How to Use This Document

Our goal is to give you a reader-friendly document that provides an in-depth, accurate analysis of the Proposed Action, the alternative beddown locations, and the potential environmental consequences for each base. The organization of this Final Environmental Impact Statement (Final EIS) is shown below.

Overall Proposal

Table of Contents, List of Figures, List of Tables, and Acronyms and Abbreviations

Preface: Detailed Guide for Reading the EIS → The Preface provides a detailed guide for reading the EIS.

Chapter 1: Purpose and Need for F-35A Training Basing → Chapter 1 explains the decision made by Congress to provide the U.S. Air Force with a next-generation fighter. Also described are the features of the F-35A, how the F-35A will be based, and how aircrews will train for their operational assignments.

Chapter 2:
- Overview of Proposed Action and Alternatives
- Alternative Identification Process
- Summary Comparison of Proposed Action and Alternatives

→ Chapter 2 provides an overview of the Proposed Action and alternatives, which is to beddown the F-35A at Boise AGS, Holloman AFB, Luke AFB, and/or Tucson AGS.

Chapter 3: Resource Definition and Methodology for Analysis → Chapter 3 defines the environmental resources that could potentially be affected by the Proposed Action and explains the methodology used to evaluate the potential impacts.

Chapter 4: Base-Specific Sections → Base-specific sections are listed below.

Appendix D. Draft EIS Public Comments and Responses

This chapter contains comments received from federal, state, and local agencies, the general public, and Native Americans during the public comment period for the Draft F-35A Training Basing Environmental Impact Statement (EIS). The Notice of Availability for the Draft EIS appeared in the Federal Register on January 20, 2012. This began the standard 45-day comment period. In accordance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), public and agency comments were reviewed and incorporated into the Final EIS. These public and agency comments will be taken into consideration by the Air Force in its decision making process.

Public comment was encouraged at each of the public hearings, and in newsletters and other publications. It was noted that these comments would be published in the Final EIS (and that providing personal information on those comments was considered consent to publish it). The following presents the Air Force's Comment and Response Process.

D.1 Comment Receipt and Review

Comment Receipt: Comments on the Draft EIS included both written correspondence via letters, faxes, or emails, and oral testimony received during the 45-day public comment period. All comments received during that period are included in the Comments section.

Comment Review: In accordance with 40 Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) 1503.4, comments were assessed and considered as follows:

- Each letter or testimony was assigned an identification number and each comment letter and each individual's oral comments were read and reviewed carefully.
- Within each comment letter or testimony, substantive comments were identified and bracketed. Three guidelines were used for determining substantive comments:
    1. The comment questions the Proposed Action, alternative locations, or other components of the F-35A Training Basing action.
    2. The methodology of the analysis or results was questioned.
    3. The use, adequacy, or accuracy of data was questioned.
- The bracketed comments were reviewed by environmental resource specialists who draft the responses. In some cases, similar comments were assigned the same response. If the same comment was repeated within the same letter or oral comments, it was bracketed the first time it appeared.
- The individual bracketed comments were assigned a number and a response. These responses are organized consecutively by number. The responses to comments appear in the Responses section of this volume.

Comment Organization: The comment letters are printed in numerical order and are organized into four sections:

- Written comments and submitted letters from Individuals and members of the general public – begin with 1000
- Agency/Organization/Company letters – begin with 2000
- Public hearing transcripts of oral testimonies – begin with 3000
- Campaign letters or emails – begin with 4000

D.2 Locating Your Comments

A directory begins on D.4–1 to locate your name. As noted on the public displays, sign-in, comment forms, and copies of the Draft EIS and Executive Summary, providing your name in the EIS process meant that you understood that your name and comment would be made a part of the public record for this EIS. An identification number was assigned to your comment letter and is labeled on the letter or next to your oral comments. All comments are organized according to these comment numbers in the Comments section immediately following the directions.

The directory provides an alphabetical listing of commentors by last name. Look for your last name and note the comment identification number in the fourth column. This is a number that was assigned to your comment and is labeled on your letter or next to your oral comments. A directory is also provided for those people who sent a Campaign letter or email. As the Campaign letters and emails are comprised of form letters, only one example of each Campaign is displayed with the list of individuals with their assigned identification numbers who submitted the Campaign letters or emails during the public comment process.

D.3 Locating Responses to Comments

Air Force responses to comments are located in the Responses section of this volume. All substantive comments within each comment letter were given a response number. Substantive oral comments from public hearings were also bracketed and given a response number. Response numbers are printed next to the brackets in the right margin of the comments. Every bracketed comment has a corresponding response. Each response is designed to be read along with the comment it addresses. Air Force responses to comments are located immediately following the comment section. They are organized alphabetically by response code. The first page of the responses provides a key to the response codes in Section D.10.

The responses refer to both the Draft EIS and Final EIS documents, as appropriate. For example, if the commenter suggests a deficiency in the Draft document, the response may refer to the Draft EIS for clarification. If the Final EIS includes amended information, including mitigations, the reader will be directed to that section of the Final EIS.

Public and agency involvement is an important part of the NEPA process, and all comments whether bracketed or not are taken into consideration by the Air Force in its decision making process.

Subject: F-35A training Proposal for Boise, Idaho

Thanks for sending me a card about the EIS on the basing proposal that might include Gowan Field.

1. Please change my address from Mr. and Mrs. Larry and Bette Woodard, [redacted] to Larry Woodard, [redacted]

2. I am a retired State Director with the Bureau of Land Management. Dealing with the military especially the Birds of Prey and the various military units in New Mexico were common experiences and I have been involved with EIS involving grazing, mining, forestry, Alaska pipeline, etc. for over 3 decades.

3. Based on the strategic need of our military in this day and age, I would support basing the unit in Boise. Boise offers an excellent climate, schools, housing, etc. for military personnel. The High Desert area provides for excellent air force training ranges on a year-round basis. The noise for some nearby residents takes second place to the national security needs of the Air Force. GE-3

Thanks for letting me comment.

Subject: F35 noise over Southwest Boise EIS

Dear Sir/Madam:

It is inappropriate that Southwest Boise is again being considered as home base for up to 72 F-35s.

This very loud aircraft would make more frequent and louder aircraft noise, at greater distances from the airport. NO-1

The Air Force Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) published January 20, 2012 states that 7-10,000 residents would be affected. That is an understatement. Over 36,000 people live in SW Boise zip 83709 alone! If incorporated, zip 83709 would be Idaho's 9th largest City. NO-2

Basing F35s at Gowen Field is unacceptable. We don't want to stop our conversations when visiting outdoors or louder, more frequent night flights disrupting our sleep. NO-3

Given already drastic declines in area home prices, we don't want F35s making our neighborhoods noisier, less desirable to live in, and giving our homes even lower resale values. SO-1

USAF should base these noisy contraptions somewhere other than Gowen Field. GE-1

Very sincerely,

Errors and Omissions in the Boise Draft EIS Additional Draft EIS requirements

January 23rd, 2011

After reading the Draft EIS, specifically for the Boise site, I am requesting the following errors and omissions be corrected:

1. There are no definitive DB loudness studies or numbers published for the F-35. Perform them if you have not done so, or publish them if you have them. As the off-site loudness has been shown to cause hearing damage, it is essential that the area maps show DB magnitudes at all sensitive locations. These measures or estimates already exist since they are required to develop the DNL measures which are listed for all sensitive locations. NO-4 NO-5

2. Over 10,000 residents will find there homes reclassified as "Not Suitable for Residential Use" if the F-35s are brought in. This will result in millions of dollars of lost property value. It is essential that a full house by house appraisal and valuation be done. Who is responsible to do this? SO-1 SO-2

3. Over 1,000 residents will be exposed to very high noise levels due to the unusually close proximity of residential houses to the runways. 1,400 afterburner take offs will occur annually. It is essential that a full noise study be done of the afterburner noise situation. NO-4

4. 4 schools and 13-day care centers will be in very high DNL and noise magnitude areas. What mitigations will be done to avoid deteriorating learning levels? This must be studied in depth. EJ-1

5. The world health organization states that DNL levels of 50 and above can cause health and mental problems. It is essential that the EIS include boundary maps for 50DNL, 55 DNL, and 60 DNL. NO-6

6. Several thousand residents will be exposed to DNL and sound magnitudes above the 65 DNL. Studies are needed for 70 DNL, 75 DNL, 80 DNL, 85 DNL, and above 85 DNL. Also, what mitigations will be used to avoid the sever health, mental, and financial impacts. NO-4 NO-6

7. In order for individual homeowners to understand their options, a residence by residence list of all properties and any and all Avigation Easements that encumber each property is required. SO-2

8. Present clarification of the "No Action Alternative." Does this mean all four locations will continue to be candidates for basing F-35s as additional planes become available? DO-1 DO-2

9. What are the next steps in the bed down process after the final EIS? NP-1

1002 BO

Will actions be taken to reconcile the airspace and land use conflicts that are identified in the EIS? Will Joint Use Land Studies be authorized? Will zoning ordinances in conflicted areas be enforced. Will rezoning occur? LU-1
Will a program be initiated to move residences out of the 65DNL, 70 DNL, 75 DNL, 80 DNL, 85 DNL, and > 85 DNL areas identified in the EIS? SO-3

10. Will the Air Force bring several F-35s to Boise to conduct a typical daily training routine of 50 sorties. Take off 5 times under full afterburner. Take off and land at night 5 times. Measure the loudness. GE-2
Let the residents of all of the Boise Valley hear the future for themselves. NO-7
If the Air Force is unwilling to do this, please list the reasons.

To whom it may concern:

Having lived in Phoenix since 1950 and seeing the major contribution that Luke AFB has made to our Valley – our State – and to the safety and security of our country – I wholeheartedly endorse having Luke be the new home of the F-35. I hear those jets and it's the sound of FREEDOM! GE-3

Mr. David Martin

Mr. Martin:

The purpose of this letter is a follow-up to the letters I sent in February, 2010 and June 24, 2011 expressing my thoughts and concerns as to why my family and I feel that the future training facilities for the F-35 fighter jets should NOT be located at Luke Air Force Base in Glendale, AZ.

I reside in Litchfield Park, which is a couple of miles south of the base. I implore you to please choose ANOTHER BASE INSTEAD OF LUKE AFB to base the F-35s, one that is not located so close to neighborhoods, schools and businesses. GE-1

As I said in my last 2 letters, when we built our home out here, we were told that Luke AFB was nearby but that we were not in the high noise or high accident corridor of the current F-16 jets.. If we are not in the area subjected to high noise levels, I certainly would hate to hear the noise in the neighborhoods that are!

On the days that the F-16s are flying, we cannot even carry on a conversation in our yard. On those days, my ears are ringing and my nerves are frazzled by the end of the day. I have even suffered from a ruptured eardrum, which was likely caused by the noise level. It is our understanding the F-35s are even louder! The last thing we need is to have louder jets flying overhead! NO-8 NO-1

To make matters worse, the F-16s can fly till midnight and have done so on numerous occasions. The late night flyovers make it impossible for those who have to be up early for work or those who have small children that need their rest so can perform well in school to get a decent night's sleep. Lack of sleep can have a tremendous negative impact on one's health as well as their quality of life. NO-3

I am actually afraid to speak up in the public meetings, because judging by some of the comments from people expressing their views on the AZ Republic website, I am afraid of the actions and verbal lashings I would get from those individuals who support the mission if I were to speak up at the meeting. Thus, I have chosen to express my views in writing.

The high noise impact is only one concern. There is also the added pollution and crash potential. I ask that you please locate the F-35 training facilities elsewhere in a more remote location where families will not have to endure the noise and pollution that the planes will surely bring and their children will not be in constant danger should a jet crash into a school. In fact, I believe there have been at least two F-16 planes crashes over the last few years, luckily missing schools and neighborhoods. AQ-1 SA-1 SA-2

In closing, I once again implore you to please locate the F-35 training facilities in a remote area away from schools, homes and businesses so the residents here can enjoy a more tranquil existence free of the danger from a crash, pollution, loss of hearing or nerve damage that may be caused by the F-35s. GE-1

Thank you for taking the time to once again hear my concerns.

Sincerely,

[redacted]

Comments: It is with great pleasure and pride that I am able to provide the EIS office my comments and conscience regarding the final basing and training of the F-35A Lightning II Joint Strike Fighter at Luke AFB. I take this opportunity not only as a person with prior service in the military but also as a citizen of the Great State of Arizona. I believe the foremost reason for basing the F-35A at Luke AFB is that the facility has been home to training Air Force pilots since at least World War II and has progressed to the point where its suitability for training is second to none. The records Luke has amassed for training its personnel will speak for themselves when the criterion of fitness and suitability for the mission is considered. The close proximity of Luke to an ordnance training facility, namely the Barry Goldwater Bombing Range, also makes Luke a natural location for F-35A training.

It also appears that most of the population in the surrounding communities also wish the presence Of the new Fifth-Generation, Joint Strike Fighter to reside at Luke. The only criterion that seemed to be of any concern was the possibility of elevated noise levels due to F-35A's new GE/Rolls-Royce engine. NO-9 Studies have shown that the increased noise levels will scarcely be any more than what currently exist with the outgoing F-16 mission. They will practically undiscernable to the bare ear. The F-35A's noise contour lines are well within those established by the state of Arizona. NO-10

The fiscal outlook for the new F-35A mission is bright: approximately $178M in construction and renovation will be required along with a myriad of new jobs almost 2500 and 300 operational positions will provide for about $18M in tax collection. The AirForce may also enjoy an increase in new enlistments and reenlistment s with the exciting new fighter program! From a political stand point, all local federal and state powers that be are also eager to have the F-35A mission at Luke.

The conclusion is apparent and logical: Luke Air Force Base should be the new home of the F-35A Lightning II Joint Strike Fighter without question! GE-3

Dear Mr. Martin:

As a property owner in Tucson, I am adamently opposed to the possible deployment of a training squadron of F-35's to Tucson International airport. — GE-4

My primary concern is the high noise level produced by these military aircraft. Even though we live about 12 or more miles from the airport, we can plainly hear the F-16's from inside the house when they fly over; and sometimes hear them when they take off from outside the house. — NO-1, NO-8

From what I hear, the F-35's are going to be significantly noisier than the F-16's. For the peace and sanity of people living closer to the airport; Please Do not house a squadron of these aircraft adjacent to significant populations. The increase in noise will have an adverse effect on property values; which are already depressed. — NO-1, SO-1

From a noise and safety perspective; it just doesn't make any sense to move the squdron to a large population area. — GE-1

Mr. Martin:

Thank you for the additional opportunity to provide citizen/area input to the "Proposed Action" of establishment of F-35A Training Aircraft at various facilities in Arizona, New Mexico and Idaho. Therewith, I am further attaching hereto a copy of my original comments of 16 March, 2010, specifically relating to the establishment of "Training Facilities" here at nearby Luke A.F.B. The reasons supporting the inclusion of training here, in view of an increased "cost/benefit ratio" of today's economic realities; make an even better case to name Luke as the site to be chosen. GE-3

I further add that as an Arizona Citizen since early 1960, having lived in both the Phoenix and Tucson areas with extensive "business/community/governmental participation," I can also endorse the inclusion of the Tucson International Airport Air Guard Station as a cost efficient adjunct to "Luke" in the training of both "U.S." and foreign pilots. The proven experience of pilot training in the "F-16 programs" in both locations, amply underscores this factor.

With the "infrastructure" already in place to accommodate personnel, families and supplying industries, the immediate access to the "Barry Goldwater Bombing Range," and Arizona's year round flying weather, other alternative locations cannot effectively produce the desired objectives herein.

I urge the adoption of "Arizona" as the preferred sites for F-35A pilot training. Thank you for your invitation to submit comments herein! GE-3

F-35 Transition Study:
Atten: David Martin,
HQ AETC/A7CPP,
266 F. St. West, Bldg. 901,
Randolph A.F.B., TX
78150-4319

Sir:

I was not available to attend the informational and public input meeting previously held at the Wigwam Hotel and am taking this opportunity, within the extended times allowed, to submit my comments relative to the possible transition of F-35 training here to nearby Luke A.F.B.

My family and I have been residents of Litchfield Park since early 1970. Therein, "Luke" has been a much longer and integral part of the west side communities for approximately sixty years. During those years, Luke's military aircraft training roles have changed considerably as aircraft technologies have transitioned from "prop" driven craft to today's sophisticated jet powered and weapons delivery capabilities.

Throughout these times and aircraft designs, generations of area residents have both fully welcomed and supported the Luke operations and the thousands of dependent families that have lived among us as neighbors. During the Viet Nam era, there were Luke families of P.O.W.'s held in Hanoi. Three of whom lived within "steps" of our residence. Their school aged children were supported by their peer groups and my daughter's baby sat their infants. Community support was abundantly shared with care and concerns. "Luke" was our home as well.

Undoubtedly, Luke A.F.B. also contains all the technical and location prerequsites for continued flight operation training. Luke has the facilities of a modern training base, its flight time location to the Barry Goldwater Bombing Range and the almost unlimited annual flying weather afforded to training. The infrastructures are already in place for housing, education and recreation, for which Luke does not have to budget, are readily available and are presently shared by Luke personnel and families.

For all of the above comments and more, Luke's transition to the F-35 aircraft would be another and successful continuing phase of Luke's partnership with our area communities and residents.

"Thank You" for the inclusion of these remarks to your study analysis.

We've been through this once before, but obviously it is of great import to our governor, who doesn't think about those of us losing property values, to revisit this issue. You have other options than to bring F-35A Aircraft to within a blink of an eye to our airport, and area neighborhoods. Over 10,000 residents will be affected by this initiative.

We believe this is being re-visited because of political ploys, and the notion of jobs coming to town, but few are realizing what this means to a residential area. This is not an airforce base. People live within walking distance of the proposed site area, and you know as well as I that you aren't going to pay me cash for my property if you come to town and destroy my standard of living.

The FAA will deem this area 65 DNL, yet, it is precisely that. Residential use. You have air for bases that will easily accommodate these aircraft, and I would suggest you utilize one or more of them instead of my neighborhood. The uprising has just begun.

The F35 is a very advanced fighter jet. Our country needs this aircraft for our present and future fighting ability. Tucson has PROVEN, from past experience, that it is capable of housing such an aircraft and teaching pilots the needed skills to fly an advanced fighter jet. There is practically nothing, in Tucson, AZ, that prohibits a training exercise from taking place on a daily basis. Very few locations can brag about this positive feature. GE-3

Airplanes are loud -- reference the F-16 in daily sorties at the Tucson Airport. But their noise is primarily confined to the airport, where all aircraft noise is primarily concentrated.

So noise aside, let us be more concerned about the many benefits the F-35A will provide to the people of Tucson. First is the excitement of witnessing a new and very powerful air plane in Tucson's skies. Imagine how many people will be excited with this very new and amazing airplane.

I can imagine children seeing the airplanes in the air will want to pursue a higher education than what is normally provided in a small town like Tucson. Higher education leads to higher qualities of life.

Also there will be many additional opportunities offered to the people of Tucson.

The F-35A will bring better people to Tucson. More homes and cars will be sold. People will have more opportunities servicing the needs of the airmen and support crews. Better restaurants will be good news for Tucson. Better schools with a higher standard of education will be good news for Tucson.

More air traffic means more activities will come to Tucson.

Prevent the F-35A from coming to Tucson and they WILL go some place else and Tucson will loose more in knowledge and education.

Let us welcome the F-35A with open arms. Let the naysayers be naysayers. Let those with vision create a better and more prosperous Tucson.

Friends:

I hereby submit comments on the Proposed Pilot Training Center and Basing of F35A Training Aircraft Draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS). For the record, I am a resident of the Sacramento Mountains in Otero County, New Mexico, living 3.1 miles south of Weed, NM and perhaps directly under training routes IR134/195 and IR192/194. The latter is impossible to determine based on the low resolution maps you provide (such as Figure HO 2.2-1). I also own land in Hop Canyon near Magdalena in Socorro County apparently within the CATO military operations area (MOA). I am currently a volunteer firefighter and the Training Co-ordinator for the Sacramento Weed Volunteer Fire Department. As such I have fought wildland fires in the TALON MOA and perhaps in the BEAK MOA.

Given my uncertainty as to the location of the aircraft training activity routes and areas my first comment on the DEIS is: please provide higher resolution maps either in the final printed EIS or provide online links to them. And please explicitly and quantitatively answer this question: Why is confining F35A flights to military land adjoining Holloman AFB apparently unacceptable? Or to that area and contiguous BLM land where no one lives? DO-3 DO-4

Nearly two years ago (in a letter dated March 19, 2010 and in person at a meeting in Weed attended by Air Force personnel) I participated in the Scoping Process part of the DEIS preparation procedure. I am frustrated that many of the questions I raised then were not addressed to my satisfaction in the DEIS. Several of them basically asked you all at the Air Force to bolster my confidence in believing that output numbers from your modeling of subsonic and supersonic noise from planned F35A activity would be something more than a "garbage in = garbage out" type effort. As someone with a technical background (I have an M.S. degree in physics from UCLA), I begged for technical details of the models used and specifically asked whether key models had been validated based on real world comparison of predictions with actual events...?" After downloading around 1300 or so pages of the DEIS, summary, appendices, etc., I was initially pleased to see Appendix B devoted specifically to noise. I fully expected lots of details and my questions to be answered. NP-3

Alas, I am sadly disappointed. Many of the 64 pages of Appendix B are unnecessary duplicates of stuff presented in chapters 3 and 4 of volume 1. The material is rather non-technical (I recall only a couple of equations). While names of computer programs and technical references are given, these are typically to in house Air Force software tools or publications that I can't gain access to given the barriers in place. Many of them appear to be dated such as the 1978 Schultz reference that Figure B-2 "Community Surveys of Noise Annoyance" is based on, or the 1978 CABOOM / Carlson reference that Table HO-3.2.6 "Sonic Boom Peak Overpressures" is based on, or even Appendix B's reference (page 51 or so) to "the current version of BOOMAP (Frampton et al. 1993, Plotkin 1996). I found some references--such as "Nelson, J. 2003. Meta-Analysis of Airport Noise and Hedonic Property Values: Problems and Prospects. July" to be so lacking in basic information such as journal name, publisher, etc. that tracking them down was impossible. In the 88 page Executive Summary and overviews presented elsewhere I found many errors some admittedly corrected in the separate Errata section and misleading statements. NO-4

Two examples: 1) On page 12 in the Exec Summary, the scooping question "What noise mitigations would be implemented?" is supposedly addressed in section 5.0 of the chapter four alternatives--HO 5.0 being one of them cited. I can't find the reference to HO 5.0. The section on HO in volume 1 ends with section 4.3; where is the stuff on noise mitigation? 2) The Preface reassuring says "Readers who wish to quickly (emphasis mine!) review the document and compare the alternative locations will benefit from Table 2-12, the summary comparison table found at the end of Chapter 2." It turns out this table spans 36 pages (pp92-128) nearly all of them jam packed with details presented in tiny font size print! All of above hardly instills confidence in the Air Force's competence and that its real intent is to aid the public's understanding.

