, as hunting wild boar is a National Sport in Germany. Under the rules and regulations promulgated by the Commander-in-Chief, no one but police officials may carry firearms.

(b) The Oberpresident of the Rhine Province has been directed in inform the Landrat of each Kreis, that whenever wild boars become a menace to crops they will inform the Division Commander. It will then be the duty of such commander to organize hunting parties of soldiers for the purpose of killing these animals. In order that the army may not unnecessarily deplete the food supply of the country, the meat will be turned over to the poor of the locality unless imperatively required for the subsistence of the army at the time.

(c) When permission has been granted by the Division Commander for a boar hunt, the Division Athletic Officer will organize such hunting parties from the organizations stationed in the vicinity where the hunt is to take place, prescribing such regulations as may be necessary for the proper supervision and control of the party.

(d) Hunting by Civilians: The Army Commander desires that when applications are received by civilians of the occupied territory to hunt, that they be permitted to do so, drawing for the purpose the usual sporting arms such as rifles and shotguns which they have deposited in the hands of their local Burgemeisters and returning same after the drive or hunt under consideration has been completed.

(e) Hunting in Belgium: It is called back to the attention of the public and the local authorities that as long as no orders for the beginning of the hunting season are published by the Government, in conformity with the law of February 28, 1902, no hunting at all is allowed for the moment.

However:

(1) The owner or farmer preserves the right to repulse or to destroy, even with firearms, the wild animals which threaten to injure their property.

(2) The wild boat is considered as a wild animal and the occupants, their delegates and their guards have the right to destroy them at all times, with firearms and without firearms license.

(3) The occupant and those to whom he passes his rights may at all times take and destroy wild rabbits by all means not prohibited as ferreting out, smoking out, digging up of rabbit holes and nests, sticks, a.s.o.

Besides the rabbit and wild boar, as well as the game considered azotic (woodchucks, red partridges, white hares, reindeers, grouse, etc.) no game may for the present be transported, hawked, sold or bought.

(4) Commanding Officers will be responsible that all officers and men under their command who may be going to Belgium on leave or duty are thoroughly conversant with the above.

Paragraph 106: The first two sentences in Par. #106 are rescinded and the following instructions substituted therefor.

Telegram number 259 G-one C.A., nine orders number 6 Advance G. H. Q., 27 January prohibits the purchase by troops or officers' messes of any food-stuffs except fresh vegetables other than potatoes, and forbids officers and soldiers eating in public hotels, restaurants and cafes. In order that no hardships may be imposed upon civilian establishments who have accumulated stocks for the purpose of sale to Americans this order will be in effect in the City of Coblenz on and after February 1st 1919 and officers and soldiers visiting Coblenz should govern themselves accordingly.

February 3rd is designated as the day on which this order will go into effect in the town of Neuwied and the area of the Third Army Corps..

Paragraph 107: Gas.

Gas organization, gas defence and anti-gas training within the Division will be conducted as prescribed in Confidential Pamphlet number 253 revised - Subject: Defensive Measures against Gas Attacks and confidential pamphlet Gas Warfare, part 2.

Paragraph 118 is revoked.

Paragraph 141 is revoked.

Paragraph 149: Promotions.

(a) Before filling vacancies for non-commissioned officers and specialists communicate direct with the Commanding General, S. O. S. and request information as to the number and grade of non-commissioned officers and specialists who have been assigned to organizations in your army and who are now at replacement depots awaiting transportation.

(b) Division Commanders and Corps Commanders, for Corps troops, will communicate direct with the Commanding General, S.O.S. and request information as to the number and grade of non-commissioned officers and specialists who have been assigned to organizations within their commands.

(c) Upon receipt of the requested information from the Commanding General, S.O.S., unit commanders are authorized to make promotions in grades and numbers for which replacements are not available.

Paragraph 159: Reports. Is revoked.

Paragraph 162:

Supply Officers and Hospitals will note that an Army Salvage Depot has been established at NETTERNICH near the Ordnance Depot. All salvage material will be accepted at this point. Tin cans, as salvage, are now considered as of no value. Until further instructions they will be handled as rubbish and will not be accepted at any salvage depot. Hereafter all salvaged property will be turned into the representative of the Division Quartermaster at the railhead at Montabaur each Wednesday only.

Paragraph 163 is revoked.

6. Use of muffler cut-out is absolutely forbidden.

7. In changing direction, slowing down, or stopping, always give appropriate signal.
8. Do not smoke while driving.

9. NEVER double bank: i. e., never stop beside a halted vehicle, or pass one if others are coming in the opposite direction.
10. ALWAYS keep on the right, whether moving or standing still.
11. Vehicles of higher speed will pass those of lower speed, movin in the same direction, on the left sounding horn.
12. Civilians or unauthorized soldiers are NOT allowed to ride on Army motor transports.
13. Pay strict attention to road signs, signals from other vehicles and obey orders of M. P's.
14. Block rear wheels when stopped on a hill.
15. NEVER stop your car on a Route Gardee, - off the road. Conform to speed regulations.
16. Lights will be used strictly in accordance with traffic regulations of area where operating. Find out what they are before starting on a trip.
17. ALWAYS carry your pass and a copy of these instructions.

CONVOYS

18. CONVOY (Two or more trucks operating together constitute a convoy.
19. SECTIONS (When more than ten trucks constitute a convoy, they will be divided into sections of not more than ten trucks each.

20. IDENTIFICATION DISC — Rear truck each section will display a red disc.

21. MEN OFF ROADS — When convoy is stopped, keep men off roads.

22. KEEP TOGETHER — Assistant drivers will pass back signals to following truck and keep a rear lookout. Truck on rear governs speed.

23. DISTANCE BETWEEN TRUCKS

Running - In cities and villages	5 yards
Outside " " "	20 to 30 yards
Halted	5 yards

24. DISTANCE BETWEEN SECTIONS

Running - In cities and villages	25 yards

26. KEEP IN COLUMN — NEVER draw out of a halted column or endeavor to advance your position in a moving column.

27. CLEAR THE ROAD — In case vehicle breaks down, have it towed with the column, or at least off the road. NEVER DOUBLE BANK. Do not halt on main roads in towns. Never halt on bridges or any narrow place where traffic cannot pass, nor beside a halted line of troops or transport head in the opposite direction.

28. OFFICERS IN COMMAND — The M. T. C. officers are responsible for drivers knowing and obeying all orders and instructions and will be held accountable for infractions. They must know traffic circuits and regulations in the area in which they operate and personally instruct the men under them

In advanced area the following is of special importance:

(a) Daylight limits
(b) Distance between vehicles O and O speed
(c) Lights
(d) Cover for halted vehicles (under trees)
(e) Road circuits
(f) Hours dividing Day and Night limits.

29. Corps and Division Commanders are responsible for traffic control in their area and their regulations must be complied with, even though they conflict with orders given to convoys by higher authority, - except on Routes Gardees (Reserved Roads) which remain under the control of the Army, exercised through the C. R. A.

Therefore, when entering a Corps or Division area, provide yourself with their Traffic Regulations and Circulation Map.

MEMORANDUM.

SUBJECT: Instructions for officers visiting French front on Aug.27th.

Uniform and Equipment: Field uniform, - pistol, pistol belt, first aid packet, field glasses, compass, note book, pencil, and gas mask. The helmet will be worn. A despatch case, haversack, or musette may be carried. A blanket with a poncho or rain-coat, and toilet articles, should be taken. Each officer should provide himself with a steel-pointed cane and a electric flash lamp. Overcoats, long or short, may be taken. Blanket, overcoat, etc., should be carried in a compact roll.

Departure: Officers, with their baggage, will assemble at Division Headquarters at 1:30 P.M. August 27th. Brigade Commanders will arrange for their transportation to Gondrecourt.

The officers will be divided into four groups of five officers each. An interpreter will accompany each group. The senior line officer in each group is charged with seeing that the arrangements planned by the French officials are understood by the officers concerned and are strictly adhered to. The senior line officer in the entire party will have charge of the party whenever the groups are together.

Itinerary: The party will leave Gondrecourt at 1:45 P. M. and proceed to the rendezvous point designated by the French authorities, arriving about 4:00 P. M. There the party will be separated, each group being conducted to the designated front. The motor cars will return to Gondrecourt the same evening. On August 30th the groups will be assembled at an hour previously arranged, and the party will return to Gondrecourt. Automobiles will be sent from here to the assembly point.

Special Instructions: The Division Commander desires that special care be paid to the customary courtesies required on such occasions. Officers are cautioned to present a military appearance, particularly when visiting the headquarters of the higher commands.

The arrangements and conditions in the various sectors visited should be methodically studied, with a view to bringing back to this Division, information of value in our work of preparation.

By command of Major General Sibert.

Headquarters First Division.
American Expeditionary Forces.
France, August 31st, 1917.

From: Captain SELIGMANN
To: Major-General SIBERT, Commanding 1st Division.

Subject: Memorandum on duties of French Officer on General SIBERT's staff.

Captain SELIGMANN, besides acting as aide to the General, will be entrusted with:

A. The relations between the American Staff & the French military authorities, i.e. orders & notes received from French units & those sent to them by the American staff will be given or at least communicated to him.

It is well understood that, in this mail, only what concerns training, operations, cantonments, &c., will be included; those interesting administrative purposes will be dealt with directly by the competent departments.

B. Attached to the 2nd & 3d Bureaux he will constantly be connected with the officers in charge the these Bureaux, in order to be aware of their work.

Especially he will have to know about the schedules of training, (liaison, evolutions, etc.,)

Maneuvers, marches, & general operations, which will always have to be carried out in liaison with the French armies, or in which the experience of three years of war can be useful, will mainly be studied together by the American officers and this French officer.

Lieutenant HUGO detailed on same staff will act as assistant to Captain SELIGMANN.

SELIGMANN.

Memorandum to Commanding General, 1st Infantry Brigade.
Commanding General, 2nd Infantry Brigade.

1. It has come to the attention of the Division Commander that patrols have been sent out into the neutral zone without authority from Division Headquarters. This is contrary to orders. No patrols will be sent out into the neutral zone unless ordered from these Headquarters in writing, in which case the route to be followed by the patrol will be designated, and the patrol will wear a white brassard on the left arm. Exceptions to the above rule can be made in cases of emergency which demand the immediate presence of American troops to quell disturbances in which Americans are implicated. In this later case an immediate report will be made to Division Headquarters of the circumstances.

