1.0 Introduction and summary

The Marine Corps Combat Readiness Evaluation System (MCCRES) uses simulated combat to evaluate the readiness of Fleet Marine Force (FMF) units, including Reserve units. The system is based on mission performance standards (MPS) which cover virtually everything the units could be expected to be able to do and the evaluations determine whether or not these standards can be met. On the average, a unit such as an infantry battalion or an aviation squadron is evaluated once every two years and reports are submitted through chains of command to Headquarters, U.S. Marine Corps (HQMC). The present report describes the data base constructed from 937 evaluations which, as of 30 September 1985, covers all evaluations conducted since MCCRES became operational in 1978.

By definition, a formal MCCRES evaluation is one directed as set forth in the Marine Corps Order, Reference [9], and any other type is informal. Formal evaluations are usually conducted just prior to deployment of the FMF unit being evaluated, reports are required to be submitted to HQMC, and results are entered into the MCCRES data base. Informal evaluations are conducted for a variety of training purposes, no reports are required to be submitted to HQMC, and they are not entered into the data base. Essentially all of the data in the present report, both as generated in the field and as processed for HQMC, have been produced using the Marine Corps Combat Readiness Evaluation System Software Applications (MCCRESSA) files and programs.

Background on both MCCRES and MCCRESSA is contained in Section 2.0 of the present report and Appendix "A." The latter lists the nomenclature for the parts of MCCRES which are most important for the present report, namely the "volumes" and "sections."

A convenient classification scheme for formal MCCRES evaluations is introduced in Section 3.0 of the present report. Four kinds of evaluations are defined depending upon the ways in which they were designed and implemented in the field: "primal," "supplemental," "additional," and "nominal."

Section 4.0 of the present report, together with Appendix "B," defines and lists all unit-types, that is, all of the types of units (infantry battalion, F/A-18 squadron, and so on), all commands (2D Marines, 3D Marine Air Wing, and so on), and the individual FMF units (1/2, VMFA-314, and so on) and detachments, which appear in the MCCRES data base.

Section 5.0 of the present report, together with Appendixes "C," "D," and "E," defines the collection of MCCRES evaluations in terms of three kinds of serial numbers: HQMC file numbers, GWU evaluation numbers, and closing dates within fiscal years.

Section 6.0 of the present report briefly describes methods for readiness forecasting, or equivalently, for obtaining measures of average performance, based on results from MCCRES evaluations. Appendix "F" describes categorizations of MCCRES requirements which figure prominently in this approach.

The final Section 7.0 of the present report, together with Appendixes "G," "H," and "J," defines and illustrates three important kinds of readiness forecasts, namely by using populations for the same unit-type, for the same command, or for one particular FMF unit or detachment.

In conclusion, no readiness findings for FMF units or detachments are included in the present report but the text and nine appendixes treat the data base in considerable detail.

2.0 Background on MCCRES and MCCRESSA

Since 1 July 1978 it has been mandatory that formal MCCRES evaluations based on simulated combat be used to evaluate the readiness of FMF units. Volume I of MCCRES (see Reference [9]) provides an introduction and in all there are nine volumes, namely

- I. Introduction
- II. Infantry units
- III. Rotary wing and observation squadrons
- IV. Fixed wing squadrons
- V. Combat support elements
- VI. Combat service support elements
- VII. Marine air/ground task force headquarters
- VIII. The Marine air command and control system (MACCS)
- IX. Special operations

As listed in Appendix "A," Volumes II through IX are partitioned into different sections A, B, C, ...

The complete (five-level) hierarchical structure of MCCRES consists of five kinds of elements. As previously specified, and illustrated in Appendix "A", each (first-level) volume (namely, II through IX) consists of (second-level) sections. Each section consists of (third-level) MPSs which, in turn, consist of (fourth-level) tasks, which consist of (fifth-level) requirements. To design a formal MCCRES evaluation, each element must be judged to be either applicable, or not applicable (N/A), according respectively, as it will, or will not, be used to evaluate the readiness of the FMF unit. (In more technical terms, the range of candidate requirements is actually the totality of requirements which are not undefined; for example, all VMFA requirements in Section B of Volume IV are undefined--and not merely N/A--for the evaluation of a VMGR squadron (see [6, p.5])). For some units (especially infantry) there are more MPS than can possibly be evaluated during a single evaluation (over several days) and other considerations, such as available resources or special training needs, also influence which MCCRES elements are applicable for a particular formal evaluation. When the evaluation is completed, each applicable requirement has been scored either Yes or No according, respectively, as it was "Met" or "Not Met".

As shown in Appendix "A," MCCRES volumes are subdivided into sections A, B, C, ... denoted by "V.S" where "V" identifies the volume and "S" the section; for example, 2.A, 2.B, ... denote sections A, B, ... of Volume II, and so forth. Sections gather together related MPS and for several reasons they receive most of the attention in the present report.

First, individual sections in some cases define evaluations of separate units. For example, a single Volume V evaluation (for a battalion landing team) provides several individual evaluations (for artillery, engineer, tank, amphibious, and reconnaissance units); in this respect, each section in Volume V plays the role of a volume such as II, III, or IV. Volume VIII is organized similarly to Volume V in this respect, namely, that only one section will be applicable--and all others will be undefined--in an evaluation.

Second, sections are used in special ways for evaluations of aviation elements under Volumes III and IV; this is described in 4.1 in connection with the use of "primal sections" in definitions of FMF unit-types.

Third, the MCCRES sections figure prominently in the approach to readiness forecasting presented in 6.0 and illustrated in 7.0. It is not possible to forecast, or to determine measures of average performance at the volume level without going to at least the section level. And once this is done, as in 6.0 and 7.0, it is straightforward to work at the more detailed levels of MPS, tasks, or requirements.