Soon my initial hopefulness regarding what I'd find in this DEIS, gave way to disillusionment. Before I fully got into a technical assessment, a friend's email referred to it as a "snow job". My own assessment is that some important output numbers related to predicted noise are best viewed with skepticism. Consider specifically the average noise level gauged by DNL numbers in Table HO 3.2-4 "Noise Environment for Holloman AFB Primary Use Airspace, Baseline Conditions and F-35A Beddown Scenarios". (I realize "DNL does not represent the sound level heard at any particular time, but rather represents the total sound exposure. DNL accounts for the sound level of individual noise events, the duration of those events, and the number of events. Its use is") Use of DNL can hide some truly outrageous noise levels. Consider training route IR134/195 where F35A aircraft could fly at as low as 100 feet altitudes. The sound level exposures (SEL) experienced by people directly would exceed levels that can cause serious damage to hearing. Even at 1000 ft, according to Table HO 3.2-5, an SEL= 120 dB is predicted! Yet the DNLs for all of the eight scenarios modeled under that path don't exceed 60 dB. While this certainly looks better and for some uses DNL measures are preferred by the scientific community it hides some truly unacceptable noise levels. NO-4

In what follows I will cite some of your predicted DNL values. My doing this in no way condones the DEIS mostly ignoring maximum noise levels (L_{max}). In the final EIS, along with DNL measures, please include L_{max} numbers for all scenarios. To not do this is simply hiding important information and being dishonest! Besides this, I would like the Air Force to seriously consider substantially increasing minimum altitudes F35As are permitted to fly at over inhabited areas say to 2000 feet or more. NO-13 DO-6

A residence under the IR192/194 flight path experiences a DNL of 53 dB under "baseline conditions" (per page H0-43); Under Scenario H5 with 120 F-35A aircraft based at Holloman, the DNL jumps to 60 dB. How was this number determined and is it cause for concern?
One might naively imagine that sound levels from F-35As flying under the appropriate "air space" conditions at various speeds, in changing directions, and at various altitudes in mountain terrain similar to the Sacramento Mountains were actually measured by recording equipment placed at varying distances and directions from the aircraft... And that these data were used to validate models such as NOISEMAP (version 7.3). According to Appendix B section 3.1 "The noise depends on the speed and power setting of the aircraft and its trajectory. The models noted above divide the trajectory into segments whose noise can be computed from the data in NOISEFILE. The contributions from these segments are summed... Supporting routines from NOISEMAP were used to calculate SEL and LAmax for various flight altitudes and lateral offsets from a ground receiver position." NO-4

This is all very reassuring until one investigates what actual real subsonic noise data from F-35As are in NOISEFILE? This question is not really answered anywhere in the 1300 or so pages of this DEIS and its companions. The only places in all that where I've found reference to such data are in Tables HO 3.2-1 and HO 3.2-5. The former is confined to "Departure," "Arrival," and "Closed Pattern" (at 1340 ft altitude) operation types. The first two of these are not particularly relevant to the IR192/194 route; the third is applicable for 1340 feet altitude as are the numbers in the latter table for 1000 feet altitude. But the F35As can fly this IR192/194 route at altitudes from 500 to 50,000 feet, so clearly a lot more data based on real measurements is needed. Note SEL number of 120 dB presented in Table HO 3.2-5 was not even directly measured but is "based on an empirical fit curve from the noise data contained in the NoiseFile database for these high speed operations (Wyle 2010)." I am unable to get past the Air Force's barriers to access the cited (in house) reference.

Many people would not find the change in noise level from 53 dB to 60 dB to be a big deal. But due to the logarithmic nature of the decibel scale the change of 7 dB represents a five times increase in sound energy impacting ears (Power Gain Factor = $10^{7/10}$ = 5). Far more outrageous is that it represents a colossal 3162 times sound energy level increase over the peaceful, natural 25 dB level that one expects in remote mountain regions. (Power Gain Factor = $10^{35/10}$ = 3162) I have no doubt that such a drastic increase in ambient sound would seriously compromise the integrity of natural ecosystems-species adaptations to the environment, prey/predator relationships, food chains, etc. Before leaving this topic, I'm sad that certain F35A scenarios drastically impact southern Otero County-especially the (potential wilderness or national monument) area known as Otero Mesa. According to page 503 in the DEIS, this peacefully serene region faces "a 9 dB increase under Scenario H5, for a maximum of 65 dB DNL" That brings the noise in this remote area to a level unconsidered unacceptable even in big cities! BI-2 LU-4

There's another impact of the Air Force's proposed H5 scenario that I find personally troubling: the potential decrease in property values of my house and land. According to Appendix B section 2.7, based on the study by Nelson 2003 (previously identified as an inaccessible reference) "the value of a specific property could be discounted between 0.5 and 0.6 percent per decibel when compared to a similar property that is not impacted by aircraft noise," we might expect around a 4% or $8,000 drop in property value. I could perhaps accept this if the drop were really limited to that. In actuality I fear that occasional outrageously high L_{max} noise levels would make my property (assumed to be under the IR192/194 route) plunge much more deeply in value-even to the point where I could not sell it at a give-away price! SO-1

Many of the F35A training flights will result in flare deployment. I was shocked to learn of the scale of such deployment. According to discussion in section 2.4.5 in the DEIS and numbers in Table 2-10, those 120 aircraft can be expected to drop 132,000 magnesium / Teflon type (MJU)-61/B flares every year. These flares can potentially start fires if they are still hot when they reach the ground or ignite later than expected. The NY Times headline of May 17, 2007 (see http://www.nytimes.com/2007/05/17/nyregion/17fire.html) "Fire Spotlights Concerns of Living Near Fighter Jets" tells the story of how F-16 pilot error in deploying a flare started a fire that eventually burned 18,000 acres in the New Jersey pine barrens. Despite citizen concerns expressed at scooping meetings over the potential for F35As deploying flares to start fires, I found nothing in the discussion and socioeconomic tables in sections HO 3.10 and 3.11 on the $ costs associated with fighting these fires and other negative impacts (including possible loss of homes and life) associated with them. Please rectify this omission in the final EIS. SA-4 SO-8

Speaking of firefighting, I am very concerned about the potential danger to wildland firefighters and unsuspecting children many years after F35A military operations start in certain areas. Let me begin my description of this by quoting from DEIS section 2.4.5: "On extremely rare occasions (estimated at approximately 0.01 percent of flares dispensed), a flare may not ignite and would fall to the earth as a dud flare. In an extremely rare occasion, where a dud flare is found, it should not be moved, the location should be identified, and the Air Force base public affairs office should be contacted and provided with the dud flare location." These dud flares could readily ignite in forest fires or unintentionally in back-fire/control burn fire fighter operations or by children playing (the flares may be electrostatically sensitive). SA-5

I am very skeptical of the 0.01 percent figure cited above and challenge the Air Force to transparently and fully justify its use. According to Table 2-11 (page 89) the flare initiator is a "plastic / spring device". With its cited failure rate, the Air Force is asking me to believe that for every 10,000 of these flares deployed, 9,999 successfully ignite and there is only one dud. At bare minimum, a reference or some basis for this asserted extremely low failure rate needs to be provided. I especially want to know if it is based on actual quantitatively documented experience with these (or similar flares) or the result of some criticality analysis involving failure modes of springs, probability of unusual operating environment conditions, etc? Even if it is accepted, of the 132,000 flares annually deployed by the 120 aircraft mentioned above, we would expect 13 or 14 to be duds. Multiply that by the thirty year lifetime of the F35As and we have roughly 400 DO-7

At some point I concluded two things: 1) The Air Force has very limited noise measurement data for the F35As, and 2) they have not acted on my request for detailed information as to what's gone into their modeling. These conclusions are bolstered by what I found in the Appendix of an Elgin AFB document recently made public. One is a statement summarizing F35A noise data available: "Noise levels for the pre-production F-35A aircraft were measured for limited conditions by Lockheed-Martin during initial testing in 2001 and then re-measured by the U.S. Air Force in 2007. The Air Force Research Laboratory (AFRL) incorporated the 2007 data into the NOISEFILE database, which was then used as the source for noise analysis in this document. Those data collected have been compared with noise levels associated with other comparable fighter aircraft and are shown in Table E-7.At military takeoff power, noise from the F-35 is about 9 dB higher (or twice as loud) than an F-15C at military takeoff power. During approach, noise from the F-35 is about 19 dB higher than noise from an F-15C. This corresponds to the F-35 being about four times as loud as the F-15C. However, noise at approach power is always less than that for takeoff. Depending on particular power and speed, noise levels on arrival are approximately one-third to one-half as loud as noise levels on departure. Table E-7 shows SELs derived from NOISEFILE for the F-35 and three other aircraft for a military takeoff, cruise and approach condition (F-35 airspace condition power was estimated). Noise levels are SEL at a distance of 1,000 feet, and the speed for each condition is shown." The footnote to Table E-7 there admits the method employed to get the F 35 number presented "was estimated data based on differential of F-16 on takeoff versus airspace conditions and ratioed to F-35 conditions" I have little doubt that this is what was done to get similar data in Table HO 3.2-5 in this DEIS I'm commenting on. NO-4

The "lack of good data to base models on" situation appears to be much worse for F35A supersonic operations. In Appendix B (around page 52) the Air Force identifies the source of their data as follows: "Long-term sonic boom measurement projects have been conducted in four supersonic air combat training airspaces: White Sands, New Mexico (Plotkin et al. 1989); the eastern portion of the Goldwater Range, Arizona (Plotkin et al. 1992); the Elgin MOA at Nellis AFB, Nevada (Frampton et al. 1993); and the western portion of the Goldwater Range (Page et al. 1994) .These studies included analysis of schedule and air combat maneuvering instrumentation data and supported development of the 1992 BOOMAP model (Plotkin et al. 1992). The current version of BOOMAP (Frampton et al. 1993, Plotkin 1996) incorporates results from all four studies." In other words, the most recent data they are relying on goes back to 1994-long before the F35A appeared on drawing boards. NO-4

I challenge the Air Force to refute my above assertion that F-35A noise measurements are very very limited and that much of the noise modeling involves questionable extrapolations and no real validation—and that much of the noise output data in the tables and figures of this DEIS is best skeptically viewed as "garbage in = garbage out"!

Now back to my example of DNL average noise level for residences under flight path IR192/194 increasing from 53 dB to 60 dB given lots of F35As flying over and the two questions raised. By now it should be clear that, due to a paucity of F35A noise data and that it is SEL not DNL that is actually measured, this number was determined in a highly round-about fashion. It would be simplistic to connect this 60 dB noise to the 60 dB identified with an automobile 100 feet away, as Figure 3-1 in the DEIS suggests. Of more relevance is the connection between DNL and the % of people annoyed by noise. From Figure B-2 and the fact that people who live in remote places like the Sacramento Mountains generally enjoy the peaceful, tranquil environment and aren't used to the noises city dwellers are-I would predict that perhaps over 20% of my neighbors would be "highly annoyed" if the DNL were to rise to 60 dB. How many would be only "moderately annoyed"? Is the level of annoyance important to the Air Force? NO-4 NO-14 of these dangerous devices which burn at temperatures exceeding 2,000° F spread out over the 2000 mi² MOA the Air Force identifies. That's one in every five square miles—an area that firefighters or hikers or people riding ATVs have been known to cover in a single day. Sooner or later a person will be seriously hurt by such hazards, or a fire will be started due to children playing, lightning strikes, ATVs, cattle grazing activity, etc. SA-5

Having examining lots of details in the DEIS, I now wish to shift the discussion to a much higher level. Following section 2.4.5 in volume 1 of the DEIS, is section 2.5 " The No Action Alternative." Legally required by the NEPA to include this, the Air Force allots it a mere 113 words—basically describing it as the alternative in which no F35As are based at any of the four air force bases considered but ongoing and planned activities at those bases nevertheless continue. While this alternative does provide a baseline to compare the other four proposed alternatives to, it is not a realistically considered path. Holding this thought briefly in abeyance, consider something else. DO-1

At the beginning of chapter 1 in the DEIS (volume 1, page 55) one finds "The Joint Strike Fighter (JSF)…Program's objective is to develop and deploy a three-variant family of highly common and affordable (my emphasis) strike fighter aircraft to meet the operational needs of the Air Force, USN, USMC, and international partners." I challenge the Air Force to develop a new alternative in the final EIS that truly embraces this word affordable. Such an alternative is needed given that our country's economic security has drastically altered in the over a decade since the October 26, 2001 decision by military higherups was made to proceed with the JSF program. Many question whether as a nation we can afford the nearly 2500 F35s the military and US government have seemingly committed to.

An excellent summary of the associated economic concerns was provided by an article in the March 2011 issue of The Atlantic (http://www.theatlantic.com/national/archive/2011/03/the-f-35-a-weapon-that-costs-more-than-australia/72454/). There one reads about the over $1 trillion total lifetime cost of the program--$382 billion for the cost of all the aircraft plus $650 billion that the Government Accountability Office estimates is needed to operate and maintain them. Since the article appeared, a team of five Pentagon experts has uncovered thirteen different new design flaws to this already in production aircraft—things that reportedly will cost $billions more to fix. (One reference to this is found at http://pogoblog.typepad.com/pogo/2011/12/morning-smoke-thirteen-new-design-flaws-found-in-trillion-dollar-f-35-jet.html) Ominously, rumors of the F35s being not as invisible to enemy radar as hoped have also surfaced. DO-5

With the above $ cost figures and a calculator, one can compute that the F35 / JSF program will ultimately cost each of the roughly one hundred million American households an average of $10,000 in added taxes if it is pursued fully over the next three decades. Even traditional defense supporters like Arizona Senator John McCain question the wisdom of spending this money, as reported by ABC News last summer.

Part of that July 19 2011 report (see http://abcnews.go.com/Business/400-billion-defense-cuts-kill-weapons-programs-hurt/story?id=14083111#.TzAe5cinU0Y) mentioned a new proposal: "The Congressional Budget Office has proposed cutting the F-35 program altogether, which it says would produce a savings of $27 billion over the next five years and $260 billion longer-term. CBO recommends that the Pentagon, instead of continuing with the F-35, upgrade F-16s and F/A-18s to give them some of the costlier plane's capabilities…"

In concluding, I challenge the Air Force to create another alternative for the final EIS—one built around this more affordable and less technologically risky prescription. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Stephen P. Cook

Subject: F35 @ Luke AFB

To whom it may concern:

I was one of the first military assigned to the 944 FG (AFRES) at Luke when it activated in 1986. At that time, the facilities were still under construction. I retired in 1993. During that time, I saw Luke transform from WW II building and aircraft facilities to to what it is today. Millions of dollars have gone into making Luke the finest military pilot training base in the world .

The worth to the surrounding area, Arizona and the United States goes far beyond the millions per year the base would generate for the economy. Pilots from countries all over the free world train here, bringing their culture and the countries money to our economy.

True, many more millions will be spent to transform the base once again, but there is no other location that can provide the weather for training that we have in Arizona. I live in Sun City, in the flight path of Luke Aircraft. I relish the sound of the F16's & other aircraft from Luke. I will be looking forward to the sound of the F35's. GE-3

Dear Mr. Martin and Ms Fornof:

As a recent visitor whom took a private tour of your fantasitc Air Force Base.

Luke Air Force Base has served a vital role for the U.S. Air Force for seventy years. As the world's largest fighter wing and the finest training base in the world, Luke is the logical location as a training site for the F-35 mission. Arizona has the ideal climate, land, airspace, training ranges and facilities needed to fly the F-35.
Luke Air Force Base enjoys unconditional community support from Arizonans like me. In fact, Arizona is viewed as a model for proactively and successfully securing statewide legislation that ensures responsible land-use planning around the state's military institutions to ensure that development is compatible with the installation's mission. Luke also possesses the ability to house up to six squadrons of F-35's along with a network of auxiliary fields which are of critical importance to pilot training. Finally, its management and operation of Barry M. Goldwater Range, provides pilots with year round, state-of-the-art training capabilities and a realistic training environment.
These are just a few of the many reasons why I encourage the Record of Decision to support the Air Force recommendation of Luke Air Force Base as the future home to the F-35 training mission. GE-3

GOD BLESS ALL OUR WONDERFUL ARMED SERVICES and THANK YOU FOR ALL YOU DO.

Sirs ~ Why don't you offer to test fly the new planes on a particular weekend to show people who are against this project exactly how loud the planes are? Seems like a logical solution to the doubters who don't want this. Place announcements of the dates in the newspaper early enough in advance, then listen for the comments. At this point, we only have rumors about the noise problem and people are skeptical about the truth. Let's show them! GE-2

Subject: Opposition To Bringing F-35 to Luke AFB, AZ

Importance: High

I am a current resident of Litchfield Park, AZ. Although the jets from Luke AFB do not (or at least should not be) flying over my neighborhood, the noise from the F-16 is unbearable. I strongly oppose bringing the even louder F-35 to Luke AFB in Glendale, AZ. Although the local politicians seem to be pushing their agenda by using the phrase "the sound of freedom" and trying to scare us by saying if the base closes, the economy will greatly suffer, etc...., they fail to take our quality of life issues into consideration. The jets fly very late in the evening when school aged children and those who have to commute to jobs outside of the area need to get their rest. Also, even with the F-16s flying over, out of town guests have often asked me how we can live with that noise. So, noise is a huge issue and one that should disqualify Luke AFB from the running. The F-35 will be much too loud and will cause even further deterioration in our quality of life. GE-4 SO-4 NO-1

If I had my preference, I would like to see the entire mission located in another state in an area that is not heavily populated and where the Air Force can accomplish their mission without destroying the quality of life of nearby residents. I have the utmost respect for all military personnel and their mission. It is just that they should complete that mission in a less populated area. Thank you. GE-1

If the F35 is louder than the F16 as reported in the local newspaper, I would be against bringing the F35 to Luke AFB unless there are some ways to reduce the noise level. I live very close to the flight path when taking off to the SE from Luke AFB. Usually multiple jets takeoff and after the first one leaves, the pilots continue to use the afterburners to play catch up to the lead jets in front of them. I can't carry on a conversation if the door is open during good weather. If the F35 is louder than the current jets, I STRONGLY OPPOSE the F35 at LUKE AFB. GE-4 NO-8 GE-4

Subject: Luke Forward - F35 Fighter Noise

Though I live in Glendale, I am nowhere close to the noise fly-zone of Luke jets. I know there's a lot of concern over the single-engine F35 fighter noise on takeoff. I've lived in the Phoenix-Glendale metro area since 1969, and back in the 1970s, Luke had both the F16 AND the F15 fighters regularly training there. The F15 is a twin-engine air-superiority fighter with two of the same F100 engines used in the F16. Though it created marginally more noise than the F16, no one really seemed to mind. I understand that fewer people lived in the far NW valley at that time, but those people moved there with the full knowledge that Luke existed, and might have more than F16s there at some future point. So, I believe that there is no real reason NOT to proceed with basing the F35 training at Luke. GE-3

If you want to know what REAL jet noise is, you should have lived in central Tucson back in the 1950s, when David-Monthan was a SAC base, with a number of B47s stationed there. They came in to land low over the city, about 200', and created a roar you couldn't believe at that altitude. If the noise was blocked from behind by a building and you didn't her it coming, it would scare the !@#$ out of you. I have no idea how much noise it actually generated, but I'm guessing it was on the order of 120 dB.

In the interest of full disclosure, my son is a former Navy pilot. The cities he was stationed in had no problems with aircraft noise.

Regards,
Rick Tannehill

We wanted to lend our support as a citizen of Goodyear, AZ, to the continuation of Luke Air Force Base as a major training facility for the new F-35 Lightning II fighter. Luke Air Force Base and the personnel assigned there are an important and long standing part of our community. Although we are new resident of the area, having lived most of our life in California, my father was stationed at Luke Field with the Army Air Corp in 1941. GE-3

Dear Mr. Martin and Ms Fornof:

My husband and I have seen first-hand the decline of a town and its residents in and around the area of upstate New York when Griffiss AFB was winding down,

As transplants and residents of Arizona since 1974, we have been extremely proud to feel the strength and commitment of Luke AFB. Luke Air Force Base has been a viable and reliable neighbor in Arizona. It has also been a sense of pride for us along with a feeling of security knowing how vital the training at Luke is for our pilots and those of many of our allies.

Arizona needs to keep the proud and the brave at Luke AFB! There is nothing quite like the goose bumps I get at the sound of a military helicopter going past my home in Glendale or when I am in visual range of the base, the site and sounds of jets of the United States Air Force doing maneuvers across the western sky. They are a thing of beauty which instills a sense of protection like nothing else can give.

We sincerely and ardently encourage the Record of Decision to support the Air Force recommendation of Luke Air Force Base as the future home to the

F-35 training mission. GE-3

A military base pumps millions into the local economy that would otherwise have failed. Not only that but it brings a sense of pride and identity to the residence. Glendale, AZ and the surrounding area has always supported Luke since it was first established there. Luke has been supportive of the area as well providing everything from help to color guard to leadership. To close Luke would be devastating. We would encourage and will support Luke AFB Glendale, AZ as a Pilot Training Center for the F-35A.

The weather in Arizona provides perfect and reliable conditions for the daily flight training rigors.

Close proximity to the Barry Goldwater Training Range is a positive asset.

The geography of Arizona allows various terrain conditions-desert to high mountain range.

The City of Phoenix and the West Valley City Communities have joined in ensuring the area surrounding Luke airfield is secure-conducive for training and related aircraft takeoff/landing requirements. GE-3

Glendale, AZ area provides many amenities supporting relaxation, during off duty hours, for the men and woman in training.

You probably have heard that noise from Luke AFB airplanes is annoying. I live just below the flight path of many F-16s returning to the base and the noise is minimal. In fact I enjoy looking up when I can at the planes. Anyone can tolerate a few moments of noise and those that don't want to are just grumpy anyway. We have a few grumpy retirerees who just don't care the noise is that of Freedom being protected. Most of our community is proud when we see those airplanes fly by.

Those airplanes at Luke are important to us. They provide security for our future generations and I'm sure have an important economic impact on our communities. Some of my neighbors spent many hours and days, even years, working at Luke both while in the service and when out as civilians.

Our local Civil Air Patrol uses Luke AFB as inspiration for the cadet corps training of youngsters who become interested in aviation and it's related fields. These future citizens learn the core values which the Air Force uses to assure a proper knowledge and appreciation for their country and community. The youngsters seeing these airplanes in action pick up on the ideas of wanting to be part of that action. Save it for them.

It behooves you to keep and maintain Luke AFB as an operational base for the Air Force and our community. GE-3

As I read more of the F-35, the more troubled I become. GE-4

Why is it that the private sector always has to cut personnel or lay off workers to meet their budgets, but the federal government keeps growing?

Here are a few numbers cited by Defense Secretary Robert Gates:

Our Navy battle fleet is larger than the next 13 navies of the world - and 11 of those countries are our allies.

The Defense Department has the fine motor skills of a dinosaur. This is a fine place to start cutting.

A small unmanned drone with air-to-air missiles can shoot a $150 Million F-35 jet out of the air.
It is like the obsolete battleships of WWII. Luke AFB is expecting 144 crafts.
At $150 million each! For a total of $21.6 BILLION DOLLARS. No wonder this country is going bankrupt.

