Today's Game Plan

- Share my preliminary observations
- Focus on land use powers and processes
- Stress the pivotal roles of state and local governments
- Highlight strategies and tools for collaborating on land use encroachment

Encroachment Observations

- Multiple stakeholders competing for regional natural resources (air, land, water)
- Sprawl is the common threat
- Battleground—regional growth and local land development processes

Encroachment Principles

- Recognize the common interests—base vitality and regional quality of life
- Create processes that align interests and facilitate common understanding
- Build partnerships among all levels of government/NGOs—anchored by local governments

Military/Local Perspectives

Encroachment is a two-way street

- Training and testing missions impinged by development
- Cities within cities
- Bases have been autonomous and independent
- Inconsistent history of cooperation
- Leadership and staff turnover
- Impacts of future missions and weapon systems

Why Encroachment Should be Important to Local Govts?

- Protect public safety
- Maintain high quality of life
- Enhance the regional economy
- Protect the installation—2005 Round of Base Closure

Simple Strategies for Encroachment Partnering

- Educate locals on base mission and future planning/needs
- Recognize the local land use and political dynamics
- Establish base-community councils including staff/planners
- Encroachment working groups among the regional stakeholders
- MOUs to enhance collaboration

State Govt. Strategies

- Established state military programs to provide TA and guidance
- Provided economic analysis, with an eye towards BRAC 2005
- Facilitated land acquisitions/swaps (NC, FL)
- Enacted planning legislation

Land Use Planning Strategies

- State planning laws provide the regulatory framework
- Military bases and compatible land use legislation: Arizona, California, Washington, etc.
- DoD's compatible land use planning tools:
 - JLUS
 - AICUZ and RAICUZ

Local Land Use Strategies

- Research regional growth dynamics
- Adapt general plan to include the base as a sphere of influence on future growth (Fairfield CA.)
- Modify zoning codes to implement new plans (Aurora CO., Beaufort, SC)
- Allocate additional resources (staff and training) to ensure implementation and enforcement of plans and ordinances

Acquisition and Conservation Strategies