The present MCCRESSA was established in 1981-1982 as a by-product of research at George Washington University (GWU) jointly sponsored by the Office of Naval Research (ONR) and HQMC. All current MCCRESSA computer programs, both in HQMC and in the field, are direct conversions of GWU programs originally written to generate data for research. The GWU programs proved to be portable (for running on Automated Data Processing Equipment-FMF (ADPE-FMF) devices) and eminently suitable for use in the field during MCCRES evaluations. Indeed, where original ADPE-FMF programs required three to six hours to compute results for a MCCRES evaluation, the converted GWU programs require only about five minutes. Reference [6] provides a brief description of the (MCCRESSA) files and programs that have been completed; detailed documentation appears in [7] and [8].

3.0 Kinds of MCCRES evaluations

Officially there are only two kinds of MCCRES evaluations, formal and informal. Formal evaluations are those directed as set forth in [9], reports are required to be submitted to HQMC, and results are entered into the MCCRES data base. Informal evaluations are those conducted for a variety of training purposes, no reports are required to be submitted to HQMC, and they are not entered into the data base. But for the MCCRES data base as it has evolved in practice, it is convenient to define four different kinds of formal MCCRES evaluations so that each MCCRES evaluation in the data base falls under one, and only one, of the following classifications.

3.01 Primal. A primal evaluation is one for which the directed MCCRES volume is used. For example, an evaluation of an artillery battalion based on Volume V is a primal evaluation.

3.02 Supplemental. A supplemental evaluation is one which satisfies two conditions. First, it is based on a MCCRES volume which is not the directed one for the unit. Second, it is accompanied by a concurrent primal evaluation. For example, if Volume II is used in addition to Volume V to evaluate an artillery battalion, then the parts corresponding to Volume II constitute a supplemental evaluation.

3.03 Additional. This kind of evaluation does not involve the directed MCCRES volume. That is, an additional evaluation is one which is based on a MCCRES volume not the directed one for the unit and for which there is no accompanying primal evaluation (so that it does not constitute a supplemental evaluation.) For example, if a combat service support element is evaluated using parts of Volume II (or Volume V), without any use of Volume VI, then it is an additional evaluation.

3.04 Nominal. A nominal evaluation is simply an informal evaluation which nevertheless appears in the MCCRES data base. For example, no results may have been submitted or, for some other reason, it was eventually decided in HQMC that the evaluation should be treated as an informal one.

Primal evaluations are the most common but substantial numbers of supplementals (and a few additional) appear for ground force elements. Except for VMO squadrons (for which parts of both Volumes III and IV have regularly been used), only primal evaluations appear for aviation elements.

4.0 Unit-types, commands, and individual units

A structure, mainly dependent on MCCRES sections, has been provided so that individual FMF units and detachments can be associated with formal evaluations in several useful ways. Specifically, each formal evaluation has an associated triplet, namely which identifies the subject of the evaluation. The scheme which has evolved is presented in the following three sections.

(Unit or detachment, unit-type, command)

4.1 Unit-types appearing in the data base

For purposes of the MCCRES data base, all FMF units and detachments which have been formally evaluated have been assigned unit-types as follows. For ground forces, the designation of the unit suffices to identify the unit-type under which it falls: infantry battalion, battery, and so on. But for aviation elements--Volumes III, IV, and VIII--it is necessary in most cases to know the (predominant) aircraft type or other major equipment that was used during the evaluation. For example, an HMM squadron has unit-type "CH-53" or "CH-53E", an HMM squadron is "COMPOSITE" or not, a VMFA has "F-4" or "F/A-18", and so on. And in the Marine Air Command and Control System (MACCS)--Volume VIII--an Air Support Radar Team (ASRT) has unit-type "AN/TPQ-10" or "AN/TPB-1D".

Unit-types are also associated with (applicable) MCCRES sections by defining primal sections, namely the necessarily applicable MCCRES sections. For example, evaluations of infantry battalions must have both 2.A and 2.B applicable, HMA squadrons must have 3.E applicable, and so on. Conversely, and again with exceptions in Volumes III, IV, and VIII, primal sections serve to define the unit-type. For example, if an evaluation has both 2.A and 2.B applicable the unit-type must be INFANTRY BATTALION, if 5.C is applicable it must be ENGINEER ELEMENT, and so on.

Uses of unit identifiers, aircraft types, MACCS equipment, and the relevance of primal sections should be clear from the following list which includes all unit-types.

Directed Volume	Primal Sections	Unit-Type	(III, IV only) Squadron Type
II	2.A, 2.B	INFANTRY BATTALION

4.2 Commands appearing in the data base

At the highest level there are five commands under which MCCRES evaluations have been entered into the data base, namely

FMF ATLANTIC
 FMF PACIFIC
 1ST MARINE BRIGADE (now designated 1ST MAB)
 7TH MAB
 U.S. MARINE CORPS RESERVE (USMCR)

As is explained below, each formal evaluation has been classified under one of the above five commands.

4.2.1 FMF ATLANTIC

Each formal evaluation under "FMF ATLANTIC" falls under one of the following eight commands.

	Command
INFANTRY REGIMENTS	2D MARINES 6TH MARINES 8TH MARINES
COMBAT SUPPORT	10TH MARINES FMF ATLANTIC
AVIATION	2D MARINE AIR WING MACG-28
COMBAT SERVICE SUPPORT	2D FSSG

The three infantry regiments are those which are actually deployed; 2/4 and 3/4 are included under 2D and 6TH MARINES, respectively. Artillery elements (batteries and battalions) are those of the 10TH MARINES. The entry "FMF ATLANTIC" under "COMBAT SUPPORT" is used for combat support elements which are not artillery, namely, 2D Combat Engineer Battalion, 2D Tank Battalion, 2D Assault Amphibian Battalion, and 2D Reconnaissance Battalion.