More countries are delaying, and canceling orders due to bugs in the fighter, so as those are worked on the price will go up.
When will you say enough is too much? $200 million, $250 million? DO-5

We are submitting this comment to you in reference to the Weed NM, article in the Alamogordo, NM Daily News, newspaper dated Feb 9, 2012. The article references the severe problems encountered with the F-35 noise and shock issues.

We live in Alamogordo NM, only 10 miles from Holloman AFB. We encounter severe noise and shock problems here also. If this persists with the F-35 causing these problems, I fully expect damage to my home and other structures on my property. Shocks to my home are already severe. NO-12

February 10th 2012

Dear Mr. Martin:

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the F-35A Training Base Draft (EIS) At Holloman AFB, Alamogordo, NM.

This region, which includes Fort Bliss, Texas, White Sands Missile Range and Holloman Air Force Base has since World War II until the present time, provided the best testing and training installations in the world. The Secretary of Defense has also indicated the status a number one value installation.

The availability of the vast air space at a very close range and the ease that this area can be utilized by all of the aircraft that must enter the area to train and operate in, must be more fully explored and entered in the final EIS.

There are no encroachment issues at Holloman Air Force Base. It is located in an area away from any populated area that might be affected by noise of take off or afterburner operation. This should be more defined and expressed in the final EIS. LU-2

Other military missions that are under consideration must be a major concern to be able to interface with the Army, Navy and civilian testing that can be integrated with the F-35 training mission. None of this cost saving to the military is addressed in the EIS. None of these opportunities are available at the other locations and this should also be noted in the final EIS. DO-10

Economically, the placement of the 72 plane training mission at Holloman Air Force Base, would be a sound investment for the U.S Air Force. Construction figures that are in the preliminary EIS are in need of revision because of the construction already completed or is in process for the F-16 move during this year. The final EIS should show a large decrease in construction requirements. DO-11

The final EIS should also include figures that would include the savings that can be realized by using the local area contractors that will be finishing the massive expansion of Fort Bliss and White Sands Missile Range during the time of placement of the F-35 aircraft is anticipated. These area contractors are already certified for this area and no environmental or economic issues would arise. SO-5

The Alamogordo community has always been and will continue to be very supportive of Holloman Air Force Base and the missions that are assigned there. The base is an integral part of our community socially and economically.

Thank you very much,

John E. Gardiner

Comments: First, I would like to express gratitude to all who protect our freedoms. Also I would like to express my aggravation with the government. Well over a hundred thousand acres was taken from my family on the idea was for training. Millions of acres were taken from ranchers across wide. You have a vast area of land you can use for your exercises, we live in an area of very peaceful surroundings. We wish you to continued done what you do and respect us as well. I have been farming down while my husband his parents have had livestock scattered and have suffered great disturbances by low flying over my house. Use the land you have contracted for your use and leave us at peace. Again thank you for your service. Odie Prather BI-1

This community is made up mainly retirees - older people who have come here for the quietness and serenity of the mountains. These people expected to live out the rest of their lives here; possibly die here as many of their friends + neighbors have & will. What kind of quality of life do you think they will have as your F-35's fly over on their "training" missions? If it were your elderly, ill relatives, how would you feel? If it were you, how would you feel? Why not fly over the desert where it is uninhabited? NO-16

Dear Mr. Martin:

I recently received a second postcard and wanted to repeat essentially what I said in my first letter to you some time ago.

I am definitely in favor of the F-35's being trained at Luke AFB. The weather is great here, and probably maintains a 365 day weather for aircraft. GE-3

My husband, Lt Colonel Jack E. Mass was an Air Force pilot for over 24 years, and at one time was stationed at Luke AFB.. He was the first Commander of the F-5 Squadron at Williams AFB. His first love was flying, and I always thought it was #1 for him. The children and I were 2nd.

He passed away in September 1968, while he was stationed at the Pentagon He flew combat in World War II, and also flew in Korea, and was in Vietman as a consultant. If he were still with us, he would be the #1 supporter of the F-35.

Luke AFB was here before the many homes in Surprise and the other housing was built. The many people who have voiced a negative attitude knew that Luke was a flyin base and therefore should have never considered buying in the area.

I reside in Sun City now and when I see or hear the aircraft from Luke AFB close by, I feel proud to be an Air Force wife, and am so proud of all the pilots I have met over the years.

I pray that Luke AFB will be selected for the F-35. There are a great number of military people in the area, both those on active duty and who have retired here, and feel sure they would be for the F-35s. GE-3

I was born and raised on Luke Air Force Base in Glendale, Arizona. At night, I used to lay in the front yard watching the jets fly by. Living there was the most amazing and happiest time of my life.

As a civilian, I cannot tell you about the capability of Luke to handle the F-35 mission. Only the base commander can give you that information. What I can speak to is the economic impact Luke Air Force Base has on the surrounding community and the state. I can also tell you how the surrounding communities have banned together in their support of Luke Air Force Base.

Last I heard, Luke Air Force Base pumped billions of dollars into Arizona's economy. In order to keep the base viable, the base must update its training mission. Getting the F-35 training contract will ensure Luke Air Force Base's viability for the future. By ensuring the base's viability, you also ensure the viability of Arizona's economy...especially during the weak economy we've been having.

Even before the F-35 training contract came up, the surrounding communities have been working diligently to keep the base's current mission, the F-16. The surrounding communities have worked to keep from encroaching the base so that the base could have the open space it needed to properly fulfill its current mission with the F-16's.

As an Air Force brat, born and raised on Luke Air Force Base, I would like nothing more than to see it get the F-35 contract. I firmly believe that Luke Air Force Base, with the cooperation of surrounding communities can fulfill its new mission of F-35 training. I strongly urge you award the F-35 contract to Luke Air Force Base. GE-3

Sincerely,

T. Fairbanks

Comments:

I recommend that we have the training site be a Luke Air Force Base

This letter is to inform you on how the public views the impact of the new training program that is sought for development at Luke Air Force base. Per the newspaper article, they state that they need the public's interest in this subject. I know there are numerous people that will be affected by the presentation of this training program, and all sides need to be considered, not just political. GE-3

Considered the community first it would create jobs, which is what the community and the economy need right now. It would strength the training of our young men to create a secure homeland. It would put money back into to the community, such as that of the big sports arenas in the areas. And it would also provide more taxes, such that as sales tax and other taxes.

In regards to the other sites they are probably well equipment, but Arizonans have been known to go the extra mile and will present a step up and do what is necessary to complete the top of the line in a training facility that everyone will be proud of. I and numerous other east valley people will support the move to Luke Air Force base.

HQ AETC/A7CPP,
Attn: David Martin, Air Force Contractor and Kim Fornof
266 F Street West, Bldg. 901
Randolph AFB, TX 78150-4319

Dear Mr. Martin and Ms Fornof:

Luke Air Force Base has served a vital role for the U.S. Air Force for seventy years. As the world's largest fighter wing and the finest training base in the world, Luke is the logical location as a training site for the F-35 mission. Arizona has the ideal climate, land, airspace, training ranges and facilities needed to fly the F-35.

Luke Air Force Base enjoys unconditional community support from Arizonans like me. In fact, Arizona is viewed as a model for proactively and successfully securing statewide legislation that ensures responsible land-use planning around the state's military institutions to ensure that development is compatible with the installation's mission. Luke also possesses the ability to house up to six squadrons of F-35's along with a network of auxiliary fields which are of critical importance to pilot training. Finally, its management and operation of Barry M. Goldwater Range, provides pilots with year round, state-of-the-art training capabilities and a realistic training environment. GE-3

These are just a few of the many reasons why I encourage the Record of Decision to support the Air Force recommendation of Luke Air Force Base as the future home to the F-35 training mission.

Sincerely,

Joan M. Boudreau

Noise Complaint Dept.
Luke Airforce BAse

To Whom it concerns:

This confirms my phone conversation with a lady in the Noise Complaint Area on January 4, 2012.

As I noted, we have lived in Pueblo El Mirage RV and Golf Resort since 2001. Before that, we had lived in Sunflower Park in Surprise for about 10 years, so we are very familiar with the Jet noise. We know the need to train personnel and we are well aware that we were moving into their territory, but this last year, has been LOUD and constant - Day in and Day Out till about 9 P.M. I am also aware you had, I believe, F22's for about a week not too long ago.

As I noted, we have lived in a Park Model here since 2001. All this noise definitely affects our daily living. When the jets are taking off, we cannot hear the TV or talk with each other or with any visitors we have. At times, it gets so loud that we have had to go somewhere else to be able to talk with our guests. Also, the LOUD, STRONG noise even vibrates in the floors in our house. My husband hopes that they are not taking off with live amunition!!! NO-8

Seems to me that you could change the take-off pattern to another direction every couple weeks or so. This would give us a reprieve once in a while. NO-20

Thank you for considering giving us some quiet.

I am responding to your post card. I am against training pilots for F-35A aircraft at Holloman Air force base outside Alamogordo, NM. The reason being there was a crash landing last night. Luckily the aircraft landed south of Holloman on private land in the White Sands area. If a military aircraft were to crash in the mountains it would likely cause a forest fire! Though we have had some snow this year we are experiencing a drought. Therefore it is too big of a risk to allow them at Holloman Air force Base. SA-3

I would urge you to seek other locations. Perhaps Florida would be a good location as they would fly over the ocean and not damage forests, or private property. San Diego would be another location for the same reason. GE-1

Yours truly,

Lynn Post

F-35A Training

Environmental Impact Statement

Holloman Air Force Base

Lynn Post

Attn: Mr. David Martin

I don't think Holloman should be considered. The Sacramento Mountains are too dangerous for the F-35 training. The requirement that they carry lasers, live munitions is hazardous to the residents. If one of the flights were to crash innocent people are likely to be killed. In the event that one of the flights crashed it will be a logistical problem getting to the crash site to retrieve the pilot, and the aircraft. If an aircraft crashed in a dry year it is a fire hazard causing a forest fire destroying timber, homes, and wildlife. It is too dangerous to fly over the mountain regions. Holloman Air Force Base is just too close to the mountains. I urge you to consider less severe terrain.

Yours truly,

Lynn Post

Gentlemen,

The F-16 jet noise from Luke AFB compromises the quality of life for tens of thousands of northwest Valley residents. Although Luke was here first, the reality is that it is now surrounded by dense urban sprawl. It would defy good common sense to exacerbate the noise problem with the F-35. NO-1

The sensible location for the jet is where it will effect the quality of life for the least number of people; that would seem to be Idaho. Ideally, such a training base should be located far from any urban center. GE-1

Many of my northwest Valley neighbors refer to the jet noise as "the sound of freedom." When I hear the noise, I only regret that we still need such warplanes in the 21st century.

Respectfully submitted,

Donald A. Hummel

Dear Mr. Martin & Ms. Fornof:

I tried to e-mail the enclosure to the e-mail address listed in a local newspaper (Sun City Independent), but could not.

The only addition I would make to the e-mail relates to the local economy. There is no doubt that a change of mission at Luke AFB would impact the local economy in a negative way; however, it would not be long-lived because of the huge northwest Valley population. The pain would be short-lived. SO-6

Cordially,

Dear mr. martin,

I am writting in regards to the post card I received about the F 35's.

I am against their coming to Luke Air Force Base. due to the noise factor. I live in Pueblo El mirage Golf and RV resort and the noise from the F16s is loud enough, we don't need louder noise. There are other facilities That can accomadate the F 35s that are not in populated areas. Thank you for keeping us informed. NO-1 GE-1

David Martin and Kim Tornoff,

I am very concerned about the increase in noise generated by the F-35's.

Buyers in Sun City and surrounding areas sign a disclosure when purchasing property about Luke AF Base being in the vicinity. Many homeowners on the direct takeoff and landing paths were not made aware of that.

Many nights, the aircraft are landing well past the 10:00 PM hrs, contrary to what was told to us by Air Force officials at the last public meeting in Surprise, AZ.

I realize that Luke AF base was here before Del Webb developed Sun City, but then again Luke was not flying the technically advanced fighter jets that it is now.

My father, (now deceased) was a Navy vet who also served in the Air Force reserves for years so I well understand and respect the armed forces and the need for upgrading equipment in the name of progress. I fail to see the need of listening to this in the privacy of my home.

It is so loud on occasion from the F16's that all conversation stops like on the patio, then resumes after the fly-by or fly-bys.

At night, patio door open, the television remote audio button has to be quickly advanced so not to miss a word or sentence.

I invite you to come by and have a listen for yourselves when you know they will be using whatever runway this involves.

These homes and Condos have taken a terrible depreciation and I fear the new possible noise issue will sink the values even further. Added to this dilemma, that noise on any level is scientifically known to cause stress and is overall detrimental to ones health.

Irrespectfully submit this letter as a concerned citizen and homeowner in Sun City, AZ.

Dear David Martin & Kim Tornof,

I was born in Arizona and was here when Luke AFB came to Arizona. My husband and I appreciate and support Luke AFB and the F 35A all the way. Luke is part of our family and they did a great job with the F 16; it would be a great loss to Arizona if they do not get the F 35A.

We thank Luke AFB everyday for all they do and welcome the F 35A with all our support.

Dear Mr. Martin,

Thank you for having a hearing at Weed NM for the South Sacramento Mountain area related to the "F35A Draft EIS." We have questions and concerns about the possibility of the F35A flying over our residences and businesses in the Sacramento/Weed area.

1. How badly will the F35A affect our present quality of life? We chose to retire here because of the peace, quiet and beauty of the area. It is our understanding that this aircraft will fly as low as 100 feet over head and cause sonic booms of deafening level of decibels. It will also harm our buildings; our domestic and wild animals—to say nothing of the possibility of crashes, dropping of "bombs," flares, etc., causing fire. NO-16 NO-12 BI-5 SA-4
2. How will the fly over of F35As affect our total environment? This question includes our physical and mental health; our property, live stock AND wild animals. NO-6 SO-1 BI-5
3. How badly will this aircraft flying, unknown to us as when, affect the value of our property? Even if you know it is coming that sonic boom scares you to death. We were working with horses recently and getting ready to clean their hooves—suddenly, with no warning, a jet plane flew low over us and caused a murderous boom, which caused the horses to jump, go spastic and us to practically jump out of our skins. The F35A is to be many times worse. That kind of noise is not healthy for anyone! SO-1 BI-1
4. We live in an area which hosts many camps and conferences—it is one of the largest businesses we have other than ranching. The flight of this aircraft will be harmful to these campers (hundreds of people off and on all year). How will their welfare be protected and the businesses' incomes not be diminished? NO-6 LU-3 SO-7

Your attention to and positive response to our questions and concerns will be deeply appreciated.

Sincerely,

Comments: Bringing the F-35 to Tucson will be no worse on any environment than all the training that has been here since before I was born in 1945. I, as a citizen, miss the thrilling noise of the F4C Phantoms that trained here.....and the pride in being chosen for all that have trained and flown and based here. Tucson is cleaner, bigger as a valley and with an appreciative citizenry for the most part. Most who whine about the noise, are likely imports from somewhere else. GE-3

I for one, would like to see the F-35 train here.

Thank you.

The following comments are from 2 pilots who served with the 162nd Fighter Wing, Arizona ANG. A retired maintenance member was recently in the hospital and the IPs chose to include their thoughts about the quality of maintenance of the aircraft they flew at the 162nd. I have deleted last names of the individuals mentioned on the original email that goes out to retired members of the 162nd..

We've had overwhelming response to the info we sent recently about Andy ??????, which included a couple of notes from IPs we thought you would appreciate, especially you fellows who did the maintenance on the aircraft they flew.

The first is from Edward "Tim" ???????:

Got a hand-written card off to Andy today - thanking him, and all of you, for the great jets I had the privilege to fly. At the end of my 4 years at England AFB in A7s, I was the Wing FCF guy. Since I knew I was gonna get out, find a Guard job, and hopefully an airline job as well, I used to routinely fly 4, sometimes 5 times on a weekend to get my flying time up. I flew the day before I got out of the AF, and could have flown the following morning to be out of the AF by 1200. Looking back, that would have been a real story, but with my luck flying those jets, I would have had to jump out or something and they would have kept me in for another 6 months. I had more IFEs- compressor stall, numerous PC2 failures with approach end barriers, blown tires, loss of generators, runaway full heat, but never an engine - almost though, with zero oil as a misconnected oil line sucked all the oil out of the engine - they said I could have flown for another 5 minutes maybe - that flight lasted 14 minutes takeoff to land. Arriving in TUS in the summer of 1980 with 1025 ops hours in the A7, I flew the next 14 years and another 1650 hrs in the A7 and the F16 without a single IFE. That is a tribute to all you guys who became my friends - and I told Andy that. You guys kept me alive, and words cannot properly convey my sense of gratitude and praise.

And this is from Vince ????????:

I too have had the same experience at the Guard and have always held the highest respect for the maintenance side of the house. I never took an aircraft that I had any concern for my safety and whether or not it was going to bring me back home. And, I will admit I was spoiled to this fact since I spent 19 ½ of my 24 years with the Air Force and ANG under the watchful eye of the 162's maintenance people. It was pretty easy to take their professionalism for granted.

You guys and gals mean a lot to these guys, and it's nice to pass along words of well-deserved praise.
Don

The 162nd Fighter Wing is well prepared to undertake the F-Training Mission. I served as a member of the unit for many decades and the reason for our success was the approach to our job "Safety First"....."Do Not Compromise on Safety". GE-3

These phrases contributed to a cultural of enduring professionalism and success that continue to make the 162nd Fighter Wing the premier air national guard training unit in our country.....Thx....dq

Sir,

I have been a Tucson resident my entire life (60 in a week) and have been very happy to hear the sound of the planes in the air. This was true even during the Cuban Missile Crisis when DM flew B-52's and U-2's. I can only speculate what those planes were doing at that time.

Unlike so many NIMBY (Not In My Backyard Types) who move here and then cause enormous trouble for long term citizens, I do NOT want any restrictions on sounds made by the possible training of pilots for any aircraft. I welcome it. I would think that the super loud voices of the "opposition" would have no more effect than mine, someone who was born and raised here in town, under flight lines. GE-3

Subject: Public Comment on Basing of F-35A at Luke Air Force Base, Arizona

Good Day Mr. Martin & Ms. Fornof

Thanks very much for sending the postcards regarding Subject. I was stationed at Luke AFB from 1980 – 1984. I was blessed to see the aircraft & missions change throughout those years, but some things have never changed. A few of those constants are the great local community & state support of the base and its military & civilian professionals & their families; the professionalism of those same military & civilians working at Luke and the great support structure at Luke for whatever mission they are charged to perform.

Luke is the right base at the right time for this new weapons system. As you already know, Luke AFB has been around since the 1940s & is still here. If that's not a testament to its durability & ability to adapt to changing missions, I don't know what would be. Much of the infrastructure is already in place &, even though there will need to be some additional building to support the basing of the F-35s there, it will be easily & quickly accomplished. GE-3

My wife, Kathy & I chose to retire in Goodyear (nine miles away) because of the great support we have always received from the base personnel. We have been stationed all over the world & we could have chosen to retire anywhere...we choose to be close to Luke. The sound of jet aircraft "noise" is a good thing & the more the better. We certainly hope that "noise" is the sound of new F-35As arriving at Luke to be based for the training of our newest Air Force pilots & their maintainers. GE-3

When my 2-year-old granddaughter & I are out walking, I point to the F-16s flying overhead & tell her "F-16...jet planes." She looks up, points & says, "F-16s Pop-Pop." I will be even more proud & honored to point out the F-35As to my Little Sweetie next year. GE-3

Thank you for the opportunity to provide input on the basing of our military's newest fighter jet...we certainly hope that basing will be at Luke Air Force Base, Arizona!

Most respectfully

Tony

Dear Sirs, my name is William Dokianos. My wife and I live at [redacted]. We adamantly oppose any further testing and training using any planes capable of sonic speeds. The training venues continue to fly over our homes generally in the early morning and generate sonic booms. The net result of these activities is; cracked drywall, cracked stucco, loss of inner seal on high altitude windows and disturbed animals – horses, cows, cats and dogs. This continues in spite of numerous to the base Public Affairs office requesting that the training exercises consider our the tax payers issues. This has fallen on deaf ears. The training continues to fly over the most populated areas generating sonic booms and having an adverse impact on our lives. NO-15

If we consider the rattling glass windows this means that they are experiencing pressures around .5PSI. Pressures of that magnitude occurring in a series of pulses have a damaging impact on household structures due to flexing of large surface areas. During one occurrence, I was at Sierra Blanca Motors which is a large structure and that entire building shook. My house shakes, my windows flex and rattle and my roof vibrates with each sonic event.

In conclusion these sonic events are having an adverse impact on our lives by damaging our homes and scaring the blazes out of our household pets and livestock. We do not want the F35's or any aircraft capable of sonic speeds because the training commanders have shown no sensitivity to the population impacted by their activities. GE-4

I strongly oppose having the F35A training facility at Gowen Field in Boise, Idaho. GE-4

This is not an anti-Air Force issue, but an issue of noise pollution/quality of life for the citizens of Boise and the Treasure Valley. Those who favor the proposal, i.e. our elected officials who base their recommendations on how much revenue and how many jobs will be created in an effort to get themselves re-elected, ignore the issues of noise pollution and quality of life in our valley. The City has noise ordinances but ignores them when it comes to planes that are by far noisier than anything else in the Valley.

I live across the Valley from the airport, approximately 15 to 20 minutes by car from house to airport. My home is stucco, concrete shingle roof, double pane glass windows with coverings. During the last training session of jets, I was awakened at midnight by the horrendous noise and rattling of windows caused by the jets. Whether inside or out, the noise is inescapable and extremely intrusive. I would invite you to come to my home and bring your decibel meters. NO-8

There are now nearly a quarter of a million people in Boise and a half million in the Treasure Valley. It is a metropolitan area. There are bases that are not in metropolitan areas where training could take place and not have an adverse effect on that number of people. GE-1

There are those who say that people who oppose bringing the jets here are anti-military and should move if they don't like it. If you look at where most of those people live, the majority don't even live in Boise and are far enough away that they wouldn't be as directly affected as those of us who live within the city limits.

Thank you for your consideration.

Dear Sirs:

I thought I would convey to you my opposition to establishing an F-35 training base at Tucson International Airport. My house is DIRECTLY under the landing path of inbound air traffic from the north...which is the prevalent direction for landing aircraft. One morning last year I heard an unusually loud aircraft going overhead on it's way to landing at TIA. My windows were actually shaking. I went outside and saw 4 aircraft overhead. The noise was excessive. I later learned that they were F-35's. I'm sure you heard about this since it was on the news and in the papers here. GE-4 NO-1

How do you expect a senior resident of Sun City Az. to coment on increased noise over sbove the F16 aircraft at Luke AFB without an actual Preannounced demo? All we hear now from government, news outlets and businesses is how Phoenix and other cities will be harmed if Luke is not chosen. But what happens when the homeowners cannot sell their homes in a few years because of the excessive noise? When home prices plummet then it will be too late. The Air Force has already met stiff resistance in Florida and other parts of the U.S. so why are you trying to obtain our approval before you subject us here in Az. to a formal demo of how much noise we will be exposed to? From what I have read in the news, I am sure the noise level will be two to four times greater than the F16. That would be unacceptable and detrimental to my health and quality of life.....especially when you have other options. Yes, Luke was here first. But times and populations change and sometimes air bases, factories, and so forth outgrow their neighborhood and need to find a better location. Thank you for the opportunity to send my imput.