Memorandum. to Brigade Commanders.

Subject: Garrison of Unoccupied Towns.

1. It has been observed that ungarrisoned German towns have been the scenes of disturbances between the German civilian population and American soldiers.

2. To comply with orders from Headquarters, Third Army Corps, dated 30 April, 1919 Brigade Commanders will garrison all towns in the areas assigned to them for this purpose with detachments sufficiently large to insure the maintenance of order and discipline.

3. The areas assigned for this purpose are as follows:-

(a) To the 1st F.A.Brigade- the area west of the line STAHLHOFEN (incl.) - MONTABAUR (incl.) - ESCHELBACH (excl.) - DERNBACH (incl) - RANSBACH (incl.) - HUNSDORF* (incl.) - WIRSCHEID (incl.) - GROSSER MACHEID*1(incl.).

(b) To the 1st Infantry Brigade - the area within its sector east of the line in par. (a).

(c) To the 2nd Infantry Brigade - the area within its sector east of the line in par (a).

(d) Boundary between Infantry brigades is the line HAHN - ETTINGHAUSEN - WIRGES, all inclusive to 2nd Infantry Brigade.

Memorandum to Commanding Officer, Military Police.

1. In order to carry out instructions from Headquarters, Third Army Corps, the following groups of towns will be garrisoned by military police:

1st Group - KAAN; STROMBERG; NAUORT; SESSENBACH; WEIRSCHEID*; ALSBACH; KAMMERFORST; FAULBACH.

This group lies in the Western part of our area and is continually visited by American soldiers absent without leave. Strong guard will be necessary in every town for the purpose of garrisoning this area. A detachment of 100 military police will be sent to NAUORT as headquarters and detachments of one or two squads sent from there to the towns to garrison them.

2nd Group- HEILBERSCHEID; RECKENTHAL; ETTERSDORF; WIRZENBORN; BLADERNHEIM; STAHLHOFEN; DAUBAUCH; UNTERSHAUSEN; OBER ELBERT; GACKENBACH; HUBINGEN.

This group lies in the Southern part of our area. A convenient town in this list will be selected as headquarters and a detachment of 100 military police sent there as garrisons, at least one squad in each town.

2. In both groups, sentries will be on duty both day and night. All soldiers appearing in these towns without a pass to visit that particular locality will be held and brought into military police headquarters. Special attention will be paid to cutting off the sales of intoxicating liquors to soldiers. If crowds begin to gather in any town in numbers too great to control, assistance will be procured from the nearest town by telephone or messager.

3. Garrisons now occupying those towns in accordance with previous orders from these headquarters, will be relieved when the military police take station.

From: Acting A. C. of S., G-3.

To: Commanding Officer, 1st Supply Train.

Subject: Athletics, care personal Equipment and Fraternization.

1. Owing to excess of work it is probable that the enlisted personnel of the 1st Supply Train has very little time allotted for the care of personal equipment. An attempt should be made to set aside some time for this.

2. Athletics should be organized in the command and competitions in athletics arranged between companies. Some definite hours should be arranged for athletics and athletic competitions.

3. Special attention should be given to any excessive association by men of your command with German population. A proper stimulation of athletics and a high standard of requirement in the care of person and personal equipment will do much to keep down fraternizing.

4. It is realized that during a time of movement there will be little time to take up these matters, but they should receive prompt and earnest attention when your command goes into billets or permanent camp.

Subject: Observations (reconnaissances by German Aviator).

I. We draw your attention to the uninterrupted flights of a German aviator, who has flown over our positions (15, 46) three times at the height of 400 meters. His plane seems to be of recent combat type and machine guns can not stop his visits.

II. We recommend the installation of at least one 75 anti-aircraft cannon mounted on an auto truck and well camouflaged.

To the Commanding General, 1st American Division.

I. It is arranged that instructions will be given by competent authority for the displacement of one or two of these cannon to be directed on one position which will permit them to bring down this aviator. The plane flies generally over the Bois du Jury, Bois de Remieres, the village of Seicheprey and our positions of Batteries 12 and 18. Over these last positions, which have been lately subjected to a rather violent enemy bombardment, this plane flies very low. The flight takes place at such a low altitude that the anti-aircraft battery near C.P.Oran can not reach it.

IN CAMP AT ST. NAZAIRE, FRANCE.

August 21, 1917.

NOTICE:

1. Water is obtained with great difficulty and only the exact amount necessary will be used, and wastage must be prevented.

2. There are Battalion bath houses for each battalion. These houses may be used for bathing and for washing clothes but four hours daily. The acting Battalion Commander of the 1st Battalion will make a schedule for the use of his bath house by his three companies and the Headquarters and Medical Detachment. The acting Battalion Commander of the 2nd Battalion will do likewise for his three companies and the Engineer Train. Each acting Battalion Commander will place a non-commissioned officer at his bath house who will be in absolute control to prevent any waste, and to prevent any men from using the showers or wash boards outside of their turn. No enlisted men will be allowed in the bath houses outside of the stipulated hours.

16 Men can bathe at one time in each battalion bath house. Arrangements will be made and as nearly as possible 16 men bathe at one time. At no time will less than 8 men be permitted to use the shower baths at one time, owing to the fact that there are no individual valves.

Each battalion bath house has space for 80 men to scrub clothes at one time.

3. Wood is extremely difficult to obtain. Each organization must ascertain the length of period for which the wood furnished them is to last. If it is used up in less time, no more can be furnished.

4. There are some peasants who have agreed to move the solid garbage each day; there is no assurance of any regularity on their part. The solid matter which may be used as feed for stock should be placed in separate containers from the liquid swill and dishwater. No dishwater will be thrown into the sewers which drain the kitchens or bath houses. Incinerators should be dug for the disposal of all liquid swill, dishwater, and solid matter which the peasants fail to remove. Tin cans should be beaten as flat as possible and will be collected each day by permanent camp guard.

The German prisoners empty the cans from the latrines each morning. This will be done under the supervision of the permanent Camp Guard.

Swill pits must not be used after they are filled to within eighteen inches of the surface so that there will be at least this amount of level earth over them when covered.

HEADQUARTERS, FIRST DIVISION,
Office of the Division Engineer,
AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, FRANCE.

June 27, 1918.

From: The Division Engineer,

To: Lt. Colonel Favery, Commandant, le Genie du 10° C.A.,

Subject: Destruction of bridges.

1. Referring to our conversation relative to the destruction of bridges near La Faloise, I have taken up the matter with the Chief of the Operations Section of the First Division and his opinion is that the time of moving forward the troops who are to accomplish this should be indicated to you by the Operations Section of the Division by telephone or courier, but that the actual time of the destruction of the bridges would best be indicated to the destroying troops on the spot by the Commanding General of the brigade occupying the north half of the Division Sector.

2. In order that the message relative to moving forward the detachments which are to accomplish the demolition may reach you, the Operations Section of the Division would need to know where you may be reached by telephone and courier. It is presumed that the detachments referred to would be found immediately adjacent to the bridges to be destroyed.

L V Frazier
Colonel, Corps of Engineers.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST U. S. ENGINEERS,
AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES
WIRGES --- GERMANY.
14 MAY, 1919.

NOTICE:

1. There will be a Regimental Review for the presentation of medals Friday, May 16th, at 10:00 a.m. on the Second Battalion parade ground north of Wirges, Germany. Major General C. P. Summerall will present the medals and will review the regiment.

2. The regiment will be formed in line, with companies in column of platoons, with full distance between platoons. Interval between companies, 5 paces; between battalions 10 paces.

3. Companies will be organized into three platoons of four squads each. Uniform: Blouses, overseas caps, cartfidge belts and bayonets. No haversack or pack will be carried. Officers will carry Pistol only. All officers and men will attend dismounted.

4. Guidons will be posted on the left of the front rank of the leading platoon when the regiment is formed in line, and when the company is marching in review. When the platoons are in column of squads, the guidons will take position on the left of the front rank of the leading squad of that same platoon.

5. As soon as the battalions have been dressed, the members of the battalions, both officers and men, to be decorated will assemble on the right of the line between the band and the right company, taking position in order of rank from right to left.

6. Prior to the presentation, the persons to be decorated will be marched parallel to and fifteen paces in front of the line by the Regimental Commander to a point opposite the reviewing officer. They will then change direction to the right and, accompanied by the colors, will advance to the Reviewing Officer where the presentation will be made. The colors, including the color guard, will follow the center of the line of persons to be decorated at ten paces and halt in a corresponding position.

7. After the presentation ceremony, the persons who have been decorated will form in line on the left of the reviewing officer, and the colors will retake their place with the color company.

8. The regiment will then be marched in review and dismissed.

Regtl?Review May 16th)

9. The march in review will be conducted with companies in column of platoons at full distance.

10. At the command "MARCH" for passing in review, the right company will execute squads right and will proceed until the rear of the company is opposite the turning point which will be marked by a flag. They will then execute "SQUADS LEFT" and march in column of platoons until the left of the leading platoon is opposite the next turning point when the company will execute column left and march down the field. Companies in rear will take up the march in time to follow the leading company at a distance of twenty paces.

11. Colors will follow the color company at a distance of ten paces.

12. Platoon commanders will give the command "EYES RIGHT" when their platoons are six paces from the reviewing officer, and will give the command "FRONT" when they have passed six paces beyond the reviewing officer.

13. After companies have marched in review; they will be marched to a point opposite to that occupied by the left of the left company, when the regiment was formed in line and from that point will be conducted off the field under the supervision of battalion commanders.

By order of Colonel E. J. Atkisson,

CHAS. E. WUEST,
Captain, Engineers, U.S.A.,
Act. Adjutant.

Headquarters, First U. S. Engineers,
On Board U.S.S. Edellyn,
25 Aug., 1919.

NOTICE:

1. The following staff is announced to assist the Commanding Officer of Troops on the U.S. Ship Edellyn:

Commanding Officer of Troops:	Colonel E.J. Atkisson
Police Officer:	2nd Lt. F. I. Hastings
Mess Officer:	Captain F. Willetts
Casual and Abandon Ship Officer:	1st Lt. Anton W. Schneider
Supply Officer;	2nd Lieut. J. H. Heindirk
Adjutant:	Captain J. G. Drinkwater
Chief Medical Officer:	Captain O. W. Nettles

The Police Officer is in charge of all police in the parts of the ship that are occupied by the soliiers, but he, himself, is directly responsible only for latrines, wash-rooms, bath-house, decks, etc., which are used in common by the various organizations. Company and Detachment Commanders will be held responsible for the police of those holds occupied by their troops, and the Mess Officer is responsible for the police of the kitchens and mess rooms.