4.2.2 FMF PACIFIC

Each formal evaluation under "FMF PACIFIC" falls under one of the following eleven commands.

	Command
INFANTRY REGIMENTS	1ST MARINES 5TH MARINES 7TH MARINES
COMBAT SUPPORT	11TH MARINES 12TH MARINES FMF PACIFIC
AVIATION	3D MARINE AIR WING MACG-38 MACG-18
COMBAT SERVICE SUPPORT	1ST FSSG 3D FSSG

Again, the infantry regiments are those which are actually deployed; 1/9, 2/9, and 3/9 are included under 1ST, 5TH, and 7TH MARINES respectively. Artillery elements of 12TH MARINES, namely 2/12 and 3/12, are actually from the 3D Marine Division. The entry "FMF PACIFIC" is used for all combat support elements which are not artillery, namely, elements of the various 1ST (and also 3D) combat support battalions. Notice also that MACG-18 appears separately but no other evaluations are associated with the 1ST Marine Air Wing. Finally, formal evaluations of the 3D FSSG also appear separately.

4.2.3 1ST MARINE BRIGADE (Now designated 1ST MAB)

Formal evaluations under 1ST MARINE BRIGADE (now designated 1ST MAB) fall under the following four commands.

	Command
INFANTRY REGIMENT	3D MARINES
COMBAT SUPPORT	1ST MARINE BRIGADE (now 1ST MAB)
AVIATION	MARINE AIR GROUP 24
COMBAT SERVICE SUPPORT	1ST BSSG

Combat support elements are mainly from 1/12. The MACCS unit MACS-2 is included under MARINE AIR GROUP 24.

4.2.4 7TH MAB

Formal evaluations under the 7TH MAB have the single command identifier "7TH MAB." This applies to the following: 1/4, 4/11, BTR G/3/12, BTR R/5/12, and elements of the 3D Tank Battalion.

4.2.5 USMCR

Formal evaluations of Reserve units fall under the following eight commands.

	Command
INFANTRY REGIMENTS	23D MARINES
	24TH MARINES
	25TH MARINES
COMBAT SUPPORT	14TH MARINES
	4TH MARINE DIVISION
AVIATION	4TH MARINE AIR WING
	MACG-48
COMBAT SERVICE SUPPORT	4TH BSSG

Elements of combat support commands which are not artillery, namely the various 4th and 8th combat support battalions, are collected together under "4TH MARINE DIVISION".

4.3 Individual units appearing in the data base

All of the units and detachments which appear in the data base are listed in Appendix "B" together with their assigned "unit-types" from 4.1 and "commands" from 4.2. The units are listed in order by directed MCCRES volumes under which primal evaluations are conducted.

5.0 MCCRES data files

The evaluations in the MCCRES data base can be gathered together in many useful ways. For example, they can be collected systematically by unit-types, by commands, or by units and detachments; indeed, the preceding are considered in 7.1, 7.2, and 7.3, respectively. But three other methods of identification are considered next; namely, by HQMC file numbers (collections of raw data), by GWU evaluation numbers (computed evaluation results), and by fiscal years (for completion dates.)

5.1 HQMC file numbers

A file is maintained at HQMC containing all submitted MCCRES reports as the official collection of raw data for MCCRES. Individual files are serially numbered, 001A, 001B, ... and a listing identifying all 937 files is included as Appendix "C". Ordinarily the first three digits identifies a single submission (there are a few exceptions) but all four characters, including the fourth which may be a "blank", are necessary identifiers. For example, the first 10 files listed, 001A through 001F, were originally submitted together for a single evaluation (of LANDING FORCE SIXTH FLEET) but they have been separately identified with A, B, ... , F in order that there be only one MCCRES volume per HQMC file number. As can be seen in Appendix "C", the numbering of the files generally follows increasing time but there are many exceptions whereby higher serial numbers denote earlier evaluations.

5.2 GWU evaluation numbers

Individually computed evaluations are given GWU evaluation numbers with eight characters as follows

V-GWU-S_

as listed in Appendix "D" (same 937 lines rearranged from Appendix "C".) Here V denotes the MCCRES volume number (2, 3, ...), GWU denotes a serial number (001, 002, ...), and S is "0" when more than one MCCRES section is applicable, or else it is one of A, B, ..., when only a single section is applicable. For example, infantry battalions have "0" for S, as do most aviation squadrons, but combat support elements have one of "A" through "F" as S. The eighth and final character _ is "blank", "&", "+", or "*" to denote "primal", "supplemental", "additional", or "nominal", respectively, as defined in 3.0.

Evaluations in Appendix "D" appear in order, first by V and second by the three-digit serial numbers "GWU". As may be seen, serial numbers "GWU" generally increase with time and HQMC File number, but there are a number of exceptions.

5.3 Fiscal years

Each evaluation is assigned a closing date, namely, the final completion date appearing for any portion of the evaluation. In some cases--due to gaps between portions--several weeks elapse between starting and the closing dates. Appendix "E" contains a listing (same 937 cases as in "C" and "D") of formal evaluations in ascending order by closing dates and grouped by fiscal years.

6.0 Readiness forecasting

Methods of statistical forecasting in [5] and [12] were created at GWU in 1982-1985 to estimate missing (non-applicable) parts of MCCRES evaluations. The principal approach, given in [5], makes essential uses of categorizations of MCCRES requirements.