We here are hoping the newest plane will be stationed at Luke for home base.
We are very used the the F-16 fly-overs and activities, the change over to another plane would not be a large impact on us in Sun City or Peoria AZ.

Any addtional training for countermeasures could be from here toTuscon or Holloman ranges, these are not far form here by flight for these planes.

The ranges here in Az would allow for munition and air-to-air activities with little changes form past activities.

Hello,

I am a long time resident of Chandler Arizona. I was here when Williams AFB was a huge part of our community. When Williams AFB was closed and the military personnel left it changed the community. The economy changed because there was not the consumer base we once had. Small businesses closed by the handfuls. The affordable housing for enlisted personnel on the east side of the city transformed into a hotbed of crime by illegal immigrants that moved in. It took the police department a while to get the area under control. In addition, the disappearance of "Willie Days" took away part of the community's identity and no longer added much needed tax dollars to the community. All we have left is an F-86 perched on a pedestal to remind us of an AFB that trained the most pilots each year because of the great climate we have.

Please keep Luke AFB a thriving part of our community by awarding them, and us, the F35 program. The F35 Lightning training program will insure prosperity to the community. The metro Phoenix area has experienced some of the worst impact on housing in the country. Awarding the program to Luke AFB will keep jobs in the Valley that will help our struggling economy recover. GE-3

Thank You for your consideration.

On the subject of increased activity and noise at Luke Air Base, I am starting to see opinions that are based on emotion, rather than fact.

It is certain that the F35 will provide some long term employment, short term construction jobs, and benefit shop owners in the immediate area. However, tens of thousands of other people will be affected by the greater volume of jet noise and more flights. NO-11

From a safety perspective, I can't help but feel a little nervous to know there will be pilots training above my home in a plane in which they have little or no experience. SA-7

Yes, we all know Luke air base was here first. Times have certainly changed since the air base was first built, and it is now surrounded by huge residential areas. I suggest that it is time for the training to be done somewhere away from the densely populated areas in which we all live. GE-1

Please continue the process of bringing the F-35's to Luke AFB in Arizona. We purchased a home in Peoria, AZ. One of the reasons was its proximity to the base. My husband is retired military, as are many of our friends and neighbors. We love the feel of freedom we get as the jets fly over.

I guess there are some grumbles who don't want their TV viewing interrupted by the sound of planes-in-training, but I can only ask "Why did they buy here?". The base has been here. It should have been obvious what its mission was and is. Their failure to research the area should not be Luke's fault.

The base supports our community. We need to support it and it's personnel. Please send the F-35's. We will continue to be thankful for the sky's sounds of freedom. GE-3

I write in strong opposition to locating an F-35 Training Center at Gowen Field, Idaho. I live with my wife in Meridian, Idaho, immediately west of Gowen Field. We are 77 years old and purchased this home eight years ago. Commercial flights in and out of the airport are rarely noticed because of the sound suppression on commercial planes. Additionally, and we checked this out before we bought our home, traffic at this airport is not substantial, especially at night. GE-4

During the summer, when "guest" national guardsmen use the facility, the disturbance is indeed substantial. There are times when it is uncomfortable to be outdoors. We hardly dare think of what it would be like if a regular training mission used this facility. We are too old to try to relocate, even if the housing market were such that we could afford it. Our home would be worth even much less if it were subject to frequent flyovers. NO-8 SO-1

I hope you can find a facility that is not located in a residential area as is Gowen Field. My wife and I appreciate the opportunity to voice our concerns and thank you. GE-1

We fully support basing the F-35A at Luke AFB. We've lived here for almost eight years and have watched the F-16's take off and land from Luke. We don't see a material difference whether its F-16s or F-35As. The reality is they are not taking off (which is the noisiest) on a continuous basis like a commercial airport. You hardly hear them when they are landing. Not only do we support this program, we view supporting Luke's training mission with a strong sense of pride and our country. GE-3

Dear Dave and Kim,

I attended the Luke AFB, F-35 briefing at the Wigwam Resort, February 13, 2012. The main concern of some, who had concerns, was about noise levels of the new airplane. I was pleased that the additional noise impact of the new aircraft is minimal. Take note that safety is almost totally NOT AN ISSUE. The state and communities have protected the area around the base and the auxiliary fields.

I noted that the practice-35 training areas northwest of the base, and the Goldwater Range, are already in place and available. This is rare in a more populated America.

I did not understand why you had options L1 through L6. The additional noise did not appreciably affect many people. There have been over 200 F-16s at Luke and it made no difference. Put as many F-35 in to Luke as efficiency and requirements dictate. 72 to 144, or more. DO-9

I live in a retirement community of about 20,000 ten miles north of Luke AFB. I have not found a single person, here, who is against the F-35 coming to Luke. There must be one but I have not found that person. The F-16 aircraft fly over our community several times a day in groups of 2, 3, and 4. Most of the people are looking forward to the new aircraft and in support of the long term future of Luke AFB and the jobs and safety for America it represents.

This letter is to assure you of my wife, and, my full support for the F-35 training program coming to Luke AFB. Why the heck is it taking so long?? GE-3

Importance: High

I am an retired U.S. Army Warrant Officer currently living in Goodyear, AZ. The community I live in, PebbleCreek, has a very high percentage of retired military personnel--most having moved here because of the proximity of Luke AFB and the ability to take full advantage of our retirement. While we feel this is an important reason for maintaining Luke, it certainly doesn't meet the criteria for you to make a decision on.

Taking out the emotion of the possibility of Luke not being selected, those making the decision should look at the win-win-win situation of having the training here at Luke:

1. The weather and previous years of experience in the area makes Luke ideal to best training our pilots who will be protecting our nation. Protection of our nation is the KEY to the entire thing. Where can the Air Force best train our pilots--Luke has been a proven winner.

2. While there are certain additions and changes to facilities to accommodate the F-35A, there remains a lot that is already in place that is required for training--plenty of air space and Goldwater Range. Regardless of the location selected, the additions and changes mentioned here will be required wherever. GE-3

3. Lastly, the community around Luke has supported Luke and its service personnel for years and will continue to provide a welcome and appreciative location for our military and civilian personnel assigned to Luke. Luke, obviously is a huge economic factor to Arizona and especially to the West Valley. To lose Luke would be a huge negative to the economy of Arizona--maintaining Luke will continue to help Arizona and the West Valley grow.

My wife and I fully support moving the F-35A training mission to Luke, AFB.

My name is Donald H. Angell. I am a resident of Boise, Idaho, residing at [redacted]

I wish to submit my written comments concerning establishing a Pilot Training Center with F-35A training aircraft at Gowen Field in Boise, Idaho.

I am opposed to locating the F-35A aircraft at Gowen Field due to the adverse noise impact these aircraft will have on the Boise area. The area already experiences noise from the military aircraft that operate out of Gowen Field and the commercial aircraft jet noise. The F-35A's will be a much greater impact than the existing aircraft noise and the residents of Boise will find this to be objectionable. GE-4 NO-8 NO-1

The second issue is public safety. Increased air traffic will add to safety issues in the air corridors around Gowen Field adding which will jeopardize the residents on the ground. Gowen Field is located near residential areas of Boise. The flight paths around the airport are over residential areas. There is always the possibility that an airplane will go down in a residential area causing destruction and loss of life on the ground. SA-1

Boise residents exist in a relatively quiet environment and do not need to be subjected to additional noise and safety concerns from having the F-35A aircraft stationed at Gowen Field. The Air Force certainly has locations available that are not close to metropolitan areas that would be better suited for these aircraft and their mission. GE-1

It should be a no-brainer that intrusion of noisy flights resulting in significant loss of home values in proximity to the airfield is unacceptable. Really, should anything more be required to nullify the proposal to initiate training flights from Gowen Field? Though an inconvenience to personnel involved to put them in a less populated area, sacrifice comes with the territory; witness combat troops, and their families in the middle east. While all of us should share in the current war effort, civilian contribution should be universally dispersed, rather than imposing the disproportionate burden of real loss of home-value on a select few. Why not give consideration to the Mountain Home facility with less damage to fewer home owners? The mission would be as well, if not better served, and Idaho's economy would still benefit. SO-1 GE-1

I am not particularly concerned about the financial prospects for Boise that this event would bring, as I am retired, and don't really care.
But we frequently get A-10s, F-15s, F-22s, Apaches(or similar attack helicopters), etc., flying over our house. Are they noisy? Sometimes. Does it bother me, or my neighbors? NO! IT IS THE SOUND OF FREEDOM!! Bring it on! It is music to my ears. Growing up, I lived next to a U.S. Air Force Base, with F-104s based there. I live near Luke AFB. I understand Luke is being considered as a training base for F-35s. I have a few concerns about this and the F-35 in general.

I read that the F-35 is much louder than an F-16. Twice as loud taking off and up to 4 times as loud landing. I also understand that Eglin AFB has F-35s right now and that the city of Valparaiso FL has found that these planes are loud enough to justify the city instigating law suits to get the Air Force to mitigate the excessive noise. Can you tell me the outcome of these actions? What has been done to ensure that noise will not be a problem at Luke. I read in the paper that the F-35s sound level will be "slightly elevated from that of an F-16". What does "slightly elevated" mean?
Luke is in a fairly heavily populated area. Perhaps the bases in New Mexico or Idaho would be better suited for this project.

If I can believe what I read, the F-35 program is on track at this point to cost in the area of one trillion dollars and the bugs are not all out yet by any means. Do not get me wrong, I am in favor of a strong military but I do not think there is a need for an expenditure of this size. This money is not money we have in the bank. This is borrowed money that will be repaid by our children and their children. Some of this will come from China and this is not a good position to be in. I find it very hard to believe that we need a trillion dollar program to keep on top of threats from countries like North Korea or Iran when their military budget is a small fraction of ours. We don't seem to be getting much bang for our bucks if we spend this amount and they can overtake us so easily. We may end up with a military machine more than able to protect our way of life but be so far in debt that there is really nothing to protect.

Dear Sirs:

I have lived in Tucson, Arizona, for nearly 30 years. For 20 of those years, I lived about a mile from Davis-Monthan Air Force Base, and the last 10 years my property is just about 50 yards from the Davis-Monthan border fence on Escalente.

I have paid close attention to the residents of Tucson as they have discussed the possibility of the F-35 group coming here for training. I've also heard the concern about the noise level possibly escalating over the city. As close as I have lived to the base in all these 30 years, I have not been bothered a single time by any aircraft noise over the city, either from aircraft at Davis-Monthan nor commercial aircraft to/from Tucson International Airport.

I was raised in southern Arizona in Cochise County, and I remember the days when Davis-Monthan was a SAC base. How special we felt! I am still proud of Davis-Monthan, and I feel it would be an honor to have the F-35 training group based here. The Air Force Base has been a mainstay for Tucson, and I for one am deeply grateful it is here. GE-10

David Martin, Air Force Contractor, and Kim Fornos, We oppose the selection of Tucson International Airport as a training center for the F-35. The flight path would be over a densely populated area including an important University valuable to our space program. By all accounts the F-35 is a noisy aircraft which will disturb a large civilian population. Circumstances have dramatically changed in thus community due to an increase in population whose health would be significantly impacted. Richard Oseran

I am in favor of bringing the F-35 to Luke AFB in Glendale Arizona. I feel the training Base at Luke will benefit from having these aircraft and that America will benefit greatly by training more F-35 pilots here in Glendale Arizona. My home is situated in the flight path of Luke's jets traveling between Luke and Goldwater Bombing Range in Gila Bend Arizona. I've already given my GPS co-ordinates to the Base Commander (who has since retired) asking that the jets fly over my home day or night. I love hearing those jets fly over my home. To me, it's "The Sound Of Freedom".
I am in favor of basing the F-35 at Luke AFB in Glendale Arizona.

To whom it may concern: Thank you for offering public comment on the new fighter jet.

I am totally against it being based in Tucson. We already have Davis Montham Air Base with all their A-10's, C-130's, etc flying over my house at all hours of the day and night. These are loud enough!
After talking to many A-10 pilots, they have all told me that the F-35 is DRAMATICALLY louder than the anything else in the air. GE-4

Give it to Luke AFB or some other AFB....I don't want to see any more fighter jets noise pollute by area.

Subject: F-35 in Sierra Vista and Cochise County

Dear Mr. Martin,

I think it would be a huge mistake to bring the F-35 to Sierra Vista for touch and go's and to Cochise County in general for other maneuvers. It is one of the noisiest airplanes ever built, and it will seriously harm this tranquil and historic part of Arizona. The F-16's are bad enough, and this aircraft is 4 times noisier. GE-4 NO-1

If the Tucson Air Guard gets the F-35, go to Gila Bend for T&G's and maneuvers. I calculate that there are approximately 2.6 million acres of raw desert where the noise won't bother anybody. There is already an Air Force base there, it just needs to be upgraded to accommodate F-35's. GE-1

In fact, why not just put the F-35's in Gila Bend rather than in Tucson. 40 years ago, a military base at the commercial airport made sense. Now it does not. Davis Monthan and Tucson International are completely surrounded by civilization and growing every day. It is only a matter of time until there is an accident with catastrophic results. Putting a new and largely untested aircraft in that environment is folly. SA-1

But I digress. Please keep the F-35 out of Sierra Vista and Cochise County. We don't want it, and we don't need it. GE-4

We have enough challenges dealing with drug trafficking etc. I agree with the people who are against it and I repeat... GE-4

"due to the high noise level of the aircraft, which could negatively impact humans and other species, as well as potential jet fuel pollution from the planes. NO-1 SA-9
Another concern about the plane is its cost – initially at more than $160 million for a total of $382 billion, which has increased over the years – and the number of planes the military wants – more than 2,400 – in light of the nation's economic problems and the need for the military to make budget cuts. DO-5

Dear Mr. Martin, Ms. Fornof and others involved with the F-35,

I live in Boise, Idaho, and have a home on the "bench" over which most aircraft from Gowen Field and the Mountain Home Airforce base fly. I am a strong opponent of bringing the F-35 to the Boise area. Boise is a city, a growing city. The noise from airforce aircraft now is plenty loud. The F-35, however, will make much of my area of town intolerable and unliveable. Thus, it would be irresponsible to fly such a plane over Idaho's capital city. Housing values will drop, and this area of town will not develop or prosper. It will become a low rent district due to the noise, when now it is one of Boise's best. Thus, I and others here will fight the F-35. I was involved with a group that organized against the F-35 when you were last considering the Boise area, and am with them again in the battle to keep those unneeded, horribly loud, and budget-busting planes out of our area. Frankly, I hope the F-35 is cut entirely from the military budget. GE-4 NO-1 SO-1

What few jobs the F-35 would bring to Boise would end up giving few who live here jobs, for the skill-set you'd need would have to be imported from out of town. Thus, the whole jobs-angle is largely moot. Boise can attract jobs that will improve our quality of living here in Boise. We do not need to sacrifice our quality of life and part of Boise's future for the few measley and specialized jobs the F-35 would bring. GE-4

Please stay away from Boise. I and many others do not want you here. And we will fight however we can to protect our city and neighborhood from the F-35.

Luke Air Force Base is a very important part of the State of Arizona. Therefore, it is extremely important to Arizona, to have the F35 base here at Luke Air Force Base.

To know that we are a responsible part of training F35 pilots, who are responsible for the safety of America and its citizen is a truly great honor. When I hear the sounds of those mighty jets over head, I have a complete feeling of safety and at the same time pride in the military.

When my husband and I moved to the valley, bought our home, we were notified at the time that Luke Air Force base was located nearby and that we accepted the fact that jets flew overhead, other military air planes and that Luke was part of the community. If at the time, we didn't like that, then we had the right to move on to another area. I say this only to tell you that if people have moved in to this area, knowing full well that Luke was in the valley and they accepted that, then like us, that was the end of it. No complaints, period. So, the noise from the F35's will continue to be part of what I know in the valley and I will always look to the skies when I hear them, with my hand over my heart and be thankful for the mighty men and their planes that protect us. GE-3

It is vital that the military continue to grow and become more capable for the future. To be part of that is an honor and I hopefully pray that you will bring the F35's to Luke Air Force Base and the mighty men that fly them will continue with their very diligent protection of the United States of American and its citizens.

Thank you for your attention.

Sincerely,

My husband and I live quite near Tucson International Airport and the National Guard training base and would like to claim priority in consideration because of that proximity. At a local club meeting, we saw a presentation by a representative of the National Guard unit. He explained the role the training base has in training foreign pilots, among other functions of the base personnel. The National Guard unit, Tucson International Airport and Davis Monthan Air Force Base are all grouped here together in an ideal climate with plenty of airspace.

I want to offer my support for the inclusion of the F35A plane into the fleet now stationed here in Tucson. I am aware that the planes create noise, but our nation needs a good training facility for our military. Tucson is a technology center and many of my associates have expressed support for the F35A. We live in Sun City West, AZ, more than 5 miles from Luke Air Base. a lot of people here hate the noise. They fly over here several times a day most days. It drowns out sirens and cars when you are walking or driving and TVs in the house. NO-8

These are the F-16As. They predict the F-35As will be at least twice as loud and reduce home prices another 9-17%. SO-1

I am sure you must be aware of the risks. Several military jets have gone down in the Phoenix area in the last 20 years, one lost a gas tank -- hitting a golf course. SA-4

Then there was Yuma a few months back. One could wipe out a whole block of houses.

We need to realize times change and that calls for new measures. It doesn't matter who was here first - so were the Indians and coyotes.

Your card says the F-35As are absolutely essential for the nations security. I would tend to disagree, with the missiles and drones being more important. Let's put a drone base at Luke to monitor and control the border and drug traffic. PN-5

We should not even think of spending $156 million for each F-35A in this economy. We have plenty of, more than adequate, fighter planes now. DO-5

I also don't agree that we need to train pilots from other countries. We had better be getting well compensated and they had better be good allies. PN-4

David Martin and Kim Fornof:

I am against bringing 72 new F-35 Joint Strike Fighters to Tucson for training. They are appreciably noisier than the F-16s that are already a nuisance. What is probably worse, they will be more numerous and be in addition to the F-16s already based here with the Arizona National Guard. I live near Gate's Pass, near the main incoming/landing flight path for all planes landing at Tucson International Airport. Recently I've been pleased to note that some of the newer passenger airliners are becoming quite quiet; they almost whisper in. Some of the older, red airliners, Southwest (?) are pretty (ugly) noisy. The F-16s, especially when they need a little more power to adjust their landing approach, are the worst noise makers. The good part of the guard's F-16s is that they don't fly all the time, there are nice fairly quiet spells, from them and the airliners. If the Air Force starts training with up to 72 F-16s, they are going to fill in much of the quiet respites we get in the Gate's Pass area with yet noisier planes. GE-4 NO-1

The Tucson Mountains are treasured because of their natural peace and beauty. Now, today, they are disturbed enough with the present air traffic. A lot more aircraft noise would degrade the nature experience here much more. There are a lot of people who enjoy Saguaro National Park West, Tucson Mountain Park, and the Sonoran Desert Museum (all in the Tucson mountains); all in addition to all the people who live in the foothills of the Tucson Mountains because they enjoy the natural desert with it's peaceful setting.

Safety is another issue. If all these additional planes are being piloted by people learning how to fly a new, more advanced and more complicated plane, are we safe mixing them with commercial airliners in an international airport? Are the residents of the Gate's Pass area going to be in significantly more danger than they are now? I think Luke AFB would be a safer place for this training, including the pilots themselves and their F-35s. SA-7

These are my thoughts and feelings about the F-35s coming to Tucson.

Subject: Comment on the Draft EIS - F-35A Proposed Pilot Training Center

According to a notice placed in the "Alamogordo Daily News" for January 22, 2012, page 2, Luke AFB is the Air Force's preferred alternative base for the Proposed Pilot Training Center and Basing of F-35A Training Aircraft.

Over the past few years, I have read a few articles concerning the encroachment of the civilian population near the runways of Luke AFB.
These articles always mentioned the fact the civilian population living near the runways have complained more than once about the noise the aircraft make during take-off and landings, their concern over the safety of living so close to the base, and that it would be better for the Phoenix area if the base were closed.

Holloman AFB has no problems with our civilian neighbors and call sonic booms the "sound of freedom." Our area is so military fly friendly and our weather so perfect for flying that the German Air Force saw fit to base their pilot training program here. In addition, Headquarters White Sands Missile Range is only 54 miles from Holloman and offers Holloman AFB a great bombing, live fire, and missile range. GE-3

With this in mind, I question the wisdom of considering Luke as the preferred base.

We own a home in a subdivision in the area of Cloverdale/Franklin in Boise. The military jets that already fly directly over us (we are under the flight path) shake the pictures on our walls. Please, unless you change the flight path (maybe to be directly over the freeway and not over houses) use Mountain Home instead. And especially no fights after 10 PM. Our house is 2 stories and the Southwest flights that fly until 11:30PM already sound like they are landing in our bedroom. Military jets would be much worse. We are from San Diego, originally and remember the tragic accident of 2008 where an F A18 Hornet crashed into a subdivision killing 4 residents. Luckily it happened during the day when most people were at work so only 1 family was killed. August 2011, in San Diego again,a retired Navy captain who had flown fighter jets for 30 years was ejected from his F14 during an exercise mishap into the ocean. My point is, accidents happen. The Miramar base in San Diego is ringed by freeways and bordered on its western end by residential areas that include a high school...but the pilots can eject into the ocean if possible. Safety is a concern of ours. We are under the flight path. Miramar was LOUD. NAS North Island was LOUD. Someone from a place like San Diego can fear what can happen here in Boise.
Please- don't make it noisy in Boise.

Hello,

I am responding to the invitation to comment on base selection for the F-35A. I live in Tucson and have followed this issue closely for several years and am very much OPPOSED to having the base here because of the excessive noise levels that the F-35 generates. We already put up with a lot of noise from the fighter jets and this would make is worse. GE-4 NO-1

This country made great strides in reducing the noise level of airplanes over the last 2-3 decades and the F-35 flies in the face of all the hard work that went into making commercial and military planes more quiet. I was astounded when the Air Force said that the high noise levels of the F-35 were not an issue and that they would go with the loud engines to meet performance requirements. I know this is the case because I worked for the aircraft makers that were involved in the early design.

My family supports the defense industry and I work for a large defense contractor in Tucson. However, I must say that the F-35 is a step in the wrong direction with regard to our environment and we strongly oppose basing that airplane here. GE-4

I live in Avondale and have property in Goodyear and Buckeye. I consider having LUKE as a neighbor, a blessing.
I enthusiastically extend my support to LUKE and whole-heartedly hope that they receive the F-35s. GE-3

I love having the F-16s fly over and look forward to continuing to hear them and feel protected.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

Dear Sir
I consider my family and our views typical of Idaho residents. We support the mission of the Air Force and all branches of the service and hope the decision to base new aircraft and training activities here will be made soon. We Army aviators have forgiven the Air Force for sneaking off like spoiled children and forming their own branch. I hear you even have a school in Colorado or some place. The bogarting of most of our fixed wing and free fall ordinace missions was a little rougher, but all is forgotten now and you have our unqualified support. We hope to see the pilots and crews in our sky soon I hope you all will feel welcome to fly over Middleton any time, day or night, at any altitude, or airspeed required for the mission. May God Bless you all. GE-3

The recent tests have proven that these jets are much too noisy for a close urban area like Boise. Please do not base the F-35 jets at Gowen Field. No, no, no! GE-4

I generally do no mind the noise of aircraft. However, the noise of the jets over the past few days have been very distracting and irritating. No F-35's at Gowen Field, please.