The Mess Officer is responsible for the proper arrangement of the soldiers' mess, procurement of details, serving of food, etc.

The Casual and Abandon Ship Officer is responsible that officers and men take their proper station at Boats and Rafts at the signal Abandon Ship.

The Supply Officer will obtain all supplies requested by Police or Company Officers from the Ship Supplies.

The Chief Medical Officer is responsible for the health of all soldiers on board, and will report promptly to Headquarters all failures to carry out sanitary regulations.

2. The attention of all officers and men is called to the Abandon Ship Stations which are assigned to bunk numbers on the Embarking Cards. At the signal for FIRE, Troops who are below when the signal is sounded will remain below, and the troops who are on the deck will get on to the center of the hatches nearest them in order to give room for Naval Men to work. The signal for fire will be announced by the ringing of the ship's bell, and by "Fire Call" blown by the bugle. The signal for Abandon Ship will be "Assembly" blown on the bugle, and word will be passed by Boatswains Mates. Every man must have on his life preserver at Abandon Ship drill. No man will be allowed to use his life-preserver for sitting on while on deck.

3. The following schedule of Calls is announced aboard ship:

		REVEILLE:	6:30 a.m.
		BREAKFAST:	7:00 - 8:00 am
		SICK:	8:30 a.m.
		INSPECTION:	10:00 a.m.
		DINNER:	12:00 - 1:00
		SICK:	3:00 p.m.
CALL TO QUARTERS:		RETREAT:
8:45	pm.	First Call:	4:35 p.m.
TAPS: 9:00	pm.	Assembly:	4.45 p.m.
		SUPPER:	5:30 - 6:30 p.m.

Immediately after Reveille, all bunks will be triced up close to the standees, and hammocks will be stowed in lockers.

A general inspection of the ship will be made at 10:00 a.m. each day by an officer designated by the Commanding Officer of the troops, accompanied by a Naval Officer and a Medical Officer.

4. During practicable weather, the troop's quarters will be vacated twice a day for aeration by opening all available ports and hatches, and at least during one of these periods of aeration the men will take their blankets on deck for airing. Periods during which quarters will be vacated are as follows:

8:30 -- 9:30 a.m.
3:30 -- 4:30 p.m.

"D" and "E" Companies will air their blankets during the morning period, "F" Company, Headquarters and Medical Detachments, and Engineer Train during the p.m. period.

This does not mean that men or blankets are allowed on decks only during the above periods.

5. The following sanitary regulations are published for the voyage:

Every man will take a shower bath daily. The senior Medical Officer will arrange hours during which the bath house will be used by the various units. Every man must change his clothing at least once during the voyage. The troop's quarters will be sprayed, swabbed and washed thoroly clean by cleaning details while the men are on decks. Inspection will be made daily of all personnel and bathing by the Army Medical Officer, and the Troop Commanders to weed out the sick, and make sure that all men are keeping themselves clean.

All men will sleep heads to feet especially in double parallel bunks, all on right of double bunks sleep heads forward, those on left, heads to the rear.

The eating of food in quarters is prohibited. Ventilators willnot be closed, nor plugged in order to stop the flow of air.

Guards will be stationed day and night at each drinking fountain, in each wash room and latrine to see that these are kept clea and no nuisances are committed. Cleaning details for drinking water fountains, latrines, etc., will be permanent for the voyage. Each detail will be in charge of a competent non-commissioned officer. All troops quarters will be sprayed and cleaned twice daily.

All swabs will be thoroly scaled and dryed daily. Water closets, etc., will be scrubbed with lye water or 5% formalian. Wash basins will be thoroly scrubbed each morning with soap and water, and troops instructed to clean basins after using. Spitting is prohibited thruout the ship.

Drinking fountains will be scrubbed thoroly with hot cresol 5% solution daily. Spray pumps and solution to be used therein, soap, brooms, etc., will be procured from Lieut. Heindirk.

6. Attention of all concerned is directed to the fact that gambling is prohibited aboard vessels of the United Navy, and all violators of this regulation will be punished.

HEADQUARTERS 28TH INFANTRY,
Meudt, Germany, 14 May 1919.

From: Colonel Adolphe Huguet, 28th Infantry.

To: G-3, A. C. of S., First Division.

Subject: Historical data.

1. The following answers and details were furnished by Lieut. Colonel C. R. Huebner, Captain C. T. Senay, and First Lieutenant Leslie R. Van Alstine, 28th Infantry, all of whom were present at Quart de Reserve, north of Richecourt, September 12, 1918. Initials indicate officer making answer.

1st. Was the advance of the First Division from the Rupt de Mad towards Mont Sec dependent on the previous capture of the Quart de Reserve?

"C.R.H." - "The advance of the Division from the Rupt de Mad towards Mont Sec was not dependent on the previous capture of the Quart de Reserve, as the enemy's fire could not be used against Mont Sec."

x"C.T.S." - "No."

"L.R.V." - "The advance of the First Division from Rupt de Mad toward Mont Sec was not dependent on the previous capture of the Quart de Reserve but the capture of Quart de Reserve made the advance of the right of the Division much easier and probably saved them many casualties. The terrain to the east of Quart de Reserve was such that it is not believed the Germans could have brought to bear a heavy enough fire to stop the advance of the right units of the First Division."

2nd. Had our artillery preparation been effective against the enemy positions at this point?

"C.R.H." - "Our artillery preparation was effective."

x"C.T.S." - "Yes."

"L.R.V." - "The artillery preparation, apparently, had been effective against the enemy at this point."

3rd. At what point and how did our casualties occur in the capture of the Quart de Reserve?

"C.R.H." - "Our casualties occurred in the Ravine just west of Bois de Rate* and were caused by machine gun fire from the corner of the woods Quart de Reserve and the trenches to the west thereof."

x"C.T.S." - "None witnessed."

"L.R.V." - "There were very few, if any, casualties suffered by the 28th Infantry in the capture of Quart de Reserve."

4th. Did enfilading fire from the Quart de Reserve against our line further west play any part?

"C.R.H." - "It was not possible to fire in a westerly direction from the Quart de Reserve and it played no part in the action."

x"C.T.S." - "Not known."

5th. Did we suffer casualties from German batteries firing from behind or west of Mont Sec?

"C.R.H." - "We did not suffer any casualties from German batteries firing from the west or behind Mont Sec."

x"C.T.S." - "No."

"L.R.V." - "We suffered only very few, if any, casualties from the German batteries firing from behind or west of Mont Sec."

6th. In view of conflicting statements, can it be definitely established whether elements of the 26th Division were holding Vigneulles before 7.30 a.m. on the 12th of September?

"C.R.H." - "When the leading battalion of the 28th reached Vigneulles between the hours of 6.30 and 7.30 a.m., September 13th, they found the 26th Division holding Vigneulles. As to their having arrived there before 7.30 a.m. on the 12th, is not known by me, although it is quite improbable as the advance did not start until the morning of September 12th."

"C.T.S." - "It would be impossible for elements of the 26th Division to be holding Vigneulles before 7.30 a.m. on September 12th. The 26th Division could not have gone the 10 or 12 kilometers between their jumping off point and Vigneulles in two hours. I believe that the first troops in Vigneulles were scouts of the First Division, in the early morning of September 13th. I do not believe that the 26th Division was holding Vigneulles, even at 7.30 a.m. on the morning of September 13th."

"L.R.V." - "It is not believed that any elements of the 26th Division entered Vigneulles before 7.30 a.m. on 12th of September, 1918, as the attack did not start until 5.20 a.m., the morning of the 12th, and it would have been practically impossible for them to have gone ten or twelve kilometers in two hours and ten minutes, even though they met no resistance."

x Remark by Capt C.T.Senay. "These answers refere specifically to the Quart de Reserve and not to the Bois de Rate* which adjoins the Quart de Reserve to the North. The Bois de Rate* contained a strong garrison which had not, apparently, been demoralized by shell fire. We had a few casualties to the south and southeast of the Bois de Rate*. They were mainly caused by machine gun fire."

The above remark refers only to answers and details furnished by Capt C.T. Senay.

1. I think it was, as I remember it, the 1st Brigade attacked one hour later than the 2nd Brihade giving us time to clean up Quart de Reserve.

2. Yes.

3. Scattered Machine Guns throughout and particularly from 3rd line trench on high ground.

4. I don't think so. We took all objections on schedule time.

5. None that I know of. The batteries that gave us trouble seemed to be near Nonsard.

6. Don't think it possible. No element of the 26th Infantry was in Vigneulles before 8:30 A.M., September 13th, 1918. We joined up with the 26th Division at 11:00 A.M. September 13, 1918 at Hattonchattel*.

1. I do not think so, the 16th and 18th Infantry started their attach later than the 26th and 28th Infantries.

2. Yes.

3. From Machine Guns and a few snipers, particularly their 3rd line trenches.

4. I did not notice it.

5. When we were at our 3rd objective I believe there were one or more batteries that were firing from over the ridge North and West of Mont-Sec.

6. I do not believe so, the 3rd Batallion 26th Infantry did not reach Vihneulles* before September 13th, about 8:00 or 9:00 A.M. and made connection with the 26th Division at Hattonchattel*1 about 10 a.m.

1. I commanded the right front line company of the 16th Infantry (Co."F") in the attack north of Richecourt, 12 September, 1918. The western half of the Quart de Reserve was taken and cleaned up by this company.

2. The following information relative to the questions asked is submitted:

1st It is not thought that the advance of the division from the Rupt de Madt towards Mont Sec was dependent on the previous capture of the Quart de Reserve.

2nd Our artillery preparation at this point had not been very effective. Several dugouts, machine gun emplacements, and shacks used as billets were observed intact.

3rd On the forward slope of Hill 229.3 just south of the Quart de Reserve from machine gun fire. This fire came from the woods directly in front, the Joli Bois, and two or three guns emplaced in the interval between the Joli Bois and the Quart de Reserve. After penetrating into the Quart de Reserve my company suffered a number of casualties from enemy artillery fire which apparently came from the directios of Nonsard and Mont Sec.