6.1 Categorizations

Categorizations partition all requirements of a MCCRES volume into categories--each requirement is assigned to one and only one category--where, by design and as validated, two requirements in the same category have the same probability of being satisfied. The standard set, devised in HQMC, has six principal subdivisions.

- A. Advance preparation and education
- B. Combat service support and logistics considerations
- C. Mission planning and preparation
- D. Command, control, task organization
- E. Execution
- F. Information and communication

Appendix "F" contains a complete description of how each of the above six categories is further subdivided to identify in more detail the primary nature of MCCRES requirements. There also exist other categorizations; for example, References [1], [2], [10], and [11] contain general background and specific information on the original set of ten categories. Also see Appendix "F" for more detailed information.

The MCCRES requirements cover all of the many things FMF units can be expected to be able to do. Categorizations serve to reduce the dimensionality, from many hundreds--or a few thousands--of requirements, to a small number of categories, for example, to six, namely to those for listed above. A main thrust of earlier research has been to estimate probabilities of satisfying requirements within categories. Such estimates are then used to obtain measures of average performance which serve as readiness forecasts.

6.2 Estimates

Reference [12] provides a statistical model for data from MCCRES and develops "linear estimates" which do not depend on categorizations. These estimates are especially useful for working with specific requirements, tasks, MPSs, and sections, of MCCRES volumes. Linear estimates are, in fact, refined versions of counts and proportions from [6] which have long been found to be useful for detecting trends, and for performing other analyses, on results from MCCRES evaluations.

As presented in Reference [10], the simplest approach based on categories considers a single evaluation, say evaluation I, and "evaluation estimates" $P(I,J)$, of the common probability that the unit evaluated could satisfy any requirement in category J, are determined. These estimates can be applied to any, or all, of the parts of MCCRES which were not actually evaluated for the unit. The set of six evaluation estimates, or "category scores," for evaluation I, is a six-dimensional measure of average performance of the unit called the "category vector" for the evaluation. More detailed estimates, such as (see Appendix "F") for "ingress operations," say for aviation elements, or for "small unit war fighting skills" for ground elements, can of course also be made.

$$[P(I,1), P(I,2), P(I,3), P(I,4), P(I,5), P(I,6)]$$

It is convenient to use the term "population" to refer to a collection of things having common qualities or characteristics. For example, suppose that the preceding category scores $P(I,J)$ are available for a number of separate evaluations, say for $I = 1, 2, 3, \dots, N$ representing N different infantry battalions, all from a single regiment. Then this collection (of battalions) is referred to as a population (for the regiment).

Given a collection of category vectors, one vector for each member of a population, so-called "population estimates" $P(J)$ are found in [5] for the probability of satisfying a requirement in category J. Individual $P(J)$ can, for example, be identified with a "representative" battalion for a regiment. The full set of "category scores" is a six-dimensional measure of performance of the population called the "category vector" for the population. This vector is used to produce a "MCCRES evaluation" for a regiment based on average performance of battalions from the regiment. Air groups (as populations of squadrons) can be treated in the same manner. Reference [4] assesses the performance of estimators from [5] and the results suggest that they are useful in a variety of situations.

Population estimates also have other applications. Reference [3] discusses two methods of detecting a unit whose MCCRES evaluation is far from that for a typical unit in a group. Research has also been performed on determining whether or not two different populations are equal "on average."

7.0 Measures of average performance

As described in the preceding 6.0, readiness forecasts, or equivalently, measures of average performance, can be obtained in a number of ways using the MCCRES data base. The next three sections describe three major approaches, namely, averaging by unit-type, by command, or by individual unit or detachment.

7.1 Averages for unit-types--MAU or MAB levels

Measures of average performance can be based primarily on evaluations for particular unit-types to obtain results which can be used for headquarters units, infantry regiments, artillery battalions and units from other combat support battalions, Marine aircraft groups, and brigade service support groups. Few of the units at this level--which is the level of a MAU or a MAB--are evaluated in single MCCRES evaluations. But averages can be based on populations of units whose members have been so evaluated.

Evaluations of infantry battalions can be collected together by regiment or comparable commands in the following eleven ways.

The above broadly identifies eleven forecasts, one per line, which can be made for any or all of the parts of Volumes II and IX. The full range of available data for primal evaluations is presented in Appendix "G". For example, all primal evaluations of infantry battalions are listed in Lines 1 - 117 of Appendix "G" in order by GWU# which (with few exceptions) is in the order of their closing dates. Furthermore, all corresponding supplemental and additional evaluations, as listed (for example) by GWU# in Appendix "D", can also be used in these calculations.

Continuing, comparable forecasts for unit-types from Volume III can also be made. The full range of available data is presented in Appendix "G".

In summary, Appendix "G" collects together all primal evaluations by unit-types for the MCCRES data base. Subcollections can of course be used according to various criteria, say by commands (this is illustrated in 7.2), by fiscal years, and so on.

7.2 Averages for commands--MAB or MAF levels

The principal complication in obtaining averages from MCCRES at the MAF level is the fact that the combat elements are composed of substantial numbers of "superpopulations," that is, populations of populations, which are complicated by presence of "mixtures" as well as "homogeneous collections" of populations. The ground combat element could consist of a division composed of perhaps three infantry regiments, one artillery regiment, and several combat support battalions; the aviation combat element would be at the level of a wing; and the force headquarters and force service support group would each be of comparable size and complexity. There is, of course, no MCCRES volume covering elements for a MAF, but forecasts can be made for some of their principal elements as follows.

Forecasts for "FMF ATLANTIC" can be performed somewhat similarly to those described in 7.1. For example, forecasts for the 1ST MARINE DIVISION can be based on aggregation of the 2D, 6TH, AND 8TH MARINES, forecasts for the 2D MARINE AIR WING can be based on data for its component parts in the following list, and so on.