Tim,

Thanks for your email. Perhaps I was a bit harsh yesterday. I do appreciate your service to our country. What really bothers me, though, is the potential extreme negative impact that the F-35A will have on Boise.

Is there a way for me to get on the record, as a concerned citizen, prior to the public hearing?

Again, I do appreciate your service, even if I disagree strongly with this policy proposal that you appear to be advocating.

My apologies,

F-35 Opponent Questions Air Force Report

February 17, 2012 · Post a comment

This is a GUARDIAN guest opinion

By Kevin E. Cahill, PhD

Is the Air Force being honest with Boise?

The United States Air Force is proposing Boise's Gowen Field as a possible Pilot Training Center and base for F-35A fighter Jets. The Air Force has just released a draft Environmental Review (Environmental Impact Statement or EIS) which concluded the impact on Boise and the Treasure Valley would be minimal, affecting 3,000 to 10,000 residents only. The study even purports the F-35A program would result in 2,000+ jobs in our area. If this sounds ludicrous to you, that's because it is.

Let's start with the economy. The Air Force states the new F-35A fighter jet program will result in "between 2,188 and 2,635 direct, indirect, and induced jobs." That may be true in the sense the Air Force will hire this many people to support the program itself, plus some residual effect. But the relevant number is the net impact on jobs. That is, the number of jobs created less the number of jobs lost. The Air Force "analysis" does not even consider this possibility. That's how the Air Force claims 2,000+ jobs will be created. SO-13

But just think of one example – tourism. Only a fool would think that the outdoor experience here in Boise – our river, our foothills, and our mountains – will be unaffected by the noise from F-35A fighter jets. As economists would put it, the demand for outdoor activities around Boise would be reduced. That means fewer dollars for our area's camping supply stores, our restaurants, and just about everything else. And that means fewer jobs. With our local unemployment rate still well above 8 percent, we can't afford to lose jobs, especially private sector jobs. The deeper impact on our economy, though, comes from out of state. Folks choosing to come to southwestern Idaho for a visit will likely stop doing so. Why choose noisy Boise when you can have peace and quiet in Utah? Worse, why would you choose to live in noisy Boise if you can live in peaceful Arizona? Taink of what that does to our housing values. SO-7 SO-1

The next big impact is the widespread impact on children's learning and on lost productivity. The cover story of the July/August Issue of Monitor on Psychology, published by the American EJ-2

Psychological Association, was devoted to the impacts of noise pollution. As any parent knows, distractions are, well, distractions. Anything that breaks a child's attention span makes learning harder. So, not surprisingly, the best psychologists in the country and internationally found airplane noise resulted in a statistically significant negative impact on children's learning. It applies to adults, too. The Air Force has an absurd criterion for saying noise is problematic – - 65 decibel (dB) day-night average sound level (DNL). That, according to the Air Force, is the level that makes things unlivable. Some cutoff. Anything less, the Air Force doesn't even consider. That's how the Air Force gets such a low number for those who will be adversely impacted. EJ-2 cont'd NO-28

   Good article. I say keep the jets out of Boise. There has to be several Air Force Bases in more remote locations that can accomodate the F35 Program. The less dependency Boise has on federal govt jobs the better off we are.

   Mayor? What the hell are you trying to do to us?

   Ada county? What say you? Much of the noise is over the county.

   Even if F-35 is not built, some other aircraft will be. The USAF needs a nice place to live near it's training ranges. The officers in the training squadrons don't want to base at Mountain Home because their wife and kids want to be in Boise for the better schools and quality of life. The USAF plans to expand Boise and close Mountain Home. The USAF will have squadrons here from all over the country, and from nations all over the world, to train at the high-tech training range near Boise.

Subject: Public Hearing on EIS @ Wigwam

Gentlemen,
Last nights presentation of the F-35 Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) given at the Wigwam ballroom in Litchfield Park was well planned but poorly presented. The most useful information I disseminated from this even was in the handouts provided at sign in. A lot of time, effort and expense has been expended to present the findings of this EIS to the public. The public needs to hear and have reference to these findings. The purpose of last nights meeting was to meet that goal. Unfortunately, the spoken portion of this presentation failed to clearly bring the findings to those in attendance. I gained more knowledge in the first hour I was there than in the following presentation period. The handout material was well done and provided the facts to support the EIS findings. I was in hopes that the keynote speaker, a subject matter expert and key committee member, could elaborate and provide additional supporting information. Unfortunately this gentleman was not up to the task. Not only was he uncomfortable with public speaking and not up to the task but he repeatedly stumbled and apologized for errors as he read from paraphrased excerpts of the handouts put together for his presentation. Listening to the presentation was torture. I didn't learn anything I hadn't already read in the first hour as I read through the handout material. A great chance was lost last night, to enhance the work done by the people who worked so hard on the EIS. I wanted to focus on what was being said in hopes of learning more of the findings. Instead, I found myself cringing as the speaker kept attempting to read his script without stumbling on words and phrases. The focus shifted from the topic of the EIS to the speaker. I was given the handout material when I arrived. I read and understood it. I didn't need someone to attempt to read a paraphrased script based on the material I had already read, especially when the speaker couldn't read, much less speak unassisted on the topic. He was presented as a subject matter expert with a training background. Although he may be fully qualified on the F-35 EIS, unfortunately it was made readily apparent he is not a public speaker. The impact was lost as I sat there silently trying to help him get the words from the handout material out to his audience. NP-5

The intent of the Public Hearing was not lost on me because of a poor presentation by the keynote speaker. The handout material was well done and clearly identified the environmental impact findings. Additional opportunity to expand on that handout material was unfortunately missed for the most part. There were two slides that did not appear in the handout material that were presented to enhance the noise portion of the findings. Because of the type of presentation however the slides had to speak for themselves. A well prepared power point presentation could have really added to the points that were trying to be made relative to the findings presented. Black & White slides and unclear pictures did not enhance this presentation. Luke has had a lot of detractors of late relative to this EIS. Primary in their concerns are the increased noise factor. The findings relative to noise were shown along with two additional slides, both of which didn't indicate any drastic change. Recent headlines in local papers indicated the noise factor was doubled. The EIS doesn't support that but the fact was not readily apparent in the presentation. I know this event was just a fact presentation based on the Environmental Impact Study but Luke lost a great chance to dispel these headlines and put to rest a very vocal group of nay sayers. The positive findings in this survey were presented but not elaborated upon, creating a lost opportunity to show the benefits of F-35s at Luke instead of the 3 other potential locations. There was reference to Luke being the Air Force's preferred alternative F-35 pilot training center on the Summary of Environmental Impact Analysis but aside from this there was no correlation to the EIS as to how this was determined. Another lost opportunity to dispel the noise factor.
The long term impact of F-35s going elsewhere were not pointed out either. Do nothing and in time (when new F-16 pilots are no longer needed) Luke will close. Simple fact! We don't want that but the opportunity to support Luke was missed last night with the poor presentation and failure to expand on the facts provided in the handout material. Thank you.

Respectfully,
George Crockett (Retired USAF E-7)

WELCOME F-35's, THEIR DRIVERS, TECHS, AND SUPPORTS, TO LUKE AFB AND AREA. GE-3

Welcome to 365 days of flying weather a year at a established and historical Air Force training base that is within minutes of the world's best bombing ranges, and has many auxiliary fields and other military bases nearby for varied advanced training.

The Luke flight patterns, mostly over cotton fields, seem well clear of commercial and private air space, and the current afterburner roars (some residents call them "roars of freedom") have been part of the community, as was Williams Air Force Base (now closed), for many years. Wright engines, Pratt-Whitneys, Allisons, General Electrics, Curtis's and Libertys have pulled wings about these skies and left their sound tracks in the area for over 70 years.

It would seem most reflective and responsive to permit the local citizens, military assets, and producers of the past, to travel this wonderful new path with you in the protection of the United States of America.

I proudly confess being retired USAF: after service in the US Army Air Corps (instructor in mechanics school), Squadron Engineering Officer then Base Supply and Maintenance Inspector in the US Army Air Force.

In Support of Military Families and the F-35
For those few of you that are here in service to yourself, with critical critique of the military musical 'Might in Flight - A Dance of Decibels.' Its trailing crescendo seeming a little intrusive at times to your golf or bridge game; cause for momentarily missing a dramatic line in a Nancy Grace exclusive. Be thankful for your ability to choose your own safer place of self-assignment, one where you're not left to wonder whether the sound is ours, or that of an enemy. Relax knowing that your only orders this week may be for more product or come from a Magistrate, and not a Major. From a catalogue, and not a commander.

Those in service to our country, they might be a new neighbor, maybe young, a minority, a struggling family. Though stationed by the Air Force, they are sent to war and separated by order from this entire Nation, deployed and redeployed and redeployed. They live each day with concern for a stateside spouse, often yearning for the sound of that screaming chorus of competing family voices, the skyped missed melody of a daughter's recital or her first garbled words. A concern only for a young son's sound sleep, who in turn only too anxiously awaits, next door to grumpy, the sooner sound of a jet bringing Daddy or Mommy safely back home, or one that simply means they are never far away.

I think the great sacrifice of so few in this country is worthy of a little from the rest of us, so that they too may benefit from the fuller and unique resources, services and supports only afforded by the Luke basing option given its close proximity to the many fine facilities, institutions, venues, activities, community organizations and businesses that we all appreciate and enjoy every day. GE-3

Now that makes - sound - sense to me, how about all of you?

Thank you Colonel for this opportunity to speak this evening in support of the F-35, our active duty, their families and the continued Luke tradition and mission to train, deter and defend; and in deference to all that have served. Thank you.

We live at 3824 W. Tohono View Place in the Starr Pass Home Development in the Tucson Mtns., next to the J.W. Marriott Resort Hotel. We have always known that our home is under the busy flight paths of both TIA and Mothnan Air Force Base and have continually had to accept the noise and vibration levels of those airplanes. The large Air Force helicopters fly very low and often and currently create unacceptable levels of noise and incredible vibration. NO-8

To increase the number of flights to and from Mothnan with the F-35A in our opinion would create still additional and even louder unacceptable levels of noise and vibration. We have been told the F-35A is many times louder than any airplane currently flying in and out of Mothnan and we cannot accept the increases and should not be made to accept the project. NO-1

At one point we heard that the Air Force's F-35A training project could be located in the desert and we would like to see the project located in the desert away from neighborhoods. GE-1

The noise levels here at Starr Pass in the Tucson Mountains increased tremendously since the Resort moved in and there is no indication that the City is requiring further mitigation to decrease our current noise levels. We have had enough of the noise generated from the resort's music, outdoor activities and increased car, bus and semi-trailer truck traffic on Starr Pass Blvd. and we cannot tolerate more from increased air traffic noise and vibration to be generated by the new F-35A fleet.

Our 4 1/2 old Grandson lives with us and many planes fly over our home when he is asleep. There are also 3 other children in our immediate Starr Pass neighborhood who are 3, 6, and 8 years old. Our Grandson has acclimated somewhat to the current noise levels but we just are not willing to accept any increased noise and vibration levels. NO-8

Thank you.

This is in reference to how the F-35 situation can be decided upon. I am in favor of them staying at Luke. I am living in Surprise for 7 years and I was made aware that Luke AF base was not far from where I live (near the 303). I even signed a document indicating that I was forewarned about this. During these 7 years I was never inconvenienced with these wonderful F-16s flying above my home. In fact, I felt very secure knowing that they are here to protect us and I felt I was getting a more personal security living so close to Luke. I know the F-35s are here because it is all over the media and they do not bother me at all. I do not have any difficulty hearing. It gives me the greatest pleasure and makes me proud when I do hear them and see them flying above. God Bless these wonderful men and women who are there to make us safe and we should all be thankful for their service and dedication. GE-3

I hope I got a point across and hope we will be able to maintain the F-35s as we did with the F-16s.

If I can be of any assistance, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Again, thank you all for protecting this wonderful country we live in,.

I write this to express my opposition to selection of Luke AFB as a training site for F-35s. I live in Congress, Arizona which is about 75 miles NORTHEAST of Luke. When pitching the Luke site, the Air Force and McCain tout the proximity to the Barry M. Goldwater Air Force Range, which is SOUTHWEST of Luke. GE-4

However, the current F-16s do their "dogfights" directly over Congress, at full throttle, with deafening noise and sonic booms aplenty. If the F-35s are louder than the F-16s, which I understand to be the case, it will worsen the situation. NO-1

I hereby request that the Air Force do one of the following: (1) eliminate Luke from consideration, or (2) mandate that the training take place only over the lands within the Goldwater Range. Thank you for your consideration. John Burke GE-4 DO-4

My concern is the possible risks from the increased noise level . I live about ten miles west of TIA, halfway between TIA and Ryan Airfield. I hear the F-16s take-off ten miles from my home. The F-16s from TIA fly over my home several times a day (and at night) on their way to and from the Goldwater Range to the west. Often the noise is loud enough that talking is not impossible. I am not concerned by these occasional interruptions. I do not think I have any health problems due to the fly-overs during the past 30 years. Based on the EIS draft, the noise levels will be higher. My concern is that the noise level will result in disruption and even a health risk not to me but to the thousands of people who live closer to the airport. NO-3

The introduction of this aircraft would be a welcomed sight and sound over the Treasure Valley. I've heard all the negatives of "noise" from the group that opposes the aircraft and it's the same every place a change is made. Other cities have handled this with noise cones where the aircraft have to reduce power over certain areas to make minimal additional noise. It has worked. The F-16s that fly over Fresno Calif are my most recent experience. That may work hear. GE-3 NO-20

The introduction of F-35s over our area would mean jobs and more stability in the housing market. Although I'm a bigger fan of the F-22, the 35s will do just fine. I served in the Air Force at Davis-Monthan AFB from 1966-1970. I've seen and heard just about every aircraft in the military inventory up to that time. The noise factor is something to be concerned about but in the end, it's a very, very small dent of inconvenience for our area. GE-3

I would like to be on the encouraging side of this potential introduction. Bring 'em on. The sight, the sound, the security and the job growth.

I appreciate all the military does. That said I moved to Boise from Phoenix AZ. Every area effected by air traffic noise was considered an area to avoid in the Phoenix Valley. Those areas tended towards declining real estate values and higher crime.

I moved to Boise for the quiet foot hills lifestyle. Increased air traffic will decrease the livability of the area. This will be a make or break issue for many families considering a move to Boise. SO-1

In recent days we have had to put up with air force traffic that is noisy and that noise will not help the Treasure Valley grow in a positive direction. It has ruined the experience of quiet foothills life for the past few days. I could live in downtown LA if I wanted that experience. NO-8

Dear David Martin and Kim Fornof,

My name is Ken Aakre. I am an Air Force Viet Nam Veteran, so feel I have a better than average knowledge of the Air Force mission. I am a retired electrical engineer, living in Sun City West, AZ; one of several large active retirement communities totaling in the neighborhood of 100,000 seniors, lying under Luke's flight path. I had hoped to speak at the meeting in Sun City tonight, but a family matter prevailed.

As with the vast majority of people in the surrounding communities, I have never seen nor heard an F-35, so do not know how many decibels of noise they emit. All I can base my feelings on are the current F-16 noise and hearsay regarding the F-35 being louder.

My concerns are as follow:

First of all, the local politicians and members of the business community have put a "Sound of Freedom" spin on the Luke aircraft noise. They have trash talked the few politicians and members of the community who have raised issues or indicated decent. In my humble opinion what they really hear is the Ka-ching of cash registers.

Secondly, seniors and other members of the community cannot currently sit on their patio and carry on a conversation as the F-16's pass over. Often there will be formations followed by a single aircraft; the noise lasting several minutes. If the F-35 is indeed louder, our outdoor living will be close to impossible and our quality of life further diminished. NO-8 NO-18

In summary, I would like to say that I do support the Air Force mission, but feel that mission could be better carried out at a base in a less populated area. GE-1

I have lived in the west valley for the last 40 years and in Waddell the last 10 years. We get almost daily flights over our home and miss them when we don't. We knew Luke was just 4 1/2 miles from us when we bought our home, no one forced us to buy here, we did by choice. It should increase the property value by having the best trained Air Force pilots flying over head daily, seriously Luke trains the best fighter pilots in the world and that is what our country needs the best pilots and the best planes. I have attended two of the public hearings and have not head one legitimate complaint against the F-35, there were only three complaints at each meeting and they were all about me not not us. My wife and I are for the best things for our country and the F-35 is it and Luke is the place. thank you Harry and Francine Lantz [redacted] GE-3

The price of Freedom is eternal vigilance. The offset of having a bit of jet noise around Boise and the surrounding area would be more jobs, and more infusion of spending for Idaho. Those people who would complain about something that would only impact local economy in a good way should move to someplace quieter that would suit their sensitivities - like Oklahoma or Canada or France. Subject: F-35 jets in Boise

Hello,
I'm writing to express my feelings about the F-35 being based in Boise. My only concern is the noise of the jets. That seems to be a factor of how close they fly to the city. In my opinion, it is unacceptable for military jets to disturb the peaceful skies of an entire city. Currently there are jets training near the city and for hours I can hear their rumble. It is disturbing. I don't want it. This is my home and I live in a quiet neighborhood. We don't ask for this and it is not right that it could be forced upon us. The F-35s are even noisier than the ones up there now, and those are too loud. NO-8 NO-1

I know a lot of people here are gung ho military and nothing bothers them. They are not everyone, though, and for those of us for whom this is a very unwanted intrusion into our lives, we should count also.

There is nothing a person can do about sound. I can't choose to ignore it or not hear it. It permeates the whole environment.

If the jets do come here, why would there be any reason to fly them at all close to the city? There are thousands of square miles of desert in Idaho. Would the military sign a "peace" accord with the city that could be invoked if violated? How willing would you be to take our considerations into account? Just asking for feedback indicates you already know that the noise will be a problem. Do you want us to say it's all okay? Well, it's not all okay. DO-4

Respectfully,

Carl Rowe

To Whom It May Concern:

We live in Sun City West, AZ and have for fourteen years. We knew when we bought our home that the F-16's flew over our home and the only time they really bother us is at 8-11 PM.

We have toured Luke and are proud of the young men and women stationed there. It is our concern that with the F35 noise levels it will be at least twice as loud and, hopefully not, there could be a serious accident. When we moved here Surprise was a small town, but now over 400,000 people in Surprise, the Sun Cities etc. live in the flight paths. Why can't the F-35's be stationed in a less populated area with flights over complete desert or water. NO-1 SA-1 GE-1

Could please answer the following questions as pertaining to the Luke base.

1. In a given period (daily weekly or monthly) how frequently do the present F16 fighters take off over El Mirage, AZ?
2. What is the ground level noise impact for take offs over El Mirage per take off.
3. In a given period (week or month) how frequently do the present F16 fighters fly a landing approach over El Mirage, AZ?
4. What is the ground level noise impact for landing approaches over El Mirage, Az, per approach?

5. Under proposed scenario L3 how frequently will F35 fighters take off over El Mirage? (daily, weekly or monthly)
6. What will be the ground level noise impact for F35 take offs over El Mirage per take off?
7. How frequently will F35 fighters fly a landing approach over El Mirage? (daily, weekly or monthly)
8. What will be the noise level impact of a F35 landing approach over El Mirage per approach?

I wanted to provide some feedback, as a resident who lives in the current flight path, about the possibility of the new F35 program going to Luke AFB. I have read that the new F35s will be louder but have not heard them yet.

When I bought my house [redacted] I knew it was near Luke AFB, I heard the F16s flying over, and I signed paperwork saying I understood I lived in the flight path.

My 7-year old son and I are in the driveway constantly playing hockey, and we hear countless jets fly overhead each day while using the pool in the summer. I get a sense of pride when I hear the thundering of an F16 fly over. When they fly over in formations of 4 we stop what we're doing and just watch in awe. GE-3

Luke AFB was there before I was, I knowingly bought a house where the constant noise from jets was a fact of life, and I can't think of a single moment in which I found the roar of the jets "annoying" or "disruptive" to my life.

Even if the F35 is louder, I welcome the program to my neighborhood and would be happy to "put up" with the sound of freedom.

Comment for Draft Training Basing Environmental Impact Statement:

On an aviation map of New Mexico, the current available practice air space for Holloman AF Base looks like approximately 130 x 120 miles or 15,600 square miles. At its maximum speed of Mach 1.6 (equivalent to the speed of sound) an F-35 could cross 130 miles in 6.5 minutes! Wouldn't Holloman soon be joining Cannon AF Base in claiming it needs the skies of the proposed 94,000 square miles of northern NM airspace connected to southern CO airspace that comprises the Pentagon's proposed "51st State" to practice in, a space that is already protested? CM-1

Class action lawsuits by several thousand property owners over Navy jet noise in Virginia Beach and Chesapeake reached a multimillion-dollar settlement. Shouldn't that success of opponents of over-flights deter Holloman from training pilots to fly the F-35 whose speeds can create a "sonic boom" that could crack adobe, devalue property, encroach on property, disrupt sleep and conversation, and disturb the peace? PN-3

The fact that foreign pilots must come to the U.S. to learn to fly the F-35 because it's too crowded where they live should tell us right there that the world is too small for war! By what rights do U.S. arms sales reps sweeten sales of the F-35 deal ($200 million each) by promising foreign buyers that they can learn to fly them in U.S. skies?

Sincerely,

Suzy T. Kane

Most of the residents in Arizona are patriotic and look forward to seeing the F35 overhead. Myself here in Deer Creek Arizona sit at the base of the Maztazals and I get to see the jets fly overhead. Please don't listen to those near Luke that say they are too loud, those people should not have moved that close to the base to begin with and I would imagine that most of them are originally from California. Subject: Comment on F35A Training Basing DEIS

I currently live in Boise Idaho and have reviewed the Executive Summary for the F35A DEIS and concur with the USAF selection of Luke AFB for the F35A Training Base.

The discussion of the suitability of the sites considered demonstrates that the Luke AFB site provides the capacity to accomodate the greatest number of aircraft (6x24), lowest cost to accomodate the target level of 72 aircraft, with the least increase in noise or other environmental impacts. This is due in large part to a large existing training program for F16 and other aircraft which is expected to decrease in coming years.

Boise appears to be one of the least suited for such a mission based on a number of factors including the high cost to accomodate the minimum number of aircraft, lack of capacity for future expansion (max of 72), and greatest increase in population affected by noise impacts.

Please provide me with a copy of the DEIS and FEIS when they are available.

It is bad enough now and with the F-35's it would be much more of an impact on the lives many more people. We cannot just walk away from our homes and who would want to buy a home in the area when they realize how noisy it would be with that training going on here???
Please consider other areas that would cause less disruption and destruction of the quality of life of so many residents.

The guest commentary in the Tucson weekly concerning the F35A Lightning coming to left me worried.

This person and I assume many of her friends and readers think the same way. Retarded!

Noise levels this, 40K of thrust that, and(my favorite) fly the plane around so we know how loud it is!

