UNITED STATES SPECIAL OPERATIONS COMMAND
OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, DEFENSE-WIDE
FY 1996/1997 BIENNIAL BUDGET ESTIMATES

United States Special Operations Command (USSOCOM) is a unified command with world-wide responsibilities to train, maintain, and provide Special Operations Forces (SOF) in support of the contingency plans developed by the five regionally oriented unified commands (United States European Command, United States Central Command, United States Pacific Command, United States Atlantic Command, and United States Southern Command). When directed by the President, the Commander-In-Chief Special Operations Command will assume command of a special operation anywhere in the world. USSOCOM's Army forces include special forces, Rangers, short to medium range infiltration/exfiltration aircraft, civil affairs specialists, and psychological operations specialists. Navy forces consist of Sea, Air, Land Teams and special boat units. The Air Force special operation units provide medium to long range air infiltration/exfiltration aircraft, specially equipped gun ships, and aerial refuel capability. USSOCOM is the only operational command within the Department of Defense directly responsible for determining its own force structure and related materiel requirements, procuring the SOF unique equipment, training, and deploying its own units.

(a) Funding supporting the introduction of the Mark V Patrol Boat to include fuel, repair parts, travel, transportation, and maintenance required for operational support. The Mark V is a high performance combatant craft sized to permit air deployment aboard C-5 aircraft. Its mission is medium range insertion, extraction of SOF, and limited coastal patrol and interdiction. Sustainment cost estimates are based on engineering and industry standards with design adjustments to meet operational requirements.

(b) Support for scheduled cyclical overhauls and craft repairs to include a major overhaul for the Auxiliary SEAL Delivery Vehicle (ASDV). These craft are over 30 years old and require an overhaul every 60 months. The following repairs will be accomplished which includes restoration of the propulsion system, the structure, bow ramp, comm/navigation system, berthing/ventilation system, recompression system, and power system. 1,085

(d) Special Boat Squadrons are becoming Major Commands; 16 billets are authorized to handle additional functions in support of those commands. An independent manpower survey validated the workload/position requirements. Eight positions are for Special Boat Squadron One on the West Coast and eight are for Special Boat Squadron Two on the East Coast. Each organization will have a facilities manager, budget analyst, accountant, secretary, equipment specialist, security officer, ADP security officer, and an accounting technician.

UNITED STATES SPECIAL OPERATIONS COMMAND
OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, DEFENSE-WIDE

III. Financial Summary (O&M: $ in Thousands):

C. Reconciliation of Increases and Decreases:

Increases in the number of Rigid Inflatable Boat (RIB) detachments and Mobile Communications Teams (MCTs), delivery of new RIBs, and communication vans require additional fuel, supplies, and repair parts. In addition to these increases, the new boats and vans employ greater technical sophistication, resulting in significantly higher costs for supplies and repair parts. The final deliveries of all Patrol Coastal Class ships will occur during FY 1995. Funding to support this increased inventory is included as the ships begin training and preparation for deployment. Additionally, newly acquired Civil Engineer Support Equipment (CESE) including trucks, vans, and other troop movers will require funding to provide fuel and periodic/routine maintenance.

(b) Replenishment of equipment authorized under the Table of Organizational Allowances (TOA) for Naval Special Warfare Command. Routine operations require the replacement of diving gear and initial outfitting of personnel equipment. Changes in OPTEMPO have reduced organizational inventories. Increase in usage rates reduces equipment life expectancy, maintenance and repair requirements, and replacement/stock replenishment costs. Inventory shortages further reduce equipment service life due to shared usage of available equipment.

Increase of five end strength/workyears at Special Operations Command Atlantic (SOCACOM) in compliance with peace-time manning analysis for approved growth. The use of Special Operations Forces (SOF) is increasing in the theaters. This results from a variety of factors: exercise and deployment schedules, counternarcotics efforts, counterterrorism requirements, liaison with foreign governments, and communications/intelligence activities. Theater SOC manning was crosswalked from other services at an austere level. First increment of growth was Congressionally mandated to attain not less than 50 percent of minimum essential peacetime Long range infiltration/exfiltration missions often require crew augmentation to match crew endurance with aircraft capability. The introduction of these Special Operations craft requires a significant increase in group-level maintenance. Costs arise from the addition of six MK V boats to the craft inventory. These technologically superior craft require maintenance, logistics support, and life cycle support.

(c) Cyclical maintenance requirements for active 2,186
combatant craft inventories to include organizational and intermediate level maintenance.

Naval Special Warfare Command has an increased inventory of 22 new Rigid Inflatable Boats between FY 1995 and FY 1997. Cyclical maintenance includes hull and structural repairs
and adjustments, engine changeout (contractual),
repairs and tune up of offloaded engines, props,
propulsion systems, and communications equipment.
Since these craft provide all diver support and are deployed with platoons all over the world, a high degree of maintenance is essential.