The full range of available data for primal evaluations is presented in Appendix "H". For example, all primal evaluations of 23D MARINES are listed in Lines 680 - 685 of Appendix "H" in order by GWU# which (with few exceptions) is the order of their closing dates. Again, all corresponding supplemental and additional evaluations, as listed (for example) by GWU# in Appendix "D", can also be used in these calculations.

7.3 Averages for units--MAU levels

Measures of average performance can be calculated for individual FMF units and detachments, namely, the infantry units, rotary wing units, combat support elements, combat service support elements, and headquarters elements, which are actually evaluated by MCCRES. In addition to the historical results from formal MCCRES evaluations,

7.3.1 Estimates based on evaluation estimates $P(I,J)$, and

7.3.2 Estimates based on population estimates $P(J)$

are available as presented in 6.2. Averages from 7.3.1 are based on filling in missing parts of evaluations based entirely on the performance of the individual FMF units themselves. From 7.3.2, corresponding measures are computed using evidence available for the population to which the unit belongs, that is, the headquarters, infantry regiment, combat support battalions, squadrons or air group, and combat service support organizations, from which a MAU is formed. In the case of (7.3.2), populations as displayed in Appendix "H" can be used.

Each individual unit or detachment evaluated by MCCRES falls within a particular unit-type. The types of forecasts which can be made are identified with the unit-types as follows.

MCCRES Sections

A.1 Introduction

Volume I of MCCRES (see Reference [9]) provides an introduction to the system. All other MCCRES volumes--II through IX--are partitioned into different sections A, B, C, ... and the five-level hierarchical structure of MCCRES consists of the following kinds of elements. Each volume consists of sections, which consist of mission performance standards (MPS), which consist of tasks, which consist of requirements. To design a formal MCCRES evaluation, each element must be judged to be either applicable, or not applicable (N/A), according respectively, as it will, or will not, be used to evaluate the combat readiness of the FMP unit. And before the evaluation can be completed, each applicable requirement must have been scored either Yes or No according, respectively, as it was "Met" or "Not Met".

A.2 Nomenclature for MCCRES sections

The hierarchical level of MCCRES sections is the most significant one for present purposes. As explained in 3.0, different kinds of formal evaluations (primal, supplemental, and additional) are defined essentially in terms of which sections are applicable, and the different ways in which evaluations are collected in later appendixes also depends on the sections. The following lists all MCCRES sections.

Volume II--Infantry Units

- 2.A Standards applicable to all evaluations
- 2.B Standards applicable to amphibious assault and normal combat operations ashore
- 2.C Standards applicable to operations with reinforcing assets
- 2.D Standards applicable to operational actions dependent upon outside assets

Volume III--Rotary Wing and Observation Squadrons

- 3.A All helicopter squadrons
- 3.B Amphibious operations
- 3.C Transport Helicopter Squadron (HMM/HMH)
- 3.D Light Helicopter Squadron (HML)
- 3.E Helicopter Attack Squadron (HMA)
- 3.F Marine Observation Squadron (VMO)
- 3.X Special MPS

Volume IV--Fixed Wing Squadrons

- 4.A Fixed wing general MPS
- 4.B Marine Fighter/Attack Squadron (VMFA)
- 4.C Marine Attack Squadron (VMA)
- 4.D Marine Attack Squadron (VMA/VSTOL)
- 4.E Marine All Weather Attack Squadron (VMA(AW))
- 4.F Marine Tactical Reconnaissance Squadron (VMFP)
- 4.G Marine Tactical Electronic Warfare Squadron (VMAQ)
- 4.H Marine Aerial Refueler Transport Squadron (VMGR)
- 4.J VMFA F/A18
- 4.X Special MPS

Volume V--Combat Support Elements

- 5.A Artillery Battery
- 5.B Direct Support Artillery Battalion
- 5.C Engineer element
- 5.D Tank element
- 5.E Assault amphibian element
- 5.F Reconnaissance element

Volume VI--Combat Service Support Elements

- 6.A MAU Service Support Group
- 6.B Brigade Service Support Group
- 6.C Defense of service areas

Volume VII--Marine Air/Ground Task Force Headquarters

- 7.A Marine Amphibious Unit headquarters element
- 7.B Marine Amphibious Brigade headquarters
- 7.C Radio Battalion Direct Support Unit

Volume VIII--The Marine Air Command and Control System (MACCS)

- 8.A Tactical Air Command Center (TACC)/
Tactical Air Direction Center (TADC)
- 8.B Tactical Air Operations Center (TAOC)
- 8.C Direct Air Support Center (DASC)
- 8.D Air Support Radar Team (ASRT)
- 8.E Marine Air Traffic Control Unit (MATCU)
- 8.F Forward Area Air Defense (FAAD) Battery
- 8.G Light Anti-Aircraft Missile (LAAM) Battery

Volume IX--Special Operations

- 9.A Standards applicable to military operations in urbanized terrain (MOUT)
- 9.B Standards applicable to evacuation of noncombatants
- 9.C Standards applicable to amphibious raid operations
- 9.D Standards applicable to operations in cold weather
- 9.E Standards applicable to operations in the desert

FMF Units Evaluated by MCCRES

B.1 Introduction

This appendix lists all FMF units (and detachments) which have been evaluated by primal MCCRES evaluations, that is, by formal evaluations directed as set forth in Reference [9]. Units appear in sequence, first by directed MCCRES volume, second by "COMMAND" as specified in 4.2, and third by "UNIT-TYPE" as specified in 4.1.