Sometimes it seems unfortunate that freedom of speech is not an earned right for us. That article was one of those times.

It might also help these individuals to consider the fact that our inventory of aircraft is aging and the technology of countries that do not like us is either being developed, bought or sold to use against us. Example... Iran's brand new nuclear fuel rods. Where does Miss Gomez and her posse think WMDs are made from?
Cinnamon, spice and so on?

The next time we are attacked, I'm pretty sure that the acts of crying, not "friending" them on facebook or writing an "opinion" will not have the outcome they had hoped for.

Bring the F35 Lightning II to Tucson. Defend our country. Even the retards. GE-3

Subject: a comment re F-35A training aircraft in Boise, ID

Dear Col. Marsano, David and Kim:

I was very saddened to see the Air Force announcement of public hearings in Boise, ID for the F-35A training aircraft. Why? Because the confiscation of private property without just compensation is unconstitutional and I, for one, do not and will not grant the Air Force permission to destroy the peace and quiet of my backyard. Alas, you are going to take it anyway. It pains me to say this, but I don't care about your service, if you don't stand for American values. This is a very un-American action. SO-10

If you think this isn't an issue, you are welcome to come by my house and hear what I heard all day today ... and am still hearing at 8:15pm. Or, instead, you can wait to hear from the Idaho Statesman and the WSJ, both of whom I plan to contact tomorrow morning.

See you on the 27th and 28th.

Comments: I feel that Luke AFB would be the best location for the F-35s. The climate is ideal year round for flying and the Barry Goldwater Practice Range would also be a plus. From Talking w/ people and reading in the paper since the possibility of the F-35s being stationed here was mentioned, I believe that more and more people want this plane there! We take pride in the air base and what it means to our nations security. We also realize what the loss of Luke would mean to Metro Phoenix – and also all the retired military who live here. Luke has been here many yrs ---- and before the growth of the West Valley. People who moved out here knew that Luke was here !!! So don't complain now. Let's get the F-35s out there to Luke for our Nation's Safety + for what it means to the local area + the state financially. GE-3

We are in full support of having the Airforce and any of their planes practicing at the Gila Bend Auxiliary Air Field. The sound of those jets flying over us is ideal. The sound of freedom - We do hope that in the future the use of this facility will be kept and will benefit our town - The Air Force is much more important to us than the environmental impact is -

I HAVE SERVED IN THE U.S. ARM FROM EARLY 1943 UNTIL FEB OF 1947. I SERVED IN THE ETO DURING WW II. FRANCE, BELGIUM, GERMANY. I WOULD LIKE OUR CITIZENS OF THE U.S.A. TO KNOW HOW IMPORTANT THE AIR FORCE IS TO THE DEFENCE OF OUR COUNTRY. THE P-40, P-51 & P-38. SAVED MY LIFE A NUMBER OF TIMES. THE FIGHTERS WERE THERE WHEN WE CALLED FOR THEM. THE NOISE FROM OUR AIRCRAFT TODAY IS WELL WORTH THE SOUND WE HEAR. FROM THEM DON'T LET THEM TAKE IT AWAY FROM US. EVERYONE IS, OR SHOULD BE PROUD TO HAVE LUKE & GILA BEND RANGE. IT IS PROTECTING US AND OUR FREEDOM. THANK YOU

I have 5 doctor/medical appointments next week and cannot afford the co-pay. I already owe on a medical loan for dental. I need a (1 or 2) knee replacement, which involves more co-pay, etc. Also go for trips to Phx. doctors.

all of this summons my attention to the fact that, all I have to fall back on financially for the rest of my life is my investment in my property. I may be forced, any day now, to sell it and need to know what restrictions there may be on it.

Please send me a map of the noise level areas (mine is next to the critical area) in the flight pattern over my property. NP-7

2/16 - Gila Bend, AZ

Thank you,

Donna Hubbard

P.S: Are there any land trade arrangements with the state or federal government?

Donna Hubbard
[redacted]

I have no internet and cannot afford an attorney.

1233 LU

My total monthly income is $1,268.35 (234.35 from AZ retirement and 1,034.00 from SS). My current Health insurance is $427.94, which leaves me $840.41 for all other expenses each month.

Because I live in a remote area (the only place I can afford,) I must drive 60 to 80 miles for medical services. My minimum vehicle insurance and high cost of gas costs another 100.00 to 120.00 per month, ending up with my remaining income of about $730.00.

UNTIL I SOLD SEVERAL PERSONAL COLLECTABLES

That amount has to cover property taxes (which I have not been able to pay, and there is no insurance on my house either), as well as utilities, food, medical co-pay, clothes, incidentals, and gifts or donations.

Donna Hubbard
[redacted]

MY OWNERSHIP HISTORY:

[redacted]

After an unavoidable divorce, I worked construction ten years, all day out in the Arizona desert sun, and at two jobs if necessary, to support my three exemplary daughters, because my child support started at only 300.00 per month. I do not smoke, drink, do drugs, or even take ongoing prescriptions (only supplements). I try to live a healthy, productive life, in spite of adversity (like when the Teamsters denied me my pension). I thank God for relatives and friends, who have come to my rescue many times, but hate to burden them with my problems. I desperately want to live within my means.

My girl's father and I had bought some property before we were divorced. I thought that we could someday build a house there, so I chose the property instead of the nice house I could have had to raise my girls in. The house we lived in was lacking central air and needed much repair.

After the divorce the future looked scary, and the property was all I had for security, so I struggled to hold on to it, while paying off my house loan. I also added the BLM ephemeral lease to it, that my cousin gave up. By the time the girls left home, I had to sell half the property to pay most of the bills I owed. The capital gains tax took 30,000.00 of it, even though the increase in the cost of living and devaluation of the dollar, over all those years, had already gobbled up more than that much potential profit.

The remaining half I still have might have brought me a secure future, but the air base nearby may put my property in the intolerable noise level area, which greatly limits the use of my property, and consequently any fair profit by me (until they discontinue the present intended use of the noisy planes or move the base farther south). Perhaps some qualifying industry* will find it worth the investment, or my children will find a fair price for it in the future, when I am long-gone. Right now, I am desperate. SO- GE-13

* WHAT MIGHT THAT BE, AND WHAT DISCLOSURE MUST I MAKE IN A TITLE TRANSFER, IF I AM FORCED TO SELL?

AM I ALLOWED TO PLACE MY PROPERTY ON THE INTERNATIONAL REALESTATE NET? GE-13

Comments:
I'VE HEARD THE F-35 WAS SUPPOSED TO BE "SIGNIFICANTLY" NOISIER THAN THE AIRCRAFT CURRENTLY OPERATING OUT OF LUKE, WHAT THIS INDICATES NO SIGNIFICANT NOISE INCREASE THAT WOULD AFFECT QUALITY OF LIFE OF THE CLOSEST RESIDENTS EVEN ADOT WON'T CONSIDER NOISE ABATEMENT FOR HIGHWAY NOISE UNTIL THE NOISE LEVEL EXCEEDS 64 dB, WHICH IS 3 dB LOWER THAN THE FEDERAL LEVEL. NO-9
ANY INCREASED NOISE PRODUCED BY THE F-35 WILL NOT BE NOTICED.
WE WANT THE F-35 BASED AT LUKE THUS CONTINUING OUR LONG RELATIONSHIP WITH THE AIR FORCE GE-3

Comments:

I support very strongly the assignment of F-35A at Luke Airforce Base. I have analyzed the environmental impact of the planes in the area, but the economic and social benefits that the assignment would bring far outweigh the noise issue. We can't wait to see F-35 landing here at Luke Airforce Base. Our liberty, freedom is more important than anything else GE-3

Comments: I am a proud ~~resident~~ to have Luke AFB in our neighborhood. I love hearing the roar of the F16's & F35A flyover. I think the area & surrounding communities are helped a lot financially with the base close by. Tax Revenue of 17M would be added to our regional economy. The 2,300 jobs we will also have in construction will be an added benefit. I hope Luke will be the pick for the F35A Training base. We are happy & so proud to host you. Also for our security for all. I certainly do appreciate the Air Force protecting us through their training but I am concerned about any negative impact. Could there be "mufflers" on the actual jets to cut down on the noise. That would give the jets more stealth. — NO-20

Comments: My wife and I are in total support of Luke being the primary, alternative F-35A Training location. We actually consider this support our civic duty and take pride in Luke's capacity -- both in facilities and space, but also in the ideal climate to optimize such a training facility. The additional noise the F-35A's generate will only serve as an additional reminder to us that our countries' defenses continue to be enhanced and pilots readied for our safety. GE-3

Comments: I am in full support of the F35A training base being located at Luke AFB. Our city and state economies both rely heavily on keeping Luke AFB alive. I feel nothing but pride every time I hear the roar of the engines currently in use. I am willing to endure a little more noise in the neighborhood if it secures Luke's place as the premier Air Force training base in the U.S. GE-3

Comments: I strongly support the military mission and the location of the F-35 training Mission at Luke AFB. The TAKE-OFF and Landing corridors will be identical to those of the F16, as the Flight CORRIDORS will also be the same. While the noise at TAKE OFF/Landing events will be somewhat greater, it will not greatly affect homeowners and renters in the area. We will also get used to the noise.

I support location of military installations close to population centers; Mixing civilians and military increases civilian confidence in and support of the military and associations of the military and civilians lessens the sense of isolation of military from society as a whole. GE-3

Comments: Pilots continually fly directly over our home, outside the sound pressure contours defined in the environmental impact study. They fly at low altitude & high gain/acceleration. The noise is significantly out of the advertised SPL contours*. My concern about the F35A's would be mitigated greatly if there was a plan, with leadership in the Airforce to control flight paths and low pilot altitudes. If there is assurance that the sound contours can be maintained at current geometries, we can live with the noise levels. But in our experience, the sound contours are fallacious & should be recast to be more realistic. I would like to have sound monitoring equipment on our home site to assist the study. I am in support of Luke Air Force Base and all of the Training it provides to pilots. The F35A is the plane of our future. We have come to support all of my husband & I. GE-3

The base was here long before homes were built in the West Valley. Realators keep selling, builders keep building & people buy homes. We are all told that Luke exists. Shame on those who buy a home in the path of freedom & then ask Luke to leave!

I totally support Luke Air Force Base & its family.

Comments: Wrong Thing Wrong time Wrong Place.
Modern warfare will not be fought by fighter planes. The F-35 has no impact on cyber war, Terrorism or drones. Invest in The F-35 is out dated before it has begun. wrong time.

The pollution + noise (Twice as bad as current planes) is unacceptable in This urban city. Wrong place. AQ-1 NO-1

The cost of The planes is unconscionable, we should educate our children + prepare to defend our country by being better educated against hackers + terrorists. Wrong Thing. DO-5
We don't need strike aircraft to defend our country.

As a former base commander (Vice at Travis AFB, CA 1976-78; and commander at Bolling AFB, Wash DC, 1978-80), I've dealt w/th difficult EIS issues - re bed-down challenges & general environmental issues (safety & land encroachment). I have reviewed the Draft EIS thoroughly and am convinced that Luke AFB, by far, trumps the other locations in all reasonable and critical criteria. GE-3

I would add - the very positive community relations, overwhelming support of the surrounding communities make Luke a great location for the F-35's.

MY FATHER WAS USAF AND I WAS USAF. I WAS RAISED ON WILLIAMS AFB. WAFB WAS CLOSED DUE TO TRAINING NOISE, NOW IT IS AN AIRPORT ENCOURAGING AIRLINES.

F16's USE MY NEIGHBOR'S HOUSE AS A TURNING REF for APPROACH. I ENJOY WATCHING THEM AND AM NOT BOTHERED BY THEIR SOUND.

WHILE I CANNOT IMAGINE WHY A PERSON WHO DOESN'T LIKE JETS WOULD MOVE INTO AN APPROACH PATTERN; I WISH THEM WELL. THEY SHOULDN'T EXPECT CHANGE OTHERS.

Thank you for this opportunity to attend this informational meeting.
I have lived in AZ for 21 years, all of those years in Avondale, Garden Lakes area.
I fully support Luke AFB and realize the importance of being able to keep this base open an operational.
Most of all I know how much it would hurt our home values if Luke AFB was to shut down. GE-3
I lived in Sacramento for 30 years and I know how it hurt that area when 2 AFB's shut down.
Love the sound of those jets!

Comments: I've lived on the west side of Phx for over 50 years and know that we are the last to get recognized for anything. When was Williams closed down - they didn't want the noise - sent to the west side.

Why is there so much support around here - all the goodies ~~even~~ PBX, medical treatment from retirees.

Why is the air force still building these fighters when a drone will do the same or better job. No other country can afford to build these except maybe Russia. These 35's will be outdated within 10 years. The drone seems to be doing a good job - shooting the bad guys out of the pickups and off their donkeys. Spend your money on the drones

Comments: I am a native of Arizona. I have never known a time when Arizona did not have military presence. I purchased a home four blocks away from Luke just in November 2011. I was not concerned about the noise three months ago at the time of purchase. I am not concerned about the noise from an F35A now. As a Dreaming Summit resident I support the opportunities to have the F35A at Luke AFB. Thanks GE-3

Comments: I AM AN ENVIRONMENTAL CONSULTANT BY PROFESSION AND HAVE REVIEWED THE EIS AND FOUND IT TO BE VERY COMPLETE AND ADEQUATE. I PAID SPECIAL ATTENTION TO THE AREAS OF WASTE MANAGEMENT, WET LANDS, RESOURCE RECOVERY + REUSE, AIR QUALITY, AND WILDLIFE HABITAT. I FOUND THE REVIEW ADEQUATE AND THAT IT SHOWED LITTLE IMPACT TO THE LOCAL ENVIRONMENT. THE AREA OF CONCERN FOR MOST PEOPLE IS, OF COURSE, NOISE POLLUTION. AFTER REVIEWING THE DATA, I FEEL THAT THE F-35 MISSION SHOULD GO FORWARD AT THE L-3 OR L-4 SCENARIO AS THOSE WOULD BE THE BES CHOICE FOR OUR COMMUNITY, BOTH FINANCIALLY + ENVIRONMENTALLY. AT THESE SCENARIOS, ONLY 4 ADDITIONAL RESIDENTIAL ACRES WILL BE IMPACTED AT THE 65-69 db LEVEL. GE-8 GE-3

Comments: A more fair comparison for noise contours would be the F-4, based here in the 70's / early 80's – when the F-4 was based here, noise complaints were many at first, followed by traffic pattern adjustments, planning and zoning adjustments – to the point that most communities were accepting of the necessary training mission fulfilled by Luke – I remember cities and citizens bending over backward to accommodate, with a goal & take attitude, to find a compatible solution to support personal lifestyles and national defense requirements. I flew the F-4 here back then, and our ROE for ALL missions required us to be sensitive to noise in the immediate area – And we would that too will be followed by present & future operations – you can count on it! I think you'll find the F-4 was much noisier than the F-35 will be.

And we lived and adapted at that time. I also believe whatever adjustment need to be made for the F-35, will be done wherever feasible. Comments: Luke AFB is the best location for the F-35A. Obvious reasons are the weather and range availability of the Gila Bend Range.

Perhaps less obvious but important to the training of F-35 pilots from other nations is the proximity of a large modern metroplex. This provides an excellent environment for the "foreign students" to better assimilate with cultures that reflect their own. I doubt weather Mt Home, Boise, or Hollomon has this cultural diversity. Training of foreign troops enhances DOD's bottom line.

Lastly, I fear that putting such a large and important mission at civilian airfields is inviting trouble when it comes to Comments: The Phoenix Valley is expanding rapidly. It has already reached saturation in the NE, E, S, and SE. The West Valley is about the only direction possible for growth.

I am very concerned about the reasoning for expanding a base that is now situated in the highly populated area of the West Valleys. (AND STILL GROWING) Not only will this Base expansion increase the air pollution, noise pollution, but also increase the possibility of a serious air accident that could kill many people and destroy many homes and possibly commercial buildings as well. I am positive there are other sites not as populated that are just as suited to accomodate for the F-35 without near the impact. Glendale I am sure was represented by many of their residents that are — for the F-35's. But the planes do not take off or land (flight paths) over Glendale. Sure they are for the new jets since they gain financially the most, by the new jets coming to Luke.

Most of the speakers talked about the noise pollution, but did not speak of the air pollution created by these jets. What kind of anti pollution devices do these jets have. I know that during the 9-11 crisis when they shut down the airports across the nation, our air pollution was the best that I can remember since living in this Valley. I realize that Luke was still active during this crisis time. But sky Harbor was shut down and the air cleared right up during this span that commercial jets were not allowed to fly. The cars they claim are causing most of the air pollution did not cease to operate at this time yet the air was as pure as I have seen it. (with their jets)

As for impact on the community as far as financially, I'm sure it will affect us. But not as much as people think. I think even more people would choose the west Valley to live in if Luke Air Force base was not located here.

I know for sure the noise of the present jets flying S W out of Luke make enough noise that it does effect conversation while golfing at Pebble Creek on the Sunnyslope side.

Thanks for letting me vent my feelings. Please if you can answer my questions on air pollution coming out of these jets, I would be greatly appreciative.

Sincerely,
Ray Baumlach

TO Luke AFB FROM Brian McCutchen

Concerning the Possible Pilot Training & Basing of F-35A @ Luke AFB

It is very uncertain how noisy these F-35 aircraft are compared to F-16. The flight area is extremly populated w/ families & young children. It is a high risk to take if a jet went down. It would seem other areas under consideration might be more appropriate & less populated.

Over the years more & more housing developments have cropped up in & around Luke. The higher noise could be detrimental to housing values.

I VOTE (NO)! Sincerely, Brian McCutchen

Dear Sirs:

I live in a subdivision of homes with around 200 homes within a four mile radius of Luke AFB. I have objections to this proposal of the F-35 training being so close by at Luke AFB. Here are my reasons why: GE-4

February 11, 2012

Sirs:

I AM COMPLETELY OPPOSED TO THIS. I am very concerned that the F-35 is 95 decibels as opposed to the F-16 which is 86 decibels. From what I have read 95 decibels is an unsafe level of sound for humans. What about all the pets that have even more sensitive hearing and children who are living in this area. — GE-4, NO-6, BI-5, EJ-2

We were fine with the F-16s flying in our area. I love and support our military and "love" the sound of freedom but this is taking it to a level that is unacceptable. In an economy when our country is almost bankrupt we propose to spend millions of dollars to "retrofit" an older air base to accept a new plane that also costs billions(?) of dollars to produce. — DO-5, DO-20

The biggest concern is the damage this WILL do to our property values and quality of life. Everyone keeps saying that Luke AFB provides BILLIONS in economic impact to the west valley but I have never seen anywhere where this info is broken down. Other than the number of people stationed at the base and what they spend while living here I would like to know how Luke affects the west valley with that much impact financially. — SO-1, SO-16

I see no reason why the same money to retrofit this base could be used to outfit a base closer to Gila Bend or split this with Tucson International Airport Air Guard as well. Thanks for your time in considering this. — DO-20

Sincerely,

Mitchel Dukatt

Ref: Luke Air Force Base - Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) January 2012

Dear Mr. Martin:

Upon receiving the F35A Training Basing Environmental Impact Statement Draft Executive Summary and further reviewing the data on line (January 2012) concludes that the preferred alternative for Luke Air Force Base is Scenario L3 (72 Aircraft). Even with this scenario it demonstrates that Area No.3 (location No. 5), which includes Palm Valley Phase V, demonstrates an increase noise level. Currently our home windows rattle and conversation comes to a halt with the current mission of the F16. NO-1 NO-8

With the increase noise level with the F35A (Scenario L3) I request a mitigation of the home through the following methods: NO-20

1. Sound Proof Window over a dual pane window

2. Home Insulation Cellulose Fiber (Walls and Attic)

3. Vents: Baffle roof, Attic and Chimney treatment

There are other known noise mitigation measures that can be explored to insure DBL of 55 or less in the home during normal operation of Scenario L3.

Sincerely

Pat Dennis

How can we as Americans Love and Honor our Service men and women and look to them for our freedom and protections and then turn our backs on them. It's wrong on so many levels. They are and icon of the West Valley.

When they fly overhead I pray for them and all our service people for the great job they are doing and their sacrifices. One minute we thank them for their service and then we try to pull the rug from under them. GE-3

I thank God that our protection is so close to home. They need our support. They are experts in their field and if they need the F35's then they should have them.

Please do not let the complaints or fears of others about noise or air quality stand in the way of our great freedom. We need to pull together as Americans and offer our support for Luke Air Force.

Thanks for listening.

Comments: I FULLY SUPPORT ALL EFFORTS TO WELCOME THE F-35's to LUKE AF BASE. ANY NOISE FROM PILOT TRAINING IS PERFECTLY ACCEPTABLE. WHEN WE BOUGHT OUR HOME WE WERE ADVISED OF THE NOISE AND WE SIGNED OFF and ACCEPTED THAT CONDITION. ANY NOISE FOR F-35 TRAINING WOULD BE INCIDENTAL TO THE NOISE OF FOREIGN COUNTRY AIRCRAFT "INCOMING" BRING THE F-35's to LUKE!!

Comments: I AM IN FAVOR OF THE F35 BEING STATIONED AT LUKE AFB. I HAVE BEEN SUPPORTIVE OF THE F16's TRAINING ALL THOSE YEARS FOR THE FOLLOWING REASONS:
- EXCELLENT FLYING WEATHER
- EXCELLENT AIR SPACE
- AVAILABLE LAND TO BUILD MORE FACILITIES FOR TRAINING PROGRAM
- GOOD ACCOMMODATIONS FOR THE SERVICE PEOPLE
- GOOD FOR THE ECONOMY OF THE WEST VALLEY
- SINCE WE HAVE NO MANUFACTURING BASE + NO TECHNOLOGY FIRMS – the Luke AFB brings economic stability to the area.
- WHEN THE LAST OF THE F-16 SQUADRONS LEAVE THIS AREA ~~WHEN~~ WE WILL HAVE LUKE BECOME A GHOST BASE SUCH AS MARCH AFB/CALIF BECAME, THE CITY OF RIVERSIDE, CA/HAD TO BEG SMALL BUSINESSES TO LEASE SPACE AND THAT TOOK YEARS.

Luke employs approx. 4,000 military + civilian personnel – that's a lot of $ spending dropped each day and/or night!

