14. ABSTRACT On May 10-11, 2010, leading scientists and engineers of the tribological community convened at a workshop sponsored by the Air Force Office of Scientific Research to explore and identify future areas of fundamental tribological research. The changing landscape of fundamental knowledge, the development of new experimental, simulation, and modeling tools, and the rapid emergence of new technologies relying upon advanced tribological performance together provided the impetus for the workshop. Workshop participants are listed in Appendix A.