All Evaluations in Sequence by HQMC File Numbers

C.1 Introduction

This appendix lists all of the HQMC (Code TDC) File Numbers under which formal MCCRES evaluations are logged. Seven fields are printed in each line of the listing, namely

- 1) Line number for present listing
- 2) TDC# -- See 5.1
- 3) GWU# -- See 5.2
- 4) UNIT/DET -- See 4.3
- 5) UNIT TYPE -- See 4.1
- 6) COMMAND -- See 4.2
- 7) DATE -- See 5.3

and lines appear in sequence, first by 2) TDC#, and second by 3) GWU#.

C.2 Notes on the listing

Each line in the listing identifies one particular evaluation. Individual evaluations are determined by unique pairs, MCCRES volume number and UNIT/DET. With few exceptions, the first three characters in TDC#--for example "001" in Lines 1 - 10--identify a single submission to HQMC; here, 001 identifies an evaluation of LANDING FORCE SIXTH FLEET which led to six file numbers (identified by A - F) because there were six different MCCRES volumes, and ten evaluations (identified by 001-010) because there were ten cases for UNIT/DET.

Each of the 805 primal evaluations (see 3.01) is identified by "blank" as the eighth and final character in GWU#. For example, Lines 1 through 9 identify primal evaluations.

Each of the 115 supplemental evaluations (see 3.02) is identified by "&" as the eighth and final character in GWU#. As illustrated by Line 10, UNIT/DET fields for such evaluations are truncated so the final segment can identify the MCCRES volume actually used; this supplemental evaluation is based on Volume IX (note the entry 9-001-0) and the associated primal evaluation used Volume II (note the entry 2-001-0). Line 10 thus identifies a Volume IX evaluation which supplements a Volume II evaluation; in the present listing, the associated primal corresponds to Line 1.

Each of the seven additional evaluations (see 3.03) is identified by "+" as the eighth and final character in GWU#. See Lines 590, 711, 765, and 847-850.

Each of the ten nominal evaluations (see 3.04) is identified by "*" as the eighth and final character in GWU#. See Lines 19, 64, 227, 229, 721-724, 817, and 879.

All Evaluations in Sequence by GWU Evaluation Numbers

D.1 Introduction

This appendix lists all GWU Evaluation Numbers (GWU#) used by MCCRESSA. Seven fields are printed in each line of the listing, namely

- 1) Line number for present listing
- 2) TDC# -- See 5.1
- 3) GWU# -- See 5.2
- 4) UNIT/DET -- See 4.3
- 5) UNIT TYPE -- See 4.1
- 6) COMMAND -- See 4.2
- 7) DATE -- See 5.3

and lines appear in sequence by 3) GWU# (and by MCCRES volume number).

C.2 Notes on the listing

Each line in the listing identifies one particular evaluation. Entries in GWU# have the following format "V-GWU-S_".

"V" denotes directed MCCRES volume number: 2, 3, ...

"GWU" is a serial number: 001, 002, ...

"S" is 0 when several MCCRES sections apply, and otherwise it is A, B, ... to denote the single one that does apply

"_" contains "blank", "&", "+", or "*" to denote the kind of evaluation as follows.

Each of the 805 primal evaluations (see 3.01) is identified by "blank" as the eighth and final character "_" in GWU#. For example, Lines 1 through 5 identify primal evaluations.

Each of the 115 supplemental evaluations (see 3.02) is identified by "&" as the eighth and final character "_" in GWU#. As illustrated by Line 6, UNIT/DET fields for such evaluations are truncated so the final segment can identify the MCCRES volume actually used. For example, Line 6 identifies a Volume II evaluation that supplements the Volume VI evaluation identified by Line 780.

Each of the seven additional evaluations (see 3.03) is identified by "+" as the eighth and final character "_" in GWU#. See Lines 104, 127, 139, and 158-161.

Each of the ten nominal evaluations (see 3.04) is identified by "*" as the eighth and final character "_" in GWU#. See Lines 3, 15, 209, 210, 437, 730-733, and 754.

All Evaluations by Fiscal Years

E.1 Introduction

This appendix lists closing dates in sequence for all MCCRES evaluations. Seven fields are printed in each line of the listing, namely

- 1) Line number for present listing
- 2) TDC# -- See 5.1
- 3) GWU# -- See 5.2
- 4) UNIT/DET -- See 4.3
- 5) UNIT TYPE -- See 4.1
- 6) COMMAND -- See 4.2
- 7) DATE -- See 5.3

and lines appear in sequence, first by 7) DATE, and second by 2) TDC#.

C.2 Notes on the listing

Each line in the listing identifies one particular evaluation. Individual evaluations are determined by unique pairs, MCCRES volume number and UNIT/DET. With few exceptions, the first three characters in TDC#--for example "001" in Lines 1 - 10--identify a single submission to HQMC; here, 001 identifies an evaluation of LANDING FORCE SIXTH FLEET which led to six file numbers (identified by A - F) because there were six different MCCRES volumes, and ten evaluations (identified by 001-010) because there were ten cases for UNIT/DET.

Each of the 805 primal evaluations (see 3.01) is identified by "blank" as the eighth and final character in GWU#. For example, Lines 1 through 9 identify primal evaluations.

Each of the 115 supplemental evaluations (see 3.02) is identified by "6" as the eighth and final character in GWU#. As illustrated by Line 10, UNIT/DET fields for such evaluations are truncated so the final segment can identify the MCCRES volume actually used; this supplemental evaluation is based on Volume IX (note the entry 9-001-0) and the associated primal evaluation used Volume II (note the entry 2-001-0). Line 10 thus identifies a Volume IX evaluation which supplements a Volume II evaluation; in the present listing, the associated primal corresponds to Line 1.

Each of the seven additional evaluations (see 3.03) is identified by "+" as the eighth and final character in GWU#. See Lines 615, 689, 769, and 847-850.