4th In did not observe any enfilading fire from the Quart de Reserve against our line further west.

5th Casualties were suffered from the fire of German batteries firing from behind or west of Mont Sec.

To Chief of Staff, 1st Division.

1. In reply to attached memorandum, submit the following:

1st, No, it was not. The Quart de Reserve would have fallen even if it had been vigorously defended, which it was not.

2nd, Not particularly So. This point was not strongly defended.

3rd, Very few casualties about 400 yards south of the Quart de Reserve, which was taken by the 16th and 18th Infantry Regiments.

4th, No.

5th, No.

6th, On Sept. 12th, the attack was not launched until 5:00 A.M. so it does not seem that the 26th Division could have been in Vigneulles at 7:30 A.M. The 1st Brigade has always understood that the 26th Division did arrive early on the morning of the 13th. (Vigneulles was not an objective of the 1st Brigade although the Brigade sent patrols into the town early on the morning of the 13th of September.

The impression that the 1st Brigade retains of the reduction of the St. Mihiel Salient is that of a maneuver rather than that of an attack. The resistance was very feeble and our losses very slight. The total losses in killed and wounded of the 1st Brigade were, from which statistics it can be seen that the Germans were not offering any serious resistance to our advance.

18th Infantry	4 killed	29 wounded
16th Infantry	16 killed	61 wounded

DIVISIONAL HISTORY CHARTS

1. The Divisional History Charts showing the activities of each Division, together with other salient data, have been compiled from the same sources of information as the maps showing operations of American Divisions.

2. The charts and maps were prepared by the Map Room, G-3, G.H.Q., from the following sources of information which are set down in the order of the relative value which has been attached to them:-

(a) War Diaries.
(b) Field Orders, (Division, Corps and Army).
(c) Skeleton Histories submitted by each division in compliance with telegraphic instructions from G-3, G.H.Q.
(d) Division Reports of special operations.
(e) Division Situation Maps.
(f) Corps Situation Maps.
(g) Army Situation Maps.
(h) Location and Employment of Division sheet (G-3).
(i) Station List (Statistical Division, A.G.O.).
(j) French Order of Battle Maps.

(a) These War Diaries are daily reports submitted by units down to companies, showing occurrences of the day; change of location of headquarters, etc. They are, however, often in adequate, diaries being frequently missing, while the data on many others is incomplete. However, where a definite statement is made therein, concerning such an event as change of location of headquarters, or the commencement of a relief, this has usually been accepted as correct even though in conflict with data obtained from other sources, it having been considered that a report made at the time and on the spot would be more likely to be correct than a history compiled at any time thereafter.

(b) Field Orders often supplied information.It frequently happened, however, that the execution of field orders was suspended or postponed by verbal or telephonic command, without any record having been made of such interference. Field Orders have usually been regarded rather as corroborative evidence in support of statements made in the War Diary. When there was direct evidence from other sources that the Field Orders were executed as comtemplated, information gained therefrom was considered as absolutely accurate.

(c) These skeleton histories were submitted by each division during December, 1918, and January, 1919, and answered certain questions concerning specified points needed in making up these maps. These histories have been considered as correct as a rule, although where there was a direct conflict as to a date between them and the War Diary, the date given by the War Diary has usually been considered the correct one, this War Diary being a current report rather than a history. Occasionally where corroborative evidence from other sources confirmed the data of the Skeleton Histories, or where the War Diary data were not definite, the Skeleton History has been considered correct.

(d) These Division reports are reports submitted by the Commanding Generals of Divisions describing certain special operations. For these operations the data in the reports are probably absolutely correct, but the periods covered are few and of short duration.

(e) Some Divisions reported the stationing of their subordinate units by maps each week. Others at longer periods. From these reports it was usually possible to get accurate data concerning the length of front held, presence of American Artillery, whether brigaded or not with French or British, etc.

(f) Certain Corps reported the stationing of their divisions and smaller units in the same way as (e). These reports have the same value as (e).

(g) Beginning Sept. 8, 1918, Maps showing location of Corps and Divisions were made up daily and submitted to G-3, G.H.Q., by the 1st Army, and later on by the 2nd Army. This data was compiled from Corps reports; the maps are occasionally incorrect as to the exact location of the front line, and the time of relief of one division by another. This incorrectness occured usually during an active period when it was impossible to get reports back to the headquarters concerned.

(h) These lists were prepared daily by G-3, G.H.Q., from all information available. They are occasionally incorrect in point of date.

(i) These Station lists were prepared by the Statistical Division of the A.G.O. from various sources of information and were often incorrect as to date and location of units.

(j) These maps are issued by the French G.H.Q. They show the stationing of all units of the Allied and enemy (presumed) forces down to divisions. Until September, 1918, the maps were sent twice weekly to American G.H.Q. and afterwards daily. As a rule the American stationing as indicated on these maps were not up to date, but information was obtained from the maps as to French units under which American divisions served, or with whom they were brigaded.

3. Data which occurs on the charts but not on the maps were obtained as indicated:

(a) Names of Commanding Generals of Divisions: from rosters of senior officers of A.E.F., prepared by Statistical Division, A.G.O., and also from Location and Employment of Divisions Lists, prepared by G-3, G.H.Q.

(b) Names of Commanding Generals, Corps: gathered from same source as (a).

(c) Names of Commanding Generals of French and British Armies under whom American units served: from data supplied through the American Military Missions with French and British G.H.Q.

(d) Replacement Statistics: supplied by G-1, G.H.Q.

(e) Casualty Statistics: supplied by Adjutant General, A.E.F.

4. These charts and maps, therefore, are really the compilation of data gained by weighing the probable accuracy of various sources of information. In comparison with each other these sources of information have a value which is relative; but where corroborative evidence is lacking, information found in any one of them must of necessity be accepted as accurate. Without doubt the information here presented is as correct as is possible to represent it along the lines laid down. Errors, of course, must occur in such a work, compiled as it is from such miscellaneous records, but it is practically certain that such errors are unimportant ones.

ERRATA

1. Few inaccuracies have been found in this volume since March 1919, concerning the following points:-

1. Assignment of Divisions to Corps.
2. Division and Corps Commanders.
3. Artillery Brigades attached.
4. Casualties. These figures were preliminary and have since been modified by the Adjutant General.
5. Replacements.

1 I received orders about three PM. that my Bn. would relieve the troops of the front line in the sector to our left ~~right~~ and to send the company commanders over to reconnoiter-later I received a map and more definate orders changing the width of the new sector also orders that we would be relieved in our position

2 The incoming organization began to arrive at about ten thirty and as they relieved ~~one-of-my~~ companies, each company sent sent in its report of relief and marched to relieve the orginazation on our new sector.

3 At about eleven P.M. the enemy started to throw shells over pretty fast and as we had been warned of a possible attack we thought that this shelling might be his preparation, about an hour later I had received runners from all the companies but Co. C so I told the new Bn. commander that I was going to move to the new sector and that he was now in command of this sector. The enemy was throwing over mustard in quantitys by this time so I decided that they had information of the relief as there had been considerable telephoning during the day, also they did not seem to be throwing over very much big stuff on our artillery. On the way over I went through Co. C's position and found that they had not been relieved so ordered three platoons to the new sector and one to remain until the new troops arrived, there was no chance of making a relief of the forward companies after three A.M. as it was daylight by that time, Co. C took the route indicated on attached map (which is made from memory) and when at the places marked X received a shell or two in the column. At the first X one platoon got separated from the others as a machine gun companies carts cut through the column and a shell hit the head of the ~~lead~~ rear platoon so the platoon leader took off across the field with instructions to keep to the right of Grivens*1 where he would fond the communicating trench- We had no guides. The shelling was still heavy but not so much gas and hardly any mustard.

4 The companies we relieved in the front line did not leave their trenches, although my right front Co. was in position and completed the relief by two A.M.

