FOREWORD

The subject of pack artillery is covered in this short number. Selections have been made from the book, report, and periodical holdings of the Morris Swett Library. An arbitrarily devised acronym has been devised for the periodical articles.

Pack artillery consists of weapons light enough to be easily transported by animals - usually horses or mules. Weapons, such as the 75mm howitzer, are disassembled and carried into mountains or jungles for a tactical purpose. Some areas of the world still accomodate this method of pursuing warfare.

Inclusion of an item, or ommission, does not imply USAFAS indorsement or sanction of the compiler's point-of-view nor does it guarantee accuracy of content. Comment and criticism concerning this list is solicited.

Rudyard Kipling on pack/mountain artillery:

"They send us along where the roads are, but mostly we goes
where they ain't:

We'd climb up the side of a sign-board an' trust to the stick o' the paint...

An' a drop into nothin' beneath you as straight as a beggar can spit."