Each of the ten nominal evaluations (see 3.04) is identified by "*" as the eighth and final character in GWU#. See Lines 19, 73, 244, 251, 713-716, 808, and 867.

Categorizations of MCCRES Requirements

F.1 Introduction

Categorizations partition the requirements of a MCCRES volume into sets called categories; each requirement is assigned to one and only one category by answering the categorization question, namely

What is the single most important feature which will determine whether or not the unit will be able to meet the requirement?

For some requirements it is a matter of planning or preparation. And for others it is some different aspect of performance such as "execution", "communication", or perhaps "logistics", which is most important. Actually there are six categories, as follows, in the standard set of HQMC categories.

- A. Advance preparation and education
- B. Combat service support and logistics considerations
- C. Mission planning and preparation
- D. Command, control, task organization
- E. Execution
- F. Information and communication

In theory it is possible to answer the categorization question by selecting one of A, B, C, D, E, or F as the category to which the requirement belongs. But in practice it is necessary to use a more detailed breakdown in order, for example, to distinguish between Categories "A", "C", and "D", all of which involve "preparation" in one way or another.

F.2 HQMC categories

The standard HQMC categories have up to three levels as shown in the following list which is the actual list used to answer the categorization question for each requirement.

A. Advance preparation and education

- A.1 Knowledge of friendly personnel, equipment, capabilities
- A.2 Knowledge of enemy personnel, equipment, capabilities
- A.3 Knowledge of, and adherence to, doctrine, regulations and policy or existing SOPs
 - A.3.a Knowledge of, and adherence to, doctrine
 - A.3.b Knowledge of, and adherence to, tactics
 - A.3.c Knowledge of, and adherence to, regulations and policy
 - A.3.d Knowledge of, and adherence to, existing SOPs

A.4 Instruction for the specific operation

B. Combat Service Support (CSS) and logistics considerations

- B.1 CSS and logistics for individual Marines
- B.2 CSS and logistics for the unit
- B.3 Mission related CSS and logistics

C. Mission planning and preparationC.1 Coordination and staff planning actions

- C.1.a Coordination measures
- C.1.b Commander's planning actions
- C.1.c Staff planning actions

C.2 Timely planning and preparationC.3 Rehearsal, simulation, reconnaissance*C.4 Supervision of preparations and detailed planning*D. Command, control, task organization*D.1 Operation orders*D.2 Current situation*D.3 Control of units*D.4 Organic weapons*D.5 Attached and supporting arms*D.5.a Direct fire weapons*D.5.b Indirect fire weapons*D.5.c Close air support and assault support*D.5.d Use and control*D.5.e Fire planning*D.6 Allocation of combat power and capabilities*E. Execution*E.1 Preliminary, or ingress, operations*E.2 Primary, or target area, operations*E.2.a Subelement operations*E.2.b Security actions*E.2.c Timeliness of actions*E.2.d Unit actions*E.2.e Command post actions*E.3 Subsequent, or egress, actions*E.4 Support operations*E.5 Individual, and small unit, war fighting skills

F. Information and communicationF.1 Briefing and information dissemination to subordinate units*F.2 Debriefing (feedback) and reports to higher headquarters*F.2.a Debriefing*F.2.b Reports from subordinate units*F.2.c Reports to higher headquarters*F.2.d Reports control system*F.2.e Acknowledgment of receipt of plans or orders*F.3 Communications*F.4 Deception, operations security, communications security*F.3 Use of categories

The MCCRES requirements cover all of the many things FMF units can be expected to be able to do. Categorizations serve to reduce the dimensionality, from many hundreds--or a few thousands--of requirements, to a small number of categories, for example, to the six listed above. This of course is significant for applications. For example, consider the set of six numbers where each S(.) is a success ratio, that is, the ratio of number of requirements satisfied to number of requirements attempted for the category. This set of six numbers constitutes a useful set of performance measures which supplements the many hundreds of indexes produced by a MCCRES evaluation.

More generally, a main thrust of research has been to estimate probabilities suggested by the preceding success ratios, namely the probabilities of satisfying requirements within categories. By design and as validated, two requirements in the same category have the same probability of being satisfied during a particular evaluation of a particular unit. The probability can change for the same unit from one evaluation to another, and of course it can be different for different units, but it is the same for two requirements in the same category for the same evaluation of the same unit. Estimates of probabilities of satisfying requirements within categories (see Reference [4]) are used to obtain measures of average performance and to forecast results of MCCRES evaluations, especially for requirements which were not evaluated due to their being designated not applicable.

F.4 Original categories

There also exist other categorizations; for example, References [1], [2], [11], and [12] contain general background and specific information on the original set of ten categories created initially for Volume II. These came from a somewhat more abstract approach which produced the following original categories (where the numbering has no special significance.)

1. Reporting to higher levels of command
2. Preparing for operations
3. Communicating (including communications SOPs)
4. Performing as Marines (discipline, dispersion, camouflage, concealment, using weapons, and so on)
5. Delivering supporting fire
6. Planning of operations
7. Conforming to doctrine
8. Executing operations
9. Providing combat service support (including medical support)
10. Supervising required actions of individual Marines

The tenth category was added through an audit by instructors at the Infantry Officers Course, Basic School.

F.5 GWU categories

A refinement of the original categorization was implemented (mainly for ground forces) as the GWU categories as follows.