Comments: While I am not in the direct flight path of Luke, I do have occasion to be there. When I hear the jets, the noise is short term & quickly gone. I also marvel at the American ingenuity that has carried on the mission of the Wright Brothers. Now, the whistles of the trains on Grand Avenue are annoying as they keep going during the night. However, I do not want the operation of trains discontinued because that noise is soon gone as well. Bring on the F-35As! — GE-3

I HAVE REVIEWED THE NOISE CONTOUR MAPS FOR LUKE AFB CONTAINED IN THE EIS. THE 65 dB lines FOR THE F-35A COVERS A LITTLE MORE AREA THAN THE EXISTING 65 dB LINE, HOWEVER BOTH 65 dB LINES ARE WITHIN THE 1&3 F-15 65 dB that are used FOR DEVELOPMENT PLANNING. THE F-35A SHOULD NOT AFFECT THE CURRENT DEVELOPMENT SITUATION. THE BASE WAS HERE LONG BEFORE DEVELOPMENT BEGAN ENCROACHING ON LUKE. THE BARRY GOLDWATER RANGE LOCATION MAKES LUKE A IDEAL LOCATION FOR THE F-35A TRAINING MISSION. I FULLY SUPPORT BASING F-35A AT LUKE AFB. — NO-10, GE-3

Comments: When first arriving I filled out this form with a very short comment. We feel so strongly about having the F-35 at Luke. It is imperative for not only Metro Phoenix but for all U.S. We personally enjoy seeing the planes & hearing them. It is not & should not be an objection to anyone. It should make everyone feel safe and grateful. Please make Luke the choice for the F-35's. GE-3

Comments: I REALLY THINK WE NEED THE NEW F-35A PLANE HERE AT LUKE AFB, IT IS NICE TO KNOW THAT IS GREAT ASSET TO OUR VALLEY, IN TERMS OF JOBS, MONEY TO OUR AREA, ECT. I WOULD RATHER HAVE SOME NOISE FROM AIRCRAFT THAN A MISSLE NOISE COMING TOWARDS OUR HOME FROM ENEMY. I ONLY LIVE 6 MILES N.E. OF LUKE & I DON'T EVEN NOTICE THE NOISE OF PLANES, AS I GOT USED TO IT. THANK HEAVEN FOR PILOTS & FIGHTERS THAT PROTECT US. I REALLY WANT THE F-35 HERE AS IT PROVIDES SAFETY FOR OUR VALLEY. ALSO IT IS GREAT WHEATHER AND IT HAS BARRY GOLDWATER CLOSE BY, SO OUR PILOTS CAN HAVE IDEAL PRACTICE RANGE FOR THEM & CLOSE BY. GE-3

RE: F-35A Training Center at Luke AFB

In response to the public comment requested on the basing of the F-35A Training Center for Luke AFB, we submit the following.

We have lived in Sun City West, Arizona for 12 years and although we experience the noise of the fighter jets from Luke AFB, we consider this to be the sound of freedom.

We therefore totally support the location of the new F-35A Training Center at Luke AFB in Glendale, Arizona. It is with great American pride that we give our stamp of approval. GE-3

Should you need further comment or we can be of further assistance, please feel free to contact us at:

Comments: The importance of the F35 to the future defense of the USA cannot be overstated. That the young men and women who will fly & maintain this weapon system be properly trained should be a given. LUKE AFB is the best site for this training, partly due to its history of training pilots in earlier aircraft and also due to its location.

The economic impact of Luke on the west valley in particular, and greater Phoenix in general, is enormous. The moving of this base would decimate the economies of all towns in the west valley. Any NIMBY folks need to change their back yard's location.

Comments: The Air Force needs to be stationed here! The noise is the sound of Freedom! All people in the area know what the Air Force base and it's location. Most if not all residents were issued a sign off sheet that they were knowledgable of airforce planes flight patterns and possible noise. If they don't like the noise they should move. Bring these planes here and let's get these guys trained. We'll need'em soon! GE-3

Comments:

There a lot of concern about the noise – Personally I do understand that it may affect some people. However I'm not one of them. The planes fly very near our home & I feel so blessed every time I see or hear them fly. The noise only re-affirms for me that these men & women are here to protect our freedom. So we may need to stop a conversation for a few seconds – So what!!! To me we have these men & women are complete support. As for the new planes. Yes, bring them to Luke Base – I for one will thank God for them every day & say a prayer for those who fly them. Also I support them coming here – yes, yes, yes –
Jean Johnson. GE-3

Comments: I feel the F-35A should be brought to LUKE AFB, It is obvious the US should be allowed to train it's military personnel on superior & technologically advanced aircraft to allow it to fulfill any and all missions. Economical, environmental (etc) impact should be secondary to the overall military needs of this country. Anyone within the airspace of Luke AFB should be / is aware of the jet fighters and the training of the pilots. all of us had to sign disclosure statements when purchasing homes. A Radical Cockpit Upgrade Southwest Fliers Will Feel

By Scott McCartney

Next week Southwest Airlines Co. changes the way it flies, a major milestone in the push to modernize the nation's air-travel system. For passengers, the last 20 minutes of a flight may feel more graceful as planes glide in without revving up engines repeatedly.

On April 6, the airline will change out the cockpit software in two-thirds of its fleet, giving pilots different instruments and a new look to displays. The radical upgrade, which took three years of preparation and required retraining 6,000 pilots, will enable Southwest to fly precise satellite-based navigation approaches to airports. That should save fuel, cut noise and reduce delays.

"On April 5th we fly one way. On the 6th, another way," said Jeff Martin, Southwest's senior director of flight operations.

That flip-the-switch change pushes airlines closer to a modern air-traffic-control system. Using more-precise approaches to airports called Required Navigation Performance (RNP) routes, airplanes can shorten their flights. The paths laid out in the sky that planes use into and out of airports will be much narrower, removing overlap between different airports in congested cities.

Without the new technology, planes flying into Chicago's Midway Airport, for example, may have to wait for an opening in the line of planes taking off nearby from Chicago's O'Hare airport when winds are from the south because the routes overlap. Now, most of Southwest's planes won't have to wait. The same "decoupling" is planned for New York, Houston, Dallas and other major airline chokepoints.

"That's a huge step," said FAA Administrator Randolph Babbitt.

Only a handful of airports have RNP procedures in place, but about 20 that Southwest flies to will have them by the end of the year. For passengers, RNP will be a different experience. Instead of lining up miles away from an airport to land and then stair-stepping down by descending and then powering up engines to level off over and over, airplanes will glide at idle almost all the way to touchdown. The descent will be continuous and quieter. Some turns will be tight close to airports. It will feel like the plane is swooping in at the last few minutes of flight instead of long, drawn-out approaches.

Southwest is not the first airline to start flying RNP approaches—Alaska Air Group Inc.'s Alaska Airlines pioneered the technology, and several airlines have it turned on in some of their newest planes.

But Southwest is the biggest. The Dallas-based carrier, which operates more flights than any other carrier world-wide, is the first to commit to "Next Generation" technology fleet-wide, paying for cockpit upgrades itself. Airlines have been pushing Congress and the White House for federal funding to pay for new equipment required for the modernized air-traffic-control system; the issue is still undecided in Washington.

With RNP, planes use satellite-based

IT IS IMPERATIVE THAT LUKE AFB CONTINUE WITH THE EXCELLENT TRAINING PROVIDED OUR FIGHTER PILOTS AS HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED SO WELL IN THE PAST, WITH THE F-16 AND OTHER AF AIRCRAFT. GE-3

THE TRAINING OF GROUND CREWS ON THE ~~F-35~~ GOES HAND IN HAND WITH THE PILOT TRAINING.

WITH NOISE LEVELS EXPECTED TO BE ONLY SLIGHTLY HIGHER WITH THE F-35, COMPARED TO THE F-16, AS THE ONLY POSSIBLE OBJECTION I BELIEVE HAS BEEN STATED, THE ECONOMIC VALUE OF THE F-35 TO THIS AIR BASE AREA AND ADJACENT COMMUNITIES FAR OUT WEIGHS THE SLIGHT INCREASE IN NOISE LEVEL. NO-9

I LOOK FORWARD TO THE LUKE AFB BEING HOME TO THE F-35!! GE-3

I am Not in favor of expanding the F-35A to Luke Air Force Base. — GE-1
I think the area around the air force base has become so populated since the base started. I think the ~~the~~ current Jets are very loud. In my yard you have to stop speaking and wait for them to pass. I do — NO-8 not complain about this because the base has been here longer than me. However, the F-35A jets will be bigger & louder. I think it is to much for such a densely populated area. — GE-1

Comments: It seems to me the biggest reason people have against the F-35 is the noise it will make – I am concerned about the quietness we will have if we lose the 'sound of freedom'. I chose to live in this area, knowing there would be noise from the Jets – It makes me feel ~~sure~~ 'SAFE'. GE-3
My prayers are for the Air Force to continue its presence at Luke and accept the F-35 Training with open arms –

Comments: I am just as patriotic as the next person & military etc.
I am concerned about the noise level. I have lost a tenant due to the noise. If the level of noise escapes the F-16 then I believe Gila Bend area to be much better suited for a Training area.
Housing costs can't drop any lower and people who say they would move if the F-35's don't come here would never be able to sell their homes anyway.

Comments: Environmentally, I feel that this desert for the F-35A is the best location possible. Noise factor for the F35A. I do not mind the noise because it is a reminder to me that our nation is ready with a powerful defense. Economically Luke Air Force Base and the F35A is a powerful support for our regional economy.

Having been connected with AF since 1959, I love the sound of the planes. More than the commitment to the freedom of our country, military personnel & families contribute so much to our community: schools, businesses, hospitals etc. IF you think the housing crisis has impacted AZ, wait to see what a cutback at Luke will do. We have been witnesses To base cutbacks, and closures and the devistation lasts for years. We need Luke AFB, and in these days of military cutbacks, & we need it more than ever. As the planes fly by, I Say "thank you for your service.

Comments: We need the F-35A as a strategic aircraft for our military to perform properly.

Luke AFB also is best suited for training purposes given its geographic location & ideal weather conditions. GE-3

We happen to live within the pattern area & are willing to live with the noise associated with this aircraft.

Just get the rookies trained in Sturdy Arizona ASAP

Comments: Well the time has come to discuss the arrival of the F-35A. It is about time that they vote on who will get them. Hope that Luke is the first choice they will pick. I am a military retired individual and I think that the sound is just the Sound of Freedom.

Yes I know that there are people who say not in my back yard or neighborhood. Most of those people have never served our country and are not very patriotic. GE-3

The future is the F-35A, and this Area needs them. The Impact it will have on this Area if we dont get them. Loss of Jobs and monetary Value. People Think the Noise will be gone, they have something coming, Luke will be turned into a civilian Cargo Airport or just like Williams. This Planes will fly any kind of Day or Night.

Many of the retired service men will move from this area if Luke closes, and no one will move in.
It will be a billion and billion Dollar loss to this City and State. GE-3 cont'd

So my final thought is let them fly at Luke, and not sent the F 35's to some where else.

RE: F-35 at Luke A.F.B. (Arizona)

Gentlemen:

I am very excited to see the F-35 come to Luke AFB and support it 100%. As a daughter of a veteran Air Force Master Sergeant, this will bring a greater sense of safety having the F-35 at Luke AFB. I only wish my dad was alive to witness this - he would have been very proud and humbled. My brother was also stationed at Luke AFB for a while until he retired. GE-3

Please add my vote to continue on with the process of having the F-35 at Luke.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Dorene A. Pemberton

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Comments on the Proposed Pilot Training Center and Basing of F-35A Training Aircraft DEIS

Specifically: Luke Aux-1

Submitted by:

Randy Gross

[redacted]

1403 LU

Executive Summary

Following is an Executive Summary of the recommendations made in "Comments on the Proposed Pilot Training Center and Basing of F-35A Training Aircraft DEIS--Specifically: Luke Aux-1, Submitted by: Randy Gross."

It should be noted that these comments address impacts at Luke Aux-1 only.

The EIS should document how many acres of privately owned property is within the CZs and APZs of Aux-1 and identify its zoned use and General Plan recommended use. LU-5

The EIS needs to give the reader a better description of how often aircraft are approaching and departing Aux-1 during the time periods when Aux-1 is actually used. AM-1

The EIS needs to describe in a more detailed fashion the present and future impact of Aux-1 on property values and population. This would include the blight effect of a vacant base and how existing zoning could impact population growth within the 65+ and 80+ (NIPTS) noise contours, CZs and APZs. GE-13

The EIS should fully outline the challenges associated with Aux-1 in one section of the Final EIS so that decision makers have a better grasp of the impacts associated with this airfield. Currently Aux-1 information is incomplete and sprinkled throughout the EIS making it difficult to get a handle on Aux-1 related issues. NP-10

The impacts of Aux-1 should be addressed in the EIS with proper mitigation measures. The three mitigation measures suggested in these comments should be reviewed as part of the EIS finalization. The EIS should clearly state the reasons why it is important for Aux-1 airfield be used only for its airspace while impacting 6,000 acres-- as opposed to using other options for training. NO-8 cont'd DO-22

Comments on the Proposed Pilot Training Center and Basing of F-35A Training Aircraft DEIS

Specifically: Luke Aux-1

Submitted by:

Randy Gross

1403 LU

The following comments refer specifically to Luke Aux-1.

Location

Pg. LU-98 states: "Aux-1 is situated near Wittman, Arizona, approximately 13 miles north of Luke AFB." Aux-1 is actually located in the City of Surprise, Arizona and the text should reflect this. GE-9

APZs And CZs

The chart on pg. 2-38 under Luke AFB, second bullet point, and the text on pg. LU-88 state: "Aux-1 does not have an active runway. APZs and Clear Zones have been established, which could address any potential issues related to aircraft accidents at Aux-1."

This statement does not sufficiently address the hazards associated with currently zoned property in the APZs and Clear Zones at Aux-1.

These problems were outlined in my comments submitted in the scoping process and are repeated below: GE-13

"CLEAR ZONE IMPACTS

The properties I own (503-81-005S, 503-81-005Q, 503-81-023H), along with other private properties in the general vicinity, lie within the Luke Aux-1 Clear Zone and Accident Potential Zones. (Copies of property locations, Aux-1 CZs and APZs are included at end of submittal).

According to the FAA Policy and Procedures Memorandum—Airports Division, Runway Protection Zone and Airport Object Clearing Policy:

private land in these zones have been acquired and these properties have existing zoning entitlements.

These properties have R-43 zoning that entitles the landowner to build one home per acre. In addition, Surprise General Plan 2020 outlines the recommended uses for land with this zoning:

'Airport Preservation (0-2 DU/AC)
The Airport Preservation designation refers to appropriate areas where service uses, proving grounds, warehouse, business park, and/or manufacturing-type industrial uses are allowed. These uses are encouraged within the F-16 high noise impact area. This designation also allows for incidental supportive commercial use, and single-family residential uses having a density range of 0 to 2 dwelling units per acre outside of the F-16 65 ldn sound boundaries. All future residential development within this category inside the high noise impact area shall be in compliance with A.R.S. section 28-8481. The overall intent of this designation is to maximize intensity of land uses and to locate those land uses in areas that are compatible with operations at Luke Auxiliary Airfield # 1. '

The zoned uses and the recommended uses outlined above are potentially contradictory to FAA guidelines for runway protection zones.

The EIS should evaluate the Clear Zone and Accident Potential Zone impacts of F-35A fighters (proposed action)... "

It is important for the EIS to reflect the problems posed by residentially zoned property that is also recommended by the Surprise General Plan to be built as business and industrial usages that is located inside the APZs and CZs of Aux-1. The DEIS states the APZs and CZs "could address any potential

"Approach Protection Zones were originally established to define land area underneath aircraft approach paths in which control by the airport operator was highly desirable to prevent the creation of airport hazards. Subsequently, clear zones beyond runway ends were established to preclude obstructions potentially hazardous to aircraft and to control building construction as a protection for people on the ground."

FAA Runway Protection Zone Policy, Federal Register, Friday, August 4, 1989 states that the FAA will resist or oppose objects or activities in the vicinity of an airport that conflict with an airport's planning or design, or recommendation to protect the public's investment in the national airport system."

FAA Order 5100.38A,paragraph 602b. (1) states that "the sponsor should be strongly encouraged to acquire fee title to all land within the runway protection zone, with first priority given to land within the object free area. Structures or activities located on this land must be removed unless excepted by the regional Airports Division manager or needed for air navigation aids."

FAA Order 5100.38A, Appendix 9-Special Condition 12.a. states, "Acquisition of Fee Title to Runway Protection Zone. The sponsor agrees to prevent the erection or creation of any structure or place of public assembly in the runway protection zone, as depicted on the Exhibit "A"....Any existing structures or uses within the runway protection zone will be cleared or discontinued unless approved by the FAA."

Despite the above dictums to restrict and prevent development in the Clear and Accident Protection Zones, and the strong encouragement to acquire land in these zones, none of the issues." However these issues have never been addressed and there are no plans of which I am aware to address these problems. The EIS needs to underscore these issues so that proper mitigation measures can be addressed in the Final EIS and implemented by the U.S. Air Force/DOD. The EIS should document how many acres of privately owned property is within the CZs and APZs of Aux-1 and identify its zoned use and General Plan recommended use. This information is important for decision makers to know when looking at future use of Aux-1 and potential mitigation actions. LU-5 cont'd

NOISE

The discussion of noise impact on populations is incomplete and potentially misleading as it uses the metric of >=65dbDNL and >=80dbDNL (hearing loss) for parameters. The reader should be informed that the dbDNL metric assumes operations are spread out over a 24 hour period, 7 days a week, 365 days a year. This 24 hour/7 day -a -week/365 day assumption is especially inaccurate when it describes operations at Aux-1. Aux-1 is used only during certain times of the year for training and operations are limited to certain days of the week and hours of the day. In addition, every approach and departure occurs consecutively as there is no landing or take-off from this field as the runway is not operational. In other words, operations are concentrated during certain time periods. The EIS should denote when these periods occur and what the average number of operations would be during the times Aux-1 is actually used. NO-24

The EIS might analyze the health effects of the noise using NIOSH daily noise dose and 8 hour TWA standards. In any case, the EIS needs to give the reader a better description of how often aircraft are approaching and departing Aux-1 during the time periods when Aux-1 is actually used. AM-1

PROPERTY VALUES

The EIS has two paragraphs on property values on pg. 3-35. The lead sentence states "there are a number of factors that affect property values that makes predicting impacts difficult." The paragraph then lists a number of factors impacting property values including noise from military aircraft, as well as local market conditions. The next paragraph then refers to a study that "supports the idea that the potential for an adverse impact on property values as a result of aircraft noise exists..."

This analysis does not begin to touch on the devaluation of the property surrounding Aux-1 due to the following:

- The airfield is not functional and the runway is inoperable because of disrepair.
- There is no activity at the airbase making it in effect a vacant industrial property. The property itself is unkempt and the U.S. Government/U.S. Air Force has allowed it to deteriorate to a state of disrepair and blight.
- The only use of the property is the airspace above it that is used for practice approaches and departures that cause loud noise impacts during concentrated times of the day/year. GE-13

The literature is full of studies that show the devaluation of property due to abandoned/vacant properties. The total lack of use of the installation degrades the surrounding property and contributes no economic benefit that could occur from a military installation that actually has personnel that use the base.

In order to help illustrate the negative impacts of this unstaffed base with a non-functional runway, following are pictures of the Aux-1 entrance and surrounding property:

Dirt Road Leading to Aux-1; Rusty Gate Entrance

1403 LU

Triple Padlocked and Chained Aux-1 Entrance Gate

Barbed Wire Fence Surrounding Aux-1

1403 LU

Trash Outside Luke-Aux-1 Entrance Gate

1403 LU

As one can see from the pictures, the road leading to Aux-1 is unpaved. The gate to Aux-1 is rusty and the fence is barbed wire. The fence is locked with a chain and three padlocks. Trash is sprawled around the entrance to Aux-1 and has been there for a long period of time.

Immediately surrounding this vacant base is property where dbDNL noise levels range from 65+ to 85+ because of the noise from military jets approaching and departing over AUX-1. Many of the properties adjacent to and near AUX-1 will experience expanded dbDNL noise contours under all scenarios. Under scenarios L3-L6 (the most likely scenarios) the acres exposed to dbDNL 75+ expands (Table pgs. LU-58-59). In addition, the noise impacts can be more intense than the contours indicate because aircraft operations are concentrated during certain times of the year/days of the week/times of day.

The EIS states: " The noise generated by the F-35A could have an adverse impact on property values for those properties that would be newly exposed to noise levels above 65 dB DNL and especially for properties newly exposed to noise levels above 75 dB DNL, which the EPA considers incompatible with residential use. This potential adverse impact on property values may be considered a significant impact on those residents newly affected by noise levels above 75 dB DNL. " (pg. LU-189)

The above paragraph from the EIS alludes to the adverse impact on property values because of expanded noise contours. It does not fully describe the on-going devaluation due to Aux-1 being vacant and existing and proposed noise GE-13 levels. These problems need to be properly evaluated by the EIS for three reasons:

1) The noise and devaluation problems will continue at Aux-1 if the F-35A beds down at Luke and will become more problematic as growth and development surrounds Aux-1. The problems need to be properly described in the EIS so that mitigation measures can be considered for these problems.

2) The No Action Alternative is defined as "...an F-35A training base would not take place. No F-35A personnel changes or construction would be performed and no F-35A training activities would be conducted." (pg. 2-24)

Under the No Action Alternative the F-35A would not bed down at Luke and F-16 activity would eventually be limited and/or curtailed at Luke AFB as the F-16 is replaced by the F-35A. Thus under the No Action Alternative, the problems associated with an empty airbase and aircraft noise would eventually disappear as the F-16 is phased out and Aux-1 is turned over to other owners and/or uses. GE-13 cont'd

The No Action Alternative should show how the problems associated with Aux-1 diminish/disappear if the F-35A does not bed down at Luke.

3) Aux-1- caused devaluations of the property because of its vacancy/property blight and airspace use may rise to the level of an inverse condemnation that could result in legal and economic liability.

A vacant Aux-1 airbase, coupled with military aircraft training over the airbase, causes significant deterioration of property values over the 3,000 -5,000 +acres inside the 65 dbDNL noise contours (Scenarios L1-L6)—especially on residentially zoned property. The vacancy of the 756 -acre Aux-1 base and use of the Aux-1 airspace for training is not the highest and best use of the ground property. Up to 6,000 + acres are impacted by Aux-1.

Before the EIS is finalized, it needs to describe in a more detailed fashion the present and future impact of Aux-1 on property values and population. This would include the blight effect of a vacant base and how existing zoning could impact population growth within the 65+ and 80+ (NIPTS) noise contours, CZs and APZs. GE-13 cont'd

Cumulative Impacts

There are a number of negative impacts caused by existing operations at Luke Aux-1 that have not been addressed that will continue under the scenario where the F-35A beds down at Luke AFB. Many of these negative impacts will increase especially as "Aux-1 is surrounded by rapidly growing communities. The combination(sic) of growth increases the potential for encroachment." Pg. LU-214.

The EIS states "Continuing coordination between Aux-1 and local communities on joint land use compatibility issues could (emphasis added) limit the potential for future encroachment that could negatively impact operations at the airfield or quality of life in surrounding areas." Pg. LU-214. LU-5

The EIS does not state what type of coordination could limit potential encroachment. It is difficult to see what type of coordination could limit encroachment unless there are new mitigation measures introduced.

The reasons why existing coordination measures will not stop encroachment or limit existing and future negative impacts are:

1) There is no "coordination between Aux-1 and local communities" because there is no Aux-1 with which to co-ordinate. Aux-1 is vacant without any personnel. Coordination could occur between Luke AFB and local communities concerning Aux-1 but there does not appear to be any designated Aux-1 personnel to tend to Aux-1 matters—including upkeep of the base.