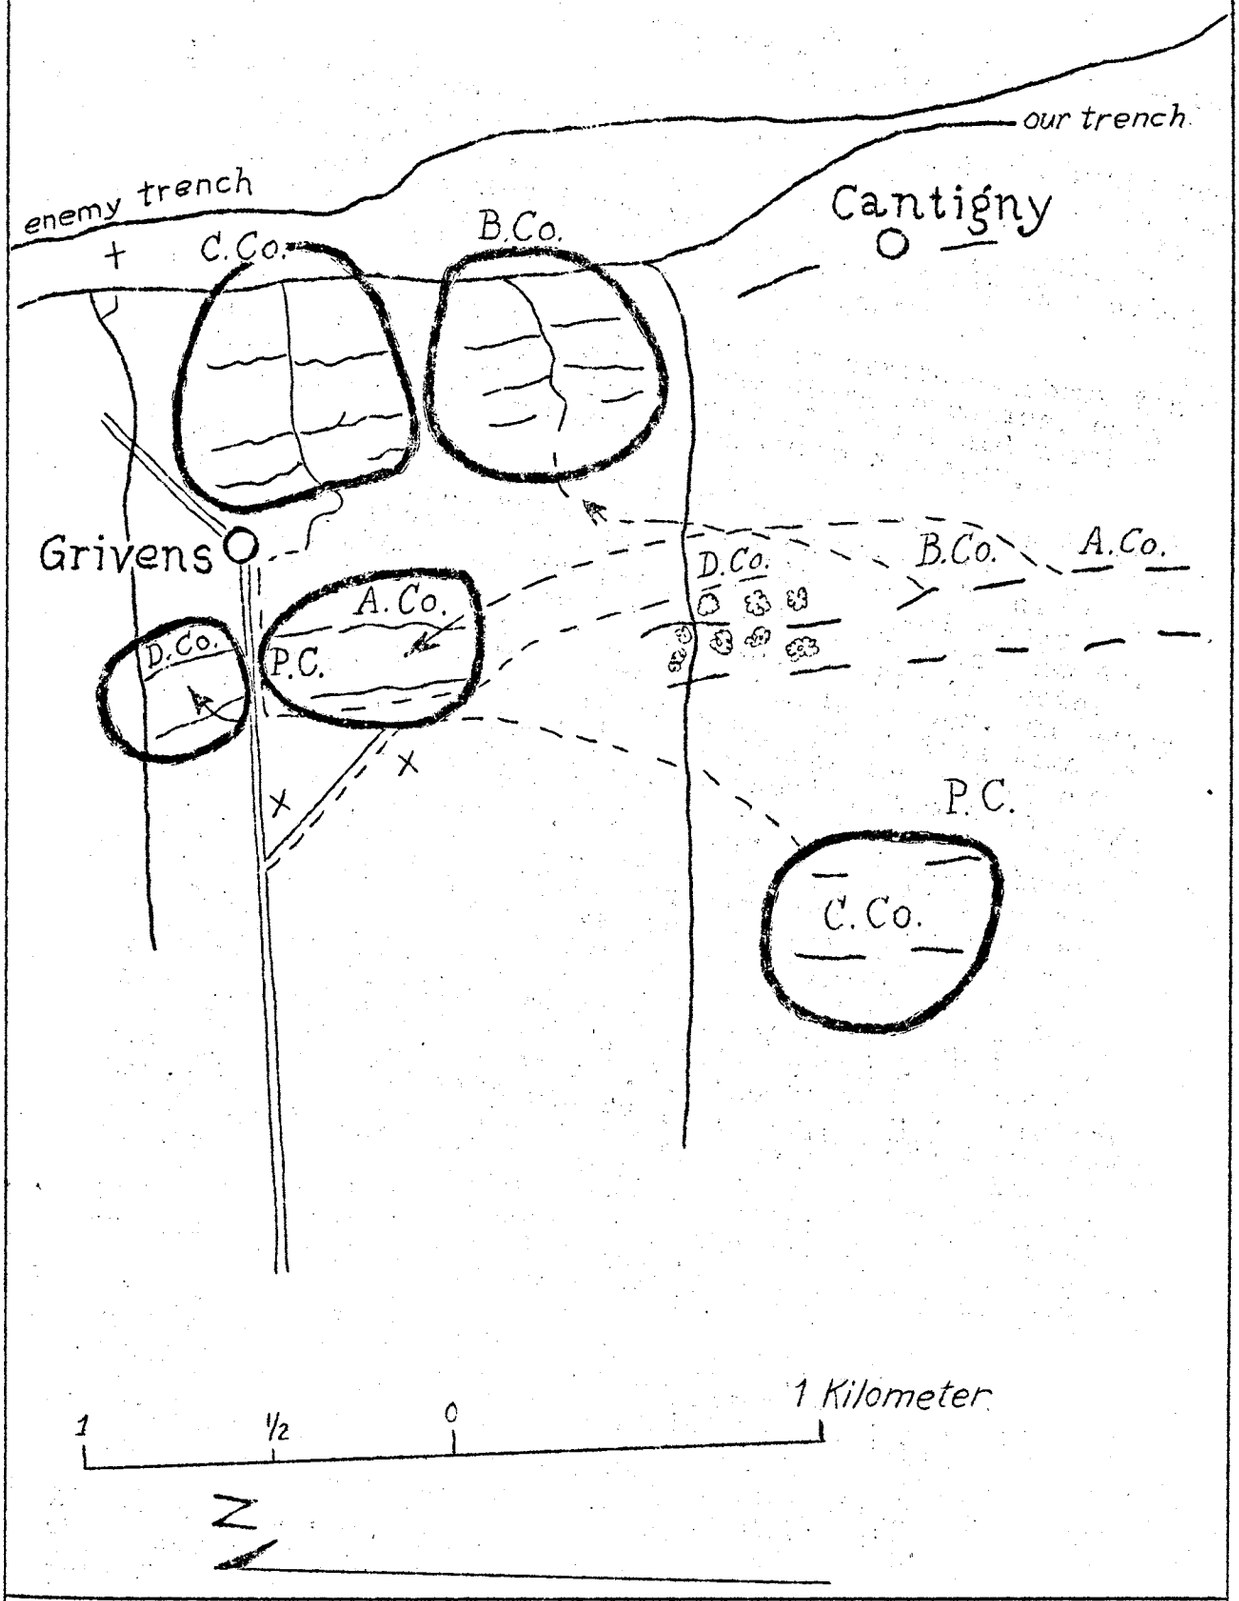

5 Our larger guns were firing short to some extent and some of our shells hit as far back as Grivens*1.

6 At about four A.M. I got a report from one of the front companies thet some of the enemy had started over on a raid but only came a shot ways.

Lesson I learned
That you have to have luck with you to make a quick relief without reconnoitering. (b) Keep off of roades.

1st Bn. 16th Snf.- Aiane Marn* July 18, 18

1 The Bn received advance orders about 2 P.M. on the 17th, - these consisted of a map roughly lined off in sectors and what information the Col. had at that time. At about eight P.M. the Col. returned with the orders written out and five maps- the sector had been slightly changed.

The Col. gave the order verbally to the assembled officers of the Bn. and instructed me to attend to the details. I looked first for the route of march and found that my Bn. should be clearing a town that was two kilometers from us at this time so hurried the Bn. forward- at this time the carts for the machine guns had not arrived also the mortars or one pounder so we went off and left them.

2 We arrived at the point where we were to meet our guides at about eleven o'clock and had about two kilometers to go to reach our position- up to now we had been following a road in column of files-some parties or party in the column sent several false messages up the line to delay the march-I did not have time to investigate them so do not know where they originated. We met our guides, one to a platoon and started in to occupy the sector also at this time it started to thunder and rain. The guides left the road and took us down into a deep ravine which had been shelled with mustard gas- our progress through the ravine was very slow and at three o'clock but two companies had cleared the ravine- at four the companies were all wellon their way to their positions and I sent a report to the Reg. P.C. telling them that I was ready but that the machine guns had not arrived nor the mortars and one pounders, we had made some hurried moves in the past week and our supplies had not caught up to us, every one under stood the situation but there were no complaints- we were short most everything but rifle ammunition but only had one and a half kilometers to our objective, no towns in our sector and good ground to go over) H hour was 4.55 and at four I had received reports from but three companies, there had been some shellingof our sector. It started to get light about this time-at four twenty I raninto the Capt. of the lost Co. and he said the guide had put his company in with the 15th-they were about two hundred yards out of the way and as the troops on our right were all standin on the top I told him to rush them over and I would show them over and I would show them where to go. The enemy trenches were about two hundred yards and they saw the men standing on top so started sending up their rockets-just at that time a runner who was left to guide the machine guns came up and reported the machine gun company coming into the sector. The Captains of my leading Companies, when they saw the enemy calling a barrage moved over into the enemies trenches, before his barrage fell but the two rear companies had to move through it-the barrage was a good one and these companies went through in squad columns without hardly any losses but I think luck was with them as out of eleven runners I had but one get through and they were deployed at about seven yards.

3 We were to have no preparation from our Artillery and when our barrage fell it was to be wellix in advance as the attack was in the nature of a surprise and our artillery had not registered. When our barrage started it came very strong. Our airplanes were out in considerable force.

4 We were short hand grenades alao the detachment we sent to the French for grenades ran ~~iie-same~~ into same shell fire and were most all wounded.

5 The enemies trenches to our front were very shallow and he did not have them constructed into much of a system, they were at the largest big enough to accomodate a platoon and were not connected up with communicating trenches and they were held very lightly- outguards as it were and they pulled back after their barrage dropped, evidently thinking we were pulling off a raid- they were gone by the time the leading companies reached their trenches. As soon as we were passed their system or we ran into a machine gun barrage which was very effectiv and our losses heavy- the men were not allowed to advance by rushes and take advantage of the shell holes made by our barrage but were required to follow the barrage, walking slowly at the rate of one hundred yards in three minutes, the losses were very heavy. The liason patrol from Co. D to the troops on our left replaced the left leading platoon on account of their losses before we reached our first objective was wounded at about five oclock and could not get around much so left for the dressing station at ten, turning the Bn. over to Capt. Charles Ryder, I went back to the Reg. P.C. to report but it had moved forward and the Brigade occupied the P.C. so I reported to the Brigade commander. The artiller (75's) were moving forward to our original jumping off trenches also about a troop of French Cav. were about one half kilometer in rear of the Inf. About the time I started for the dressing station the tanks made their appearance-they were about a mile behind the Infantry at 9.50, about eight tanks were all I saw and two or three of them were stopped on account of engine trouble- I think they were mostly if not all French tanks. I saw fifteen or twenty enemy enemy planes in the air at this time and two of ours. At the dressing station I saw about a third of my Bn. The Dressin stations were over full and the ambulance I was in went to six or seven before we reached one that could accomodate us. I heard after the fight that my Bn. kept the advance for five days as the Bn. that was to take the second objective was driven back also that the Bn. was the only one in the Div. that reached the final objective, it was mentioned in orders, G,HQ. also by the French Army.

Lessons I learned:

1 That Inf. is handicaped against organized machine gun nests without the mortars or one pounders.

2 The difficulty of communicating -that the runner is the most reliable under heavy shell fire but as they are killed off very rapidly the number required is enormous.