1. Reporting and briefing or debriefing
 - 1.1 Handling routine aspects of reporting, briefing, debriefing
 - 1.2 Conveying details of the specific operation
2. Preparing
 - 2.1 Rehearsing for the specific operation
 - 2.2 Preparing systems and weapons for the specific operation
3. Communicating
 - 3.1 Planning and managing communications networks
 - 3.2 Transmitting and receiving information
 - 3.3 Establishing wire communications
 - 3.4 Establishing equipment for radio communications
4. Performing as individual Marines
 - 4.1 Demonstrating basic infantry capabilities
 - 4.2 Demonstrating professional capabilities
(pilots, artillerymen, tankers, and so forth)

5. Planning of operations

- 5.1 Planning infantry operations
- 5.2 Planning support operations
- 5.3 Coordinating planning by all units involved in the specific operation

6. Knowing, and conforming to, doctrine

- 6.1 Knowing, and conforming to, doctrine for infantry
- 6.2 Knowing, and conforming to, doctrine for supporting units
- 6.3 Knowing, and conforming to, doctrine for coordination of units involved in the operation

7. Executing

- 7.1 Executing prior to, and during, ingress and egress (Includes reconnaissance and surveying of artillery positions)
- 7.2 Executing operations against surface targets
- 7.3 Executing operations against air targets
- 7.4 Executing by fire support, or air support, controllers or coordinators (Includes use of supporting fire, air controllers, forward observers, and so forth)

8. Providing combat service support or logistics support9. Supervising required actions of individual Marines

- 9.1 Supervising during the specific operation (for other than equipment maintenance)
- 9.2 Supervising equipment maintenance

The above Category 7 (Executing) includes both Categories 8 (Executing) and 5 (Delivering supporting fire) from the original set of ten categories.

Primal Evaluations in Sequence for Unit Types

G.1 Introduction

This appendix contains one line for each formal evaluation for which the directed MCCRES volume was used. In terms of the definitions in 3.0, all primal evaluations are included but all supplemental, additional, and nominal evaluations--which were included in each of Appendixes "C", "D", and "E"--are omitted. However, the same seven fields are printed, namely,

- 1) Line number for present listing
- 2) TDC# -- See 5.1
- 3) GWU# -- See 5.2
- 4) UNIT/DET -- See 4.3
- 5) UNIT TYPE -- See 4.1
- 6) COMMAND -- See 4.2
- 7) DATE -- See 5.3

Lines are in sequence, first by MCCRES volume, second by 5) UNIT TYPE, and third by 3) GWU#. All primal evaluations are thus collected together by individual unit types and listed (with a few exceptions) by DATE.

G.2 Notes on the listing

As explained in 7.1, the present listing displays in broadest possible fashion (total USMC and USMCR) the complete collection of primal MCCRES evaluations for individual unit types.

A number of individual primal evaluations are accompanied by supplementals; the latter can be found, for example, by entering Appendix "E" with the DATE for the primal. There also exist a few additional for some unit types; these can be identified, in any one of Appendixes "C", "D", or "E", by the final character "+" in the GWU# field.

Primal Evaluations in Sequence for Commands

H.1 Introduction

This appendix contains one line for each formal evaluation for which the directed MCCRES volume was used. In terms of the definitions in 3.0, all primal evaluations are included but all supplemental, additional, and nominal evaluations--which were included in each of Appendixes "C", "D", and "E"--are omitted. However, the same seven fields are printed, namely,

- 1) Line number for present listing
- 2) TDC# -- See 5.1
- 3) GWU# -- See 5.2
- 4) UNIT/DET -- See 4.3
- 5) UNIT TYPE -- See 4.1
- 6) COMMAND -- See 4.2
- 7) DATE -- See 5.3

Lines are in sequence, first by 6) COMMAND, second by MCCRES volume, third by 5) UNIT TYPE, and fourth by 3) GWU#. All primal evaluations are thus collected together by unit types for each individual command and listed (with a few exceptions) by DATE.

H.2 Notes on the listing

As explained in 7.2, the present listing displays in broadest possible fashion (for FMF ATLANTIC, FMF PACIFIC, 1ST BRIGADE, 7TH MAB, and USMCR) the complete collection of primal MCCRES evaluations for the individual commands identified in 4.2.

A number of individual primal evaluations are accompanied by supplementals; the latter can be found, for example, by entering Appendix "E" with the DATE for the primal. There also exist a few additionals for some unit types; these can be identified, in any one of Appendixes "C", "D", or "E", by the final character "+" in the GWU# field.

Primal Evaluations in Sequence for Units

J.1 Introduction

This appendix contains one line for each formal evaluation for which the directed MCCRES volume was used. In terms of the definitions in 3.0, all primal evaluations are included but all supplemental, additional, and nominal evaluations--which were included in each of Appendixes "C", "D", and "E"--are omitted. However, the same seven fields are printed, namely,

- 1) Line number for present listing
- 2) TDC# -- See 5.1
- 3) GWU# -- See 5.2
- 4) UNIT/DET -- See 4.3
- 5) UNIT TYPE -- See 4.1
- 6) COMMAND -- See 4.2
- 7) DATE -- See 5.3

Lines are in sequence, first by MCCRES volume, second by 4) UNIT/DET, and third by 3) GWU#. All formal evaluations are thus collected together for each individual unit or detachment and listed (with a few exceptions) by DATE.

J.2 Notes on the listing

As explained in 7.3, the present listing displays in broadest possible fashion (total USMC and USMCR) the complete collection of primal MCCRES evaluations for individual units and detachments. In contrast to Appendix "B"--where units and detachments are collected by COMMAND--the present listing is in sequence by UNIT/DET for each MCCRES volume. For example, the present listing starts with all first infantry battalions, then all second, and so on.

A number of individual primal evaluations are accompanied by supplementals; the latter can be found, for example, by entering Appendix "E" with the DATE for the primal. There also exist a few additional for some unit types; these can be identified, in any one of Appendixes "C", "D", or "E", by the final character "+" in the GWU# field.