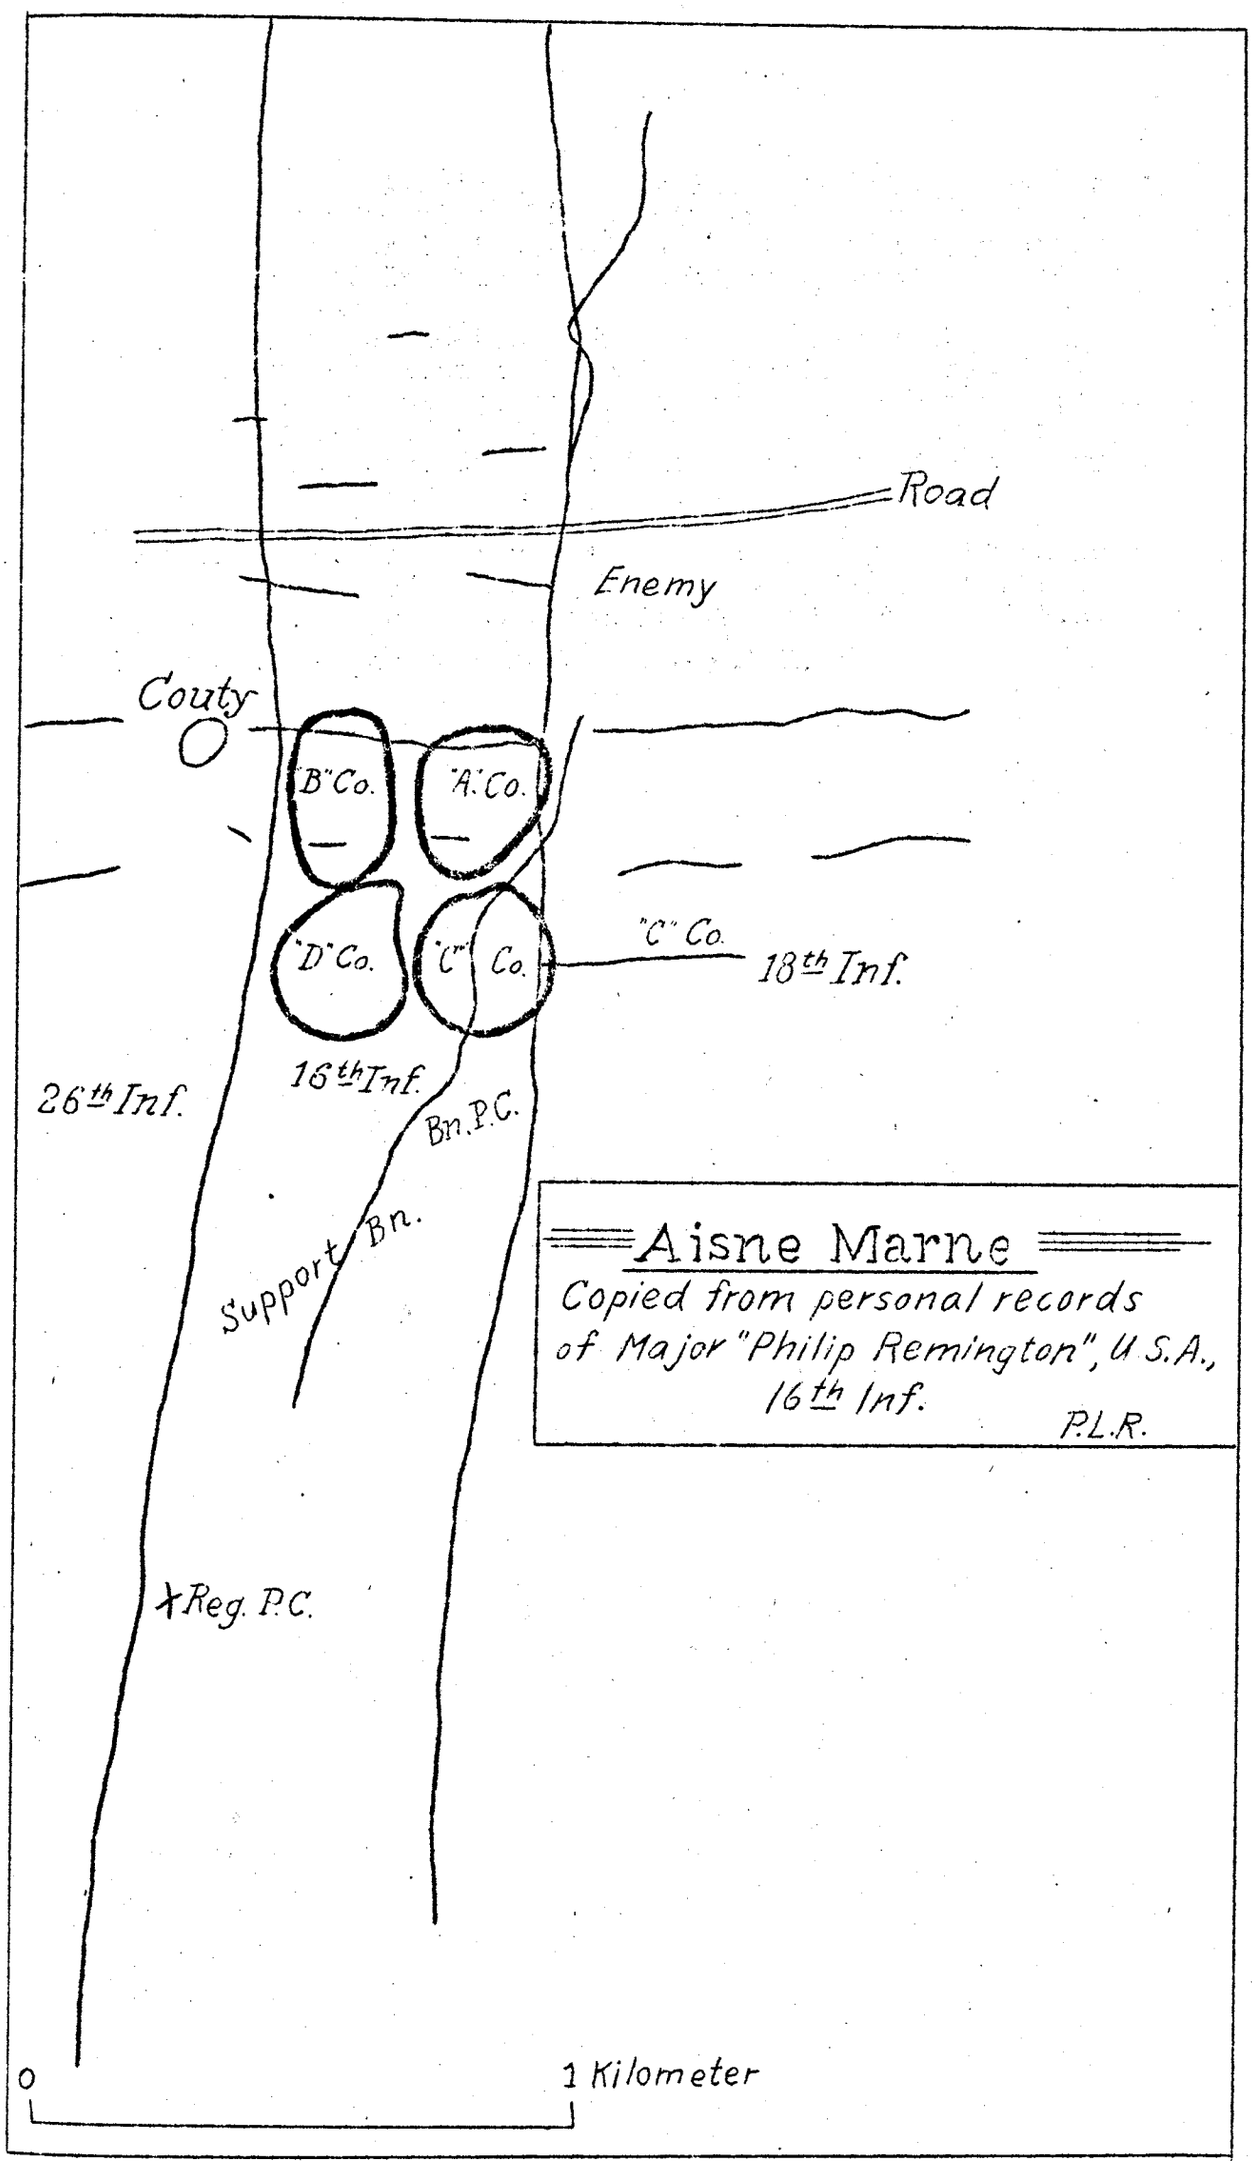

3 Thatif Infantyr can not work automatically it will not do for a heavy fightand that the Bn. commander must do his work in the training camp as there is but little he can do in a heavy fight.

4 That the American soldier does not have to be worked up to a point to kill, neither do they need to see an officer in front of them all the time in order to advance. In this case the officers and men were too reckless

5 That more chances should be taken with the animal transportation in bringing supplies up-that if it keeps off of the roads it can come within a half to a quarter of a mile of the front line with very little loss, during the night-it should be met by guides wellto to the rear.

Memorandum to Commanding General, 1st Inf. Brig., 1st Div. AEF.

1. Not being the senior Officer present at Cornieville, did not consider that I had authority to prescribe any signal other than the ones usually employed such as the Klaxon horns.

Instructions have just been given for all men to take cover at sounding of "Attention" on the bugle. Many of our men are new and do not recognize the calls.

2. Verbal and written instructions were given on arrival to all Commanders to have men keep under cover and to reduce circulation to the minimum. (See inclosed memorandum which was issued at 8:00 A.M*.

EDITORS NOTE:*This Memorandum has not been found. - P.L.R.

1 The Bn had been camping in the woows about two kilometers south of Roulencourt* for two or three days when orders were received to take a position as shown on map B for an attack, which was to extend from our position eastwards to a considerable distance. My Bn was to be the second -line Bn up to the point shown on map C which was north of the jumping off position about five kilometers then it was to become the 1st. line Bn. and advance beyond the town of Nonsard and consolidate as shown on map D which was to be the final position for that day

The general scheme was to cut off the St. Mihiel salient by a drive from the south with Bouconville as the left of the line and one from the west, meeting the second day at Vigneulls*1 - the French had the left of the line and were to advance as far as Mt. Sec-on their ~~left~~ right was the 18th Inf. then the 16th then the 28 26th. The 28th was to refuse its flanks as the movement progressed and face to the west, connecting with the French - the 16th was to connect the 18th with the 28th as shown in D--Cav. patrols were to reconnoiter the wood in front of Nonsard after the position was consolidated. Another probable movement was that the 28th would move forward and face the west in prolongation of the 16th-18th Inf but we were to understand that this was only a probable movement and not as yet adopted in the scheme- to the right of our Div were other Divisions.

2 cThe Artillery was to start their preparation fire at one A.M. and the barrage at five A.M., its rate was one hundred yards in four minutes also the barrage was to rest in front of the first position until eleven A.M. when it wasto move forward and raise off of Nonsard at one P.M. and remain active about six hundred yards in front of our final position until three P.M.- There was to be no gas shells but some smoke bombs in the barrage.

3 Tanks were to assist in the attack but it was understood that later in the day they would probably be with the troops on our right.

4 Orders and maps were received on the eleventh of Sept for the attack on the following day and they were carefully gone over with each Company Commander- later all officers and N.C.O. of the Bn. were assembled and the order gone over- maps were furnished- they were good and well marked with our boundary and positions we were to occupy.

5 In our finel position we were subjected to attack from the front or left flank, with most of the roads converging at about the center of our position with one unimproved road leading from the north into the right of our position- these roads looked like the most probable routes for enemy tanks.
Disposition- D Co., right front; A left front; Bri right rear & C left rear, (similar to formation in I.D.R. page 138 except that after the Bn. became the leading Bn. and the leading platoons deployed there was no interval between ~~the platoons of the leading companies--the automatic rifles were in rear of the on~~ the platoons of the leading companies- the automatic rifles were in rear of their respective Companies-two machine guns were for antiair-craft and in rear of the leading companies, the remainder with the Stokes mortars & one-pounders were in rear of the support Companies. Companies were to remain in this formation at the first halt and follow the barrage to Nonsard- D Co. capture Nonsard and pass through the town and consolidate in front of Nonsard about three hundred yards (see D) - B Co. was to mop-up Nonsard with three platoons while the fourth was consolidating in rear and then the whole company was to consolidate in rear (D) A&C Co's to consolidate as shown in (D) -machine guns were to take positions near the supports where they could command the ground to the front- the one-pounder was to cover the roads leading into the west end of town- the mortars did not show up. Companies were to dig in by squads, in the ~~pesi~~ formation they halted in.-D&B Co's to establish liason posts with the 28th and A Co. with the 18th.- A&C Co's furnished the liason patrols during the advance.

6 Men went over with light packs, leaving their packs in the wood south of Roulencourt*- each man carried 200 rounds of rifle ammunition, one clip of automatic ammunition, 2 offessive grenades and a rocket or light, also two days rations- the machine guns went without animals or carts.

7 We marched from our position at 8P.M. on the twelfth into the position as shown in B -th Bn. was in position at one A.M. when the artillery opened up, it rained most of the night. At five A.M. we started the advance, following the leading Bn. at 600 yards and when within about one kilometer from the first objective we received a little machine gun fire, possibly one or two guns to our right front and shortly after our barrage shifted and fell on A Co. (the Bn. was 80% recrutes) and this company started to mill around, it loked as if they were about to break and run so I started over to help the Capt. (he had but one officer with him and he was new and inexperienced) as Ireached the company the barrage had moved and the N.C.O's. had the men in hand (the Captain was killed and about fifteen men killed or wounded). When we reached the first objective the enemy threw about a dozen shells into our position- direct fire from some guns about 800 yds to our front, this fire did not last over five minutes - the tanks that with us at the start had disappeare -most of them had engine trouble and I could see several stalledXXX in rear of our position. about the time we were settled two enemy planes flew along the position they were low and the machine guns drove them off- I could see no friendly planes at this time. One of our guns firing smoke bombs and one or two firing H.E. were falling short, between the two leading companies (C) this was reported to the Reg. Commander who declined to XXX ask the artillery to raise these guns. we rested here about an hour when the barrage lifted and we followed along. The barrage was about four minutes late in moving forward as it was to lift at eleven A.M. from this position, during thest four minutes I was having a discussion with the Reg. Commander who had ordered me to move my Bn. through our barrage- I told him I would not think of doing such a XXXX thing under the circumstances. As we moved forward the Companies on the left went into position and started to consolidate (D) they were in position and digging in while D Co. was resting in rear of Nonsard waiting for the barrage to lift offe of the town (one platoon to the South East of town, one to the South West and two South) about the time the barrage lifted the Reg. Commander appeared-took one platoon of C,Co, and B, Co. into the town to capture it, telling the commanding officer of B Co. to consolidate in front of Nonsard and the Commanding officer of D, Co. to mop up the town andconsolidate in rear-this upset our previous plans as we were unable to train but one company formopping up owing to lack of material and grenades and B Co. was the only company that had large maps of the town- before word could be sent to the platoon leaders of B&C, Co's. they had entered the town with their platoons and were carrying out their original missions. I entered the town about five minutes after the companies and saw one platon or B Co. consolidating in rear of the town as I entered. I was talking to thr Reg. Commander when this platoon marched up and the Platoon leader asked me where he was to go with his platoon. I was informed later from the commanding officers of B&D. Co's about the change in orders- D Co. had gone through the town and B Co. was still mopping-up so I told them to consolidate as originaly planned and we could change later if necessary so we consolidated as shown ~~in-(D)~~ on map.

The barrage lifted about three P.M. and a patrol of one platoon was sent out as shown in D. At about five thirty the regiment on our right formed up and moved forward and at six forty I noticed our support Bn. moving up and the Bn. Commander told me my Bn. was to move forward so I hurried to the Bn. P.C. and found orders there- the company commanders had been sent for and I issued the order to move forward---Bn. will form on Vigneulls*l road, leading companies eight hundred yards in front of Nonsard-companies to keep their same position in the Bn. and consolidate on the rail road, pointing out positions on the map, we were to extend three hundred yards on each side of the road. nothing in the order mentioned the troops on our right or left so I told the company commanders to look for and get in liason with the troops on their flanks. We moved out and at seven five B & D Co'S were formed up, at seven ten the Reg. Commander arrived and told me to move out and not wait for the other two companies, machine gun company etc. so we moved forward changing D Co. to the left front Co. and sending runners to the others telling them about the change. I left the Bn. staff at the near edge of the wood to direct the rear companies as it was dark by this time. We found about two platoons of the 28th Inf. one half kilometer from the north edge of the wood, but they had los liason with their command and did not knew whwre it was. We consolidated and at about nine thirty sent patrols out as shown in E. The machine guns and one - pounder~~swerwe~~ were along the roads near the support companies

8 The enemy had antisipated this attack and drawn most of their troops out and what remained were willing to surrender or withdraw, we captured six or eight pieces, 6" just after leaving the first objective-the patrol sent out (West 1½ K) from Nonsard captured several trucks and about twelve men also some horses
About a dozen men were captured in Nonsard. During the afternoon we could see the enemy burning stores in the wood to our front and left front at a distance of about three kilometers. A Cav. patrol went out at about four P.M. as shown on D -they received a little machine gun fire in the wood. The patrols sent out at the last position captured in the neighborhood of 230 men and a number of machine guns (E). D Co. patrol had hardly moved out when it captured an officer and eight men they said they were the advance guard for two companies marching out along the rail road, they did not appear however but the patrol sent out from C Co. picked them up in small groups during the nightalso a number of machine guns- the patrol leader was in advance of his patrol with two men when he ran into a group with six or eight machine guns covering the road he was coming up and told them to surrender, the Sgt. in charge told him to surrender indicating he had more men- the patrol leader pointed down the road and called his men up and as soon they appeared the Germans walked from behind their guns and surrendered.

The B Co. patrol reported that Americans were in Vigneulles. A patrol was sent out at daylight which went beyond Vigneulles and returned through the wood to the west of Vigneulles but saw no enemy.

Lessons I learned from this action:

1 That it is hard to accomplish much with Inf. that is not well trained (about 80% were recruites, 60% had never thrown a live grenade, 80% could not speak our language and about 70% had never fired a rifle when they joined us which was about two weeks previously. N.C.O's. were sent up with the replacements who were no better instructed than the men.

2 That two officers can not conduct a Bn. independent of one another.

3 That an experienced officer should remain at Reg. Hq. to transmit orders etc. in the absence of the C.O. - although we had telephonic connections with the Reg. P.C. at all times it took an important order over two hours to reach me and over an hour and one half to reach my P.C.

4 That the men carried too much weight and were pretty tired at the end of 24 hours.

5 That platoon leaders should as a rule be in rear of their platoon.

6 That it requires more than two officers to a company.

7 That a young officer with no training outside of the training camp can not handle a company in action.

OPERATIONS REPORTS

REGIMENT

Headquarters Company, 28th Infantry,
AMEX Force, France, October 29, 1917.

From: The Commanding Officer, Hqrs. Co., 28th Infantry.

To: The Commanding Officer, 28th Infantry.

Subject: Housing of Troops.

1. In compliance with instructions, your office, of Oct. 28, 1917, the following report is rendered:

Of the enlisted men of this organization, two hundred are quartered in barns (without fire or artificial light) in the western part of the townof Treveray.

In this section the water level is but two feet below the surface of the ground on which the men sleep. These billets were damp when first occupied, and, owing to their construction, have never dried out. Since the recent heavy rains they have become worse, clothing and equipments remain wet, and with the advent of colder weather, epidemics of throat and lung diseases may be expected. This Organization, like others of the Command, has had numerous cases of colds and bronchial trouble, some of which resulted seriously, and the outlook for this winter is decidedly bad.

There are no other billets available, storage of crops necessatated moving the troops into such as could be obtained, and, owing to the crowding, sanitary conditions are most favorable for the generation and communication of diseases.

If it were possible to obtain section barracks, either floored or unfloored, with windows or without, it would be conducive to the physical welfare and contentment, as well as increased cleanliness and discipline, of the men.

There is no recreation room in this town (except the saloons) where the men may read and keep warm at night. The Y.M.C.A. has a large, cold, cheerless, building, lighted by an occasional candle, and inadequately warmed by one small stove of Government issue. If barracks can be obtained, even though not in sufficient number to house the whole company, it would most imphatically improve conditions, and the capacity of those errected can be doubled by arranging the bunks "double decker" style.

A well aired store room for explosives is also required. Ammonite and T.N.T. derivitives rapidly deteriorate when exposed to ~~XXX~~ damp. A recent test was made of Stokes Mortar shells on their arrival here, and three in ten of the first lot tested, failed to explode. A greater unreliability may be looked for in the future. Many cases of defective 37 Mm. gun, shells, are also reported, believed to be due to the same cause, decomposition of explosives, due to dampness.

I suggest the following order for the use of any structures that can be obtained:

1st Kitchens
2nd Sleeping Quarters
3rd Stables
4th Storage for Explosives
5th Baths
6th Amusement Rooms

Present strength of Organization . . . . . 266.
Authorized strength . . . . . 294.
None of the above are in barracke.

Respectfully submitted,

J. M. Cullison,
Captain, 28th Infantry.

OPERATIONS REPORTS

FIRST ENGINEER REGIMENT

HEADQUARTERS, FIRST DIVISION,
Office of the Division Engineer,
AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, FRANCE.

August 19, 1918.

Memorandum for Colonel Pope:

WORKS.

Of the 6 companies of the regiment, 4 are engaged on work on the Second Position, 1 is on road work and construction at the railhead west of Manoncourt and one is working on the Barrage Position.

The companies are distributed as follows: First Battalion has the left of the sector with headquarters at the Camp des Territoriaux. The Second Battalion has the right of the sector with headquarters at Jezainville.

By direction of the Corps Engineer, the sector is divided into two districts, No. 3 on the right and No. 4 on the left, the commanding officers of the 1st and 2nd Battalions being in charge of the work in these districts respectively. The dividing line of the districts, as well as the divisional sector limits, is shown on the large map in the office.

The cantonments of the companies and their work are shown in the following table:

Company	Cantonment	Work.
"A"	Camp des Territoriaux	C.R.Montjoie:C.R.Fagnet: 3 Combat Groups in C.R.Eloi.
"B"	Francheville:	Barrage Position.
"C"	2 sections Camp des Territoriaux: 1 section with "D" Company: 1 section at railhead W. of Manoncourt:	Road work: Work on railhoad: C.R.Ache: C.R.Rucher.
"D"	Jezainville:	C.R.Ache: C.R.Rucher.
"E"	Camp des Antonistes:	C.R.Noisette:C.R.Charbonnier: 40 men at Compressor Group N.W.of Griscourt.
"F"	Camp de Jonc Fontaine:	C.R.Batterie: 2Combat Groups of C.R.Eloi: 40 men at dump in Puvenelle forest: 30 men at dump Dieulouard: 40 men at Compressor Group La Fontaine aux Chiens.

The road work is under Captain Bowles of the American Road Service. He has some road troops at Villers-en-Haye.

Work on the Barrage Position is directly under the Corps Engineer and reports are rendered directly to him.

The second position, (indicated as Position 2 bis on the maps) is the position where the principal resistance is to be made in case of attack. The project contemplates having four parallels, the parallele de surveillance, parallele principale, parallele de soutien and parallele des reduits. The parallele de surveillance is chiefly for outposts and has wire entanglement in front, flanked, in some cases, by machine guns. Each of the other parallels consists of a series of combat groups connected by the parallele which is used chiefly as a communication trench, although used for defense in some cases in the vicinity of the combat groups. Each Combat Group consists of one or two machine guns, automatic rifles, rifle grenade posts, hand grenade posts, riflemen's trench and shelter, the entire combat group being surrounded by wire entanglements. Each combat group is studied individually and a plan made on a scale of 1:1000. I except to have the plans of all combat groups of the parallele principale on file before I leave. The wire project for the parallele de soutien and the parallele des reduits is completed and shown on maps which I will turn over to you. The detailed studies of the combat groups of these two paralleles have not yet been made. When made, they should be submitted to the Corps Engineer.

A French officer, 2nd Lieut. Lasseur, is stationed at Marbache with the Division Engineer of the 82nd Division. He will be liaison officer for both you and the Division Engineer of the 82nd Division with respect to the Corps Engineer. He can be used to assist you and your officers in connection with working studies of combat groups and for other similar purposes. Each battalion commander has a French Aspirant attached - Aspirant Bourreilles for the First Battalion and Aspirant Badan for the Second Battalion.

I have nothing to do with the road work except to furnish the company for that work and I likewise have nothing to do with the work on the Barrage Position except to furnish the company.

It has been impossible for us to get barbed wire for the entanglements and we have had to use smooth wire.

There are four battalions of infantry available for work on the 2nd Position, under the Engineers, they being the battalions that constitute the garrison of that position. The commanding officer of District No. 3 has control of the three right Infantry battalions and the commanding officer of the 4th District of the left battalion. Each Infantry company is supposed to turn out three or four of its platoons for work, and to work Eight(8) hours per day.

Infantry do not work for two days after a Relief and one day before a Relief so you get them four days out of seven.

Except in the open, work can be carried out in daytime without difficulty.

Work is carried on daily, Sundays included, but one seventh (1/7) of the men in each Engineer Co. are off duty daily.

REPORTS.

Each Engineer Company submits a daily report in tabular form covering, Kind and amount of work done (metric measurements), where it was done, number of men used and from what organization. This should be in before 10 A.M. and a consolidated report is then made up in this office and submitted to the Corps Engineer by 7 P.M.

Each Company similarly makes a tabular weekly report showing work during the week (Friday noon to Friday noon), to be in this Office by Saturday noon. The consolidated reports are sent to the Corps Engineer Sunday. Companies also send at the same time a Plan Navette of their sector showing progress during week and a Plan of each Combat Group and dugout, showing progress by color. These are not sent to Corps Engineer, but a plan navette of the whole position is sent showing progress during the work.

Where no Infantry is available for work state reason in foot note of daily report.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Part of the 37th Engineers (Electrical and Mechanical) is located in Toul at Caserne Dedon near the Railway Station. I suggest that you get a lighting outfit from them for lighting Division Headquarters.

L V Frazier,
Colonel, Corps of Engineers,
Division Engineer.

Camouflage Officer for Corps, Captain Root, No.4 Route de Nancy, Marbache.

Memorandum:

METHODS OF ORDERING CARS AND MATERIALS IN SAIZERAIS SECTOR.

Cars on 60 cm. Railroad.

1. Must be ordered two days in advance.
2. Must be ordered in trains of three or six cars.
3. Form for ordering as follows:

_____Division.
Genie

Demande de Transport.
pour le_____Aout, 1918.

6 Plateformes pour transport de materiel

Point de Chargement: (Parc du Genie a Dieulouard)

Point de destination:(Parc Puvenelle)

Le____Aout, 1918.

By Order of Div. Engineer.

Signed_____

This order may be telephoned to the 32nd Army Corps at Toul.

This order is submitted to Capt. Charpentier of the 32nd Corps at Toul who will notify you at 6 P.M. on the night preceeding the arrival of the train, of the exact time of arrival and departure of the train.

Material is ordered as follows:

Posts for Wire Entanglement are obtained from the dump at the South End of the Bois Brule. They can be transported by truck or 60 cm. R.R. to Puvenelle or ST. Jean. It is necessary to have a loading detail there a half hour before the cars are scheduled to arrive, and an unloading detail at the destination. Other Engineer material is ordered from the 32nd French Corps at Toul, who will notify you when and where material can be obtained.

Capt. Charpentier of the 32nd Corps at Toul is in charge of all materials and 60 cm. transportation.

PERMANENT DETAILS.

40 men at the Dump at Dieulouard.
30 men at the Dumpaat Puvenelle.

GENERAL INFORMATION REGARDING DUMP AND MATERIAL.

The main receiving Dump is at Dieulouard, which is located on the normal gauge R.R. Material is transported from here to the main distributing Dump at Puvenelle by 60 cm. R.R.

Material in 6 car train shipments (such as sand and gravel) may be shipped by the Corps direct to any station on the 60 cm. R.R.

Two small distributing Dumps are located at St. Jean and Jezainville, the former being located on the 60 cm. line and the latter dependent on truck transportation. These are used chiefly for tools and materials which will be used immediately.

Material may be ordered through G - 1, from the American Army dump at Leonval. In general it will require more time to get material from this source than from the French.

Memorandum for G-3:

1. Report from Major Farrell received today, states that the 51st Pioneer Infantry arrived with two companies, one containing two hundred forty men and the other containing about fifty-nine men. Major Farrell reports that the officer in charge of the second company stated that other men were left behind on necessary detail. This matter appears to be worthy of investigation later as it is absurd that an organization of 250 men ordered to report, would report with only 59 men.

2. The effect on the proposed operations is very marked: There are left, after other details ordered have been made, not to exceed 100 Engineer soldiers for roadwork. With the Pioneer Infantry added, there will be approximately 400 soldiers for roadwork. All plans have been based upon receiving two full companies of Pioneer Infantry, making a total of 600 men for roadwork. The effect will be more apparent from the following table:

Roads	Length	Time for 400 men.	Time for 600 men.
Artillery roads only, south of Rupt de Madt.....	22 kilom...	5 5/10 hrs..	3 7/10 hrs.
Artillery roads only, north of Rupt de Madt.....	12 " ...	3 hours.....	2 hours.
Axial road beyond Corps Line	6 1/2 Km..	3 3/10 hrs..	2 2/10 hrs.

From the foregoing table, it will be seen that the movement of artillery from its first position to its second position will probably not be made earlier than "H" plus 5 hours 30 minutes with the number of men available for roadwork, and that the artillery cannot be moved to its third position earlier than "H" plus 8 hours 30 minutes, whereas, had the full number of men reported, the artillery could have moved to its second position at "H" plus 4 and to its third position at "H" plus 6. With the number of men actually available, it seems improbable that the road system for supply and for the evacuation of the wounded can be made ready earlier than "H" plus 12, whereas, with the full number of men, it is probable that the system could be made ready by "H" plus 8.

3. The time allowances stated above are believed to be strict rather liberal. If greater speed than that indicated is required, it will be necessary to obtain more Engineer troops or more working parties to accompany the present troops.

From: Regt. Gas Officer, 1st Engrs.,

To: Commanding Officer, 1st Engrs.,

Subject: Report.

1. Following is report of resu;t of investigation. made this date, of gas casualties suffered by Co. "C" on Oct. 6th.

(a) The company was performing road work near Boulny during the A.M. and standing to until about 2:30 P.M.

(b) General harrassing fire of the area was being carried out only high explosive shell being used.

(c) The area had been subjected to shelling by Yellow Cross about ten hours previous to the company beginning work there and any gas which effected the men was the result of the H.E. shell volatizing the gas remaining in the ground from the previous bombardment.

(d) The officers and N.C.O's. in charge of the sections stated that they smelled gas at various times but never in strong concentration therefore they did not consider it sufficient to warrant the ordering of the wearing os gas masks. One Section leader stated that he did not give the order because there was an officer in charge of the section at the time and that he was present when the gas was smelled. The officer in question stated that he had had no experience with gas having been in France but two months, whereas the sergeant has been with the regiment nearly two years and has had considerable experience with gas.

(e) The few cases of burns resulted from men taking shelter in infected shell holes from the H.E. shelling.

(f) With the exception of the few cases of burns all the casualties, approximately 120. were avoidable Had the men worn their masks while in the area, or, after the presence of gas had been detected, been removed, no casualties would have resulted.

(g) The failure of the responsible officers or non-commissioned officers to order the masks worn when the gas was first detected, even though it was in very low concentration, was the cause of excessive number ofcasualties.