2) Almost all of the property in the 65+ dbDnl contour is already zoned R-1-43 which allows single family residences (detached) or two family dwellings. Because this property already has approved zoning, the City of Surprise cannot deny an application for residential in this area if it meets residential guidelines for R-1-43. R-1-43 calls for homes to be built on one-acre lots. Because there are 3,000-5,000+ acres in the 65dbDNL contour (depending on the Scenario) there could be 3,000-5,000 +new homes built in this contour. LU-5 cont'd

3) There are many acres of private property in the CZs and APZs. These properties can be developed as residential or potentially be rezoned as industrial. Either way, structures should not be allowed in CZs and APZs, yet landowners cannot be stopped from developing these properties under existing zoning/General Plan guidelines.

A listing of Aux-1 challenges include:

- No functional runways causing a potential safety problem. Because the runways are not functional, aircraft cannot land on the runways if difficulties occur during the SA-14 approach and departure training. Aircraft in approach and departure patterns do not have a large degree of maneuverability when engaged in this training and the pilots are relatively inexperienced. If a safety problem occurs, aircraft do not have a runway on which to land. SA-14 cont'd

- Special Status Wildlife." Two special status bird species have been recorded on Aux-1. Burrowing owls, primarily year-round residents in Arizona, are known to be present, and ferruginous hawks use Aux-1 for winter foraging (Air Force 2006b). (pg. LU-108). Special status species are those that are formally listed as endangered or threatened by the federal government (e.g. U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service), pursuant to the Federal Endangered Species Act. Some airports have special programs to monitor and protect special status species. If either of these species became a critically endangered species, measures would have to be implemented to protect them. BI-6
- Private Property Located in APZs and CZs. Many acres of private property exist in the APZs and CZs and these properties can be developed as residential and industrial. To optimize safety, there should be no development in these areas. LU-5
- Noise. There are current residents living in the 65 and 80+ db DNL noise contours. The residents in the 80 +db DNL noise contours are subject to Noise-Induced Permanent Threshold Shift (NIPTS). The number of residents in these zones will increase if the F-35A uses Aux-1 for training because of the aircraft noise level and the fact that the surrounding property is in a growth area zoned for residential. The Aux-1 associated noise devalues property and causes health and hearing issues. NO-1
- Property Devaluation. Property values are impacted by both the vacant, unkempt condition of Aux-1 and aircraft noise caused by training over and near Aux-1. GE-13

- Population Growth, and Zoning. The problems with noise, property devaluation, CZs and APZs will be exacerbated because of the large property acreage surrounding Aux-1 that is zoned residential in an area that is in the path of growth. GE-13 cont'd

The EIS should fully outline the challenges associated with Aux-1 in one section of the Final EIS so that decision makers have a better grasp of the impacts associated with this airfield. Currently Aux-1 information is incomplete and sprinkled throughout the EIS making it difficult to get a handle on Aux-1 related issues. NP-10

Potential Mitigation Measures

Luke AFB is and should be the preferred base for the bed down of the F-35A. Because of the advantageous nature of locating the F-35A at Luke, it becomes critical that attention be given to addressing the impacts caused by Aux-1.

Following are three mitigation options that could address the Aux-1 impacts and therefore should be examined as part of the Final EIS:

1. Shift the approach and departure practice procedures over Aux-1 to another base. These procedures do not use the runways for landing and take-off and only occur at Aux-1 during certain times of the year. An obvious option for these practice sorties would be Gila Bend AFAF. As the draft EIS states: "No major changes are expected in activities or land use around Gila Bend AFAF. " (pg. LU-214). This contrasts sharply DO-22 with Aux-1 where: "The combination (sic) of growth increases the potential for encroachment." Pg. LU-214.

Other airbases could be considered for the Aux-1 sorties, including Luke AFB, Tucson International Airport Air Guard Station, Davis Monthan AFB or Laguna/Yuma Army Airfield. There are also a number of Ajo AF Aux fields that have been used by Luke AFB. Fort Huachuca also has a number of Aux airfields. DO-22 cont'd

In addition, the use of Aux-1 for training missions shows the mission can be practiced without the use of a functional runway. This might allow the practice sorties to be conducted in an area like the Goldwater Air Force Range with runways outlined in the desert—resulting in minimal noise impact as there is no one living on this range with 57,000 cubic miles of airspace.

If Aux-1 was decommissioned the base could be transferred to civilian use potentially resulting in some cost savings to the military, potential revenue generation and a higher and better use of the property.

2. Acquire fee title to private property located in the Aux-1 CZs and APZs. As FAA Order 5100.38A,paragraph 602b. (1) states: "the sponsor should be strongly encouraged to acquire fee title to all land within the runway protection zone, with first priority given to land within the object free area." This would eliminate the problem of structures being built in CZs and APZs as development encroaches upon Aux-1. GE-13

3. Develop a committee comprised of Luke AFB, the City of Surprise and landowners in the Aux-1 65dbDNL noise contour to coordinate planning, growth, development and zoning. This committee could develop a plan that would guide future growth to minimize conflicts with Aux-1. GE-13 cont'd

Mitigation options 2 and 3 presuppose that the Department of Defense and U.S. Air Force consider Aux-1 important enough to continue operations. What is missing in the EIS is an explanation of why Aux-1 is considered important enough for the U.S. Air Force to continue using only the airspace above it to the detriment of more than 6,000 acres below it. DO-22 If the U.S. Air Force plans on "reopening" Aux-1 in the future it should state its plan. If it does not plan on using the Aux-1 base, it should demonstrate why it would create a hardship for the sorties using the airspace above Aux-1 to train elsewhere. GE-13

The impacts of Aux-1 should be addressed in the EIS with proper mitigation measures. The three mitigation measures suggested in these comments should be reviewed as part of the EIS finalization. NP-8 The EIS should clearly state the reasons why it is important for Aux-1 airfield be used only for its airspace while impacting 6,000 acres-- as opposed to using other options for training. DO-22

Over the years Goodyear, Glendale, Litchfield Park, Litchfield, Pebble Creek, and neighboring communities in Arizona have developed good relationships with Luke Air Force Base. The people of these towns support the location of the F-35 fighter aircraft at Luke. Some of the people living in these areas even donate their time and talent to the base. GE-3

Having the influx of the F-35 to Luke is very important to the local and state economy. Many ex-military personnel live near Luke Air Force Base and enjoy retired life with Luke as their next door neighbor.

Please award the F-35 training mission to Luke.

Thank you for giving this matter your kind attention.

Based on review of the F-35A Training Basing Draft EIS and presentation meeting by the US Air Force held in Weed, New Mexico on February 7, 2012, I offer the following comments:

- The documents supporting studies do not topography reflect the terrain of the Sacramento mountains of south central New Mexico, therefore are not valid. You can't compare decibel levels studied in level terrain versus steep mountainous canyon terrain. Appropriate research needs to be conducted. NO-38

- Air Force Release no. 12-01-08 (Jan. 20, 2012) states that "the purpose of the proposal is to train pilots and personnel to safely and effectively operate F-35A aircraft". The Sacramento Mountains which is heavily SA-3 populated and is scattered with ownership of private properties is not or should not be a training location for low flying aircraft. Since the beginning of the first aerial training flights approximately 30 years ago the population in the Sacramento Mountains has significantly increased many times. It is no longer feasible to train over this area due to safely concerns for our citizens and the potential for catastrophic fire. SA-3 cont'd

- The 500 foot training level is not an option due to decibel levels far exceeding health standards. Safety is also a negative factor and virtually ignored. NO-6, SA-3
- Suggest that all low flying training (500-1000 ft.) be conducted on the White Sands Missile Range. Again, there are public safety and fire concerns to be considered that have virtually been ignored in the Draft EIS. DO-4
- Night flight training will have an extreme impact on people and their ability to sleep. The EIS does not adequately address this. Your own studies demonstrate negative psychological effects on people. NO-3
- Fire and flares. This is unacceptable due to historic extreme fire conditions of the Sacramento Mountains. Fires have resulted in costing the taxpayers and the federal government millions of dollars over the past few years. Cost benefit should be considered and properly evaluated. SO-8
- Impact studies referenced in the draft EIS pertaining to effects on domestic livestock are not in any way applicable to range cattle of the Sacramento Mountains due to terrain. The 1983 study was relating to dairy cattle and I assume the 1994 study was either dairy or standing cattle in feed lots. Based on the 1983 study if you had 2 head of cattle out of 10 lost by abortion, then 100 head would result in a financial loss of approximately $11,000. annually to a livestock producer based on current market values. BI-5, SO-17

The 1994 study indicates a potential loss of 3 out of 5 aborted. Again based on 100 head, this would result in an annual loss of $66,000. to a producer. SO-17 cont'd

- Tort claims based on livestock and domestic losses have proven to be historically lengthy in resolution with the military. There must be a special expedient method developed to resolve claims if the military training is to continue over the Sacramento Mountains. GE-11
- The EIS should have evaluated an alternative to utilize other less populated mountainous terrain (forests, military res., etc.) for low flying training. As previously mentioned as an example, white Sands Missile Range has a considerable amount of desirable mountainous terrain. GE-1

In summary, I respectively request that you consider my input into the draft EIS. If you have questions please feel to contact me at [redacted].

Dear Mr. Martin:

The US Air Force and Arizona National Guard should not be allowed to establish a training center for the F-35A directly adjacent to the Tucson Municipal (commercial) Airport. As you well know, the F-35 is a new, untested (and so far, seriously trouble-prone) aircraft. SA-1

The Tucson Municipal Airport is surrounded by long-established homes, businesses, and public schools. In recent years, the Air Guard has quietly built a training facility immediately adjacent to it where F-16s land and take off on the same runways as commercial flights, endangering not only activity at the municipal airport and its environs, but also seriously devaluing the surrounding metropolitan area. SO-1

Already, central Tucson's neighborhoods are threatened and quality of life issues weigh heavily on residents, and the University of Arizona, as well as the central city itself, by aggressive military activities at Davis Monthan, where, as I understand it, the F-35 will need to land in order to load live ordnance bombs.

Enough is enough--there are other, safer, and far more appropriate training sites for this expensive new aircraft (once it actually has the proven ability to fly safely). SA-1

Sincerely,

Susan Pitt

RE: Comments on the F-35 Draft EIS; incomplete information, making informed consideration of alternatives impossible.

Notes:

I want to receive copies of the EIS and any other correspondence released to the public. You failed to send a copy of the Draft EIS to me. Please don't repeat this failure with the Final EIS. Further I expect that my comments be made part of the permanent record and that they will be included in the Final EIS. NP-6 NP-7

Review of previous USAF EIS reveals that Air Force responses to comments are often brief to the point of absurdity. This marginalization of stakeholder's comments hinders evaluation of alternatives and hinders the effectiveness of the NEPA process. Please answer every comment I am making fully. I have many comments. The Draft EIS is over 1,000 pages, my comments, less than 25 pages. NP-8

Summary:

This Draft EIS (DEIS) is so inadequate that it precludes meaningful analysis. The DEIS fails to include information on reasonably foreseeable significant adverse impacts. The USAF has failed to gather and consider detailed information concerning significant environmental impacts from the extreme noise levels present in the F-35 and impacting the environment at low altitudes and high speeds such as found in the Military Training Routes. They have failed to gather and consider data describing the low frequency spectrum that impacts damage to structures (including Historic). The DEIS fails to provide correct information about either subsonic noise levels or supersonic noise levels (and focused booms). NO-4

The DEIS fails to provide correct information about flare use and hazards. Some information provided in the EIS is false or misleading, to the point of falsehood. SA-8

The DEIS fails to consider the risks to infants and children in the area under the SUA and MTRs and has failed to include such information in the applicable chapter of the DEIS. The USAF has failed to state clearly why this information about risks to infants and children was not included. These failures (and others) in the DEIS make a reasoned choice among the alternatives impossible. EJ-2

One example, of many, is the failure of the DEIS to characterize the adverse environmental effects in the areas below the Military Training Routes (MTRs). This area is significant, perhaps as much as 30% of the total land area encompassed by the DEIS. The DEIS characterizes this flight space as "narrow corridors" which is incorrect and gives the reader a false impression of the environmental impact. Many of the adverse effects in this MTR environment cannot be avoided should the proposal be implemented. The F-35 aircraft is noisy, with some peak levels approaching immediate hearing damage (at the altitudes and flight regimes used in the MTRs) (see Table 7-10 and other references below). Yet the DEIS provides no metric for the important peak noise (Lmax or SEL or SELr) for the the land area below the MTRs. Rather the DEIS characterizes the MTR environment with a single (average) metric. Accepted practice, and guideline from the Department of Defense, is to use three noise-measuring techniques, or metrics for a critical environment: first, a measure of the highest sound level occurring during an individual aircraft overflight (single event); second, a combination of the maximum level of that single event with its duration; and third, a description of the noise environment based on the cumulative flight activity. The DEIS fails to provide this critical information, information that is needed to properly assess noise impact below the MTRs. This makes comparison between the various alternatives impossible. NO-24

A second example involves the failure of the DEIS to correctly characterize the adverse environmental effects from sonic booms in the areas below the Special Use Airspace (SUA). This area is also significant, perhaps as much as another 30% of the total land area encompassed by the DEIS. In this area DEIS fails to correctly characterize the effects of sonic booms and focused sonic booms. In fact the DEIS understates effects. The DEIS also fails to characterize the adverse effects of flares in the SUAs. NO-25

While the Courts have held that the USAF is entitled to rely on their own experts, these experts' decisions must not be arbitrary and capricious. The DEIS presents just this kind of analysis: arbitrary and capricious.

Correctly following the NEPA process ensures that important effects will not be overlooked or underestimated only to discover after resources have been committed that serious issues confront stakeholders.

Body:

The DEIS as presented reflects a poor performance by the USAF. So little actual data for noise is presented that this "Impact Statement" is a joke. No meaningful selection of alternatives is possible in the vacuum of noise information alone. The USAF must have their decision already made, based on some other criteria, and this DEIS is just window dressing. NO-4 PN-1

In addition to missing / false information, some of the "facts" presented in the DEIS are faulty, using obsolete or questionable data and antiquated analysis tools. The USAF is using the same methodology year after year and in this DEIS it has failed to present a true picture of the environmental impact from this ultra-noisy, fifth generation aircraft. The most egregious of many faults, is the use of only averages for the MTR noise measurement (and no other measures). This is an example of not following long accepted practice and must be an intentional ploy to understate the severe impact to the environment for peak noise under the MTRs. The proper way to present environmental noise impact in this important MTR area, as approved by the DOD, is stated in a Wyle report: NO-24

> "As used in environmental noise analysis, a metric refers to the unit or quantity that quantitatively measures the effect of noise on the environment. To quantify these effects, the Department of Defense and the Federal Aviation Administration use three noise-measuring techniques, or metrics: first, a measure of the highest sound level occurring during an individual aircraft overflight (single event); second, a combination of the maximum level of that single event with its duration; and third, a description of the noise environment based on the cumulative flight and engine maintenance activity."
> www.wyle.com/PDFs/archive/NoiseBasicsNoiseEffects.pdf

The Draft EIS fails to provide data or analysis for highest sound levels at the critical MTR floors. Why? Shouldn't the Draft EIS follow accepted practice and DOD guidelines? This environmental area (below MTR) is one where studies have shown a possibility of permanent hearing loss in both adults and children, by just a single flyover. Isn't this significant to the USAF? The levels indicated also may damage structures (including Historic). NO-6 CU-2

The DEIS is disingenuous. Sound levels that are presented as fact are in fact modeled estimates. The estimates keep changing from one USAF report to another. Sudden changes in numbers after a law suit are suspicious to this commenter. Besides the gross lack of subsonic noise data for the MTRs, the SUA supersonic flight environmental impact is seriously mis-characterized by the reporting of only estimated, average, filtered metrics and no analysis of focused sonic booms. NO-26 NO-25

The first few USAF EISs 30 years ago formed the path that later ones followed; over and over and over. Progress has been made in analysis and modeling since the USAF began environmental assessments those many years ago, yet this Draft EIS is written using much the same methodology and much of the same data as those from the 1980s. When the NEPA process started January 1, 1970, Al Gore had not invented the Internet and the most commonly available computer was the size of a small room and had the calculating power of my cell phone. In those days the USAF flew aircraft such as C-119, B-36, Convair B-58, F-102 and the F-104. These simple aircraft have given way to much more complex ones. We now consider a futuristic fifth-generation jet fighter with a single NO-26 huge, 40,000 pound thrust engine and a stealthy airframe. We fly this plane at extremes of altitude and speed not considered in 1970. Making a sound impact study, scientifically, in the 1970s was cutting edge technology and involved many compromises. The computers weren't fast enough and the science not understood, indeed the sonic boom mathematics was not solved until 30 years later. A lot of Environmental Impact analysis had to rely on empirical information. There was no way to model or analyze the actual environment. Unfortunately, this Draft EIS still follows the 30 year old methodology, and it leaves out important data. While aircraft are faster and nosier the Draft EIS remains solidly in the last century. Today we see the legacy of the pre-computer age in many parts of the F-35 Draft EIS. The analysis and data are so poor that informed consideration of the alternatives is just not possible. It is arbitrary and capricious of the USAF to use it when they have better information. The data and analysis presented does not represent the actual environment in the SUA and MTRs. Costs for new methods are the same as the 1980's methods, results are better. Why not use them? NO-26

Aircraft included for analysis in the DEIS include F-16C, F-22, F-35A ("Other Military" mentioned). Of these the F-35A stands out as the newest and the least tested. Here is a list (along with a couple of comparison aircraft):

F-15	First flight	27 July 1972	Thrust w/ AB 25,000 lbf ea (comparison to aircraft sited in Draft EIS)
Tornado GR4	First flight	14 Aug 1974	Thrust w/ AB 17,270 lbf ea (comparison to aircraft sited in Draft EIS)
F-16	First flight	2 Feb 1974	Thrust w/ AB 28,600 lbf
F-22	First flight	7 Sep 1997	Thrust w/ AB 35,000+ ea
F-35	First flight	15 Dec 2006	Thrust w/ AB 43,000 (the most powerful fighter engine in the world)

Note the "First flight" of the airframe dates and note the thrust. While aircraft have had engine upgrades over the years the F-35A is still the most powerful single engine aircraft in the world. It is easily also the nosiest.

The F-35A has a single, large, engine with very high thrust. It uses an airframe optimized for stealth, not aerodynamics making it still noisier in flight. Noise is a problem with its design and considerable debate surrounds the F-35A and its noise profile, including several law suits. The Valparaiso, Florida law suit over misinformation / missing information about its noise levels (settled but not complied with) is one. Kathleen Ferguson, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Air Force for installations, said in a written statement in 2008 concerning the F-35 noise:

"We are diligently exploring methods to mitigate the impact."

The Air Force has issued several sets of noise numbers. One preliminary environmental study showed an F-35's single engine would generate more noise than the two engines of an F-15 (which is noisy). An Environmental Assessment released by the Air Force on Oct. 10, 2011 found that:

> "At military takeoff power, noise from the F-35 is about 9 decibels higher — or twice as loud — than an F-15C at military takeoff power,". and
> The F-35 is even louder coming in for a landing (USAF).
> "During approach, noise from the F-35 is about 19 decibels higher than noise from an F-15C," the report said. "This corresponds to the F-35 being about four times as loud as the F-15C" when it lands. Note that the F-15 is noisier than the F-16 used at Holloman.

NO-30

More USAF studies in 2008 show the F-35 to produce 148 dB in the near field (50'), The Military Training Routes (MTR) airspace in this Draft EIS have a floor of 100' AGL (with the F-35 claimed to use a 500' AGL). This same 2008 USAF study shows an average, filtered sound level of 121 dBA at 1,000' AGL with an airspeed of only 160 kts . Yet another number for sound comes from this Draft EIS, Page HO-46 purports to show estimated noise for the F-35 at 1,000' AGL and 475 kts to be 120 dB SELr (Table HO 3.2–5). Note that SELr is supposed to be a number adjusted upward to account for rapid increases in sound, yet it is lower than the 2008 base (Why?). Note that the adjustment amount is not listed nor the rate factor. Which of the many numbers is correct? What are the measurement conditions? Are the numbers actual or guessed/modeled? Have the numbers been changed arbitrarily to placate the public (or maybe to satisfy Ms. Ferguson, see her quote above)? I believe that the Draft

EIS noise "numbers" are massaged estimates, changed to fit USAF needs. Why not use real numbers and show the reader? Note that numerous studies show that permanent hearing damage occurs, immediately, at 140 dB (USAF). Recent studies in the MTR airspace regime show hearing loss at only 115 dB for young children (German Study 1999, "Exposure and Effect Indicators of Environmental Noise", www.dfld.de/Downloads/IsingPaper.pdf). Structural damage starts at 130 dB (unfiltered) (USAF). The threshold of pain is between 120 and 130 dB (numerous studies). The F-35 exceeds most of these measures in the environment below the MTRs (whichever USAF number you choose to believe). NO-30 cont'd NO-6 NO-12 NO-6

Australian, Norwegian, Dutch (and others) officials are facing problems from basing F-35 due to public noise concerns, including law suits. The Germans no longer allow flight below 1,000 AGL in Germany due to hearing loss and annoyance considerations (which is why Holloman hosts the German Air Force so they may fly over rural Otero County, NM).

The F-35A is so noisy, and it's close air support mission often flown so close to the ground, that it deserves to be handled with exceptional care with respect to MTR environmental impact. Data and analysis methods should be verified to correctly model this new aircraft yet they have not been. If the methods do not match real world results then a reasoned choice among alternatives cannot be made and the DEIS is a farce.

Some modern analysis tools have been applied to the DEIS (for example BooMap). Yet the available information and the assumptions used were not presented to us in the DEIS (Why not?). The information that affects comparison of alternatives, such as peak noise (Lmax, SEL or SELr) at 500' (for the land below the MTRs) for example is not available to us. Many noise levels are being presented in dBA, a measurement of sound level that has been adjusted mathematically by using a "filter" equation and often used in annoyance measurement. Using dBA tends to de-value the low frequency sound levels that can damage structures (including Historical structures). The F-35's large engine produces more low frequency sound than say the smaller F-16 engine. Low frequency sound carries farther distances and affects structures more (USAF). Showing all the data would allow us to make comparisons between the alternatives but this DEIS fails to show us this data. We cannot compare alternatives. NO-4

The Draft EIS seems fixed on the 1970s measurement of annoyance using filtered metrics. Annoyance is one measure of the environment. DNL is a valid metric. But it is not the only measure and may not even be the most important measurement of environmental impact for this high performance aircraft. Why not provide all the information including other metrics such as the unfiltered levels? The maximum levels? The cost is miniscule, the environmental consequences are great. The information is useful. Without information how can anyone make an informed choice among the alternatives? NO-24

The Draft EIS fails to provide information about low frequency noise and makes incorrect, disingenuous assumptions based on no information, for example on page 3-9 of the Draft EIS the USAF states (I have added emphasis):

> "Sound levels at damaging frequencies (e.g., 30 hertz for window breakage or 15 to 25 hertz for whole-house response) produced by most military aircraft are rarely above 130 dB.".

"Most military aircraft" are not the untested F-35. The USAF has no data. The assumption is false. Including this statement in the DEIS amounts to a lie. The statement should be removed. USAF tests (see below) show significant low frequency noise with F-35 operations. NO-31

> "subsonic aircraft noise lasting more than 1 second above a sound level of 130 dB is potentially damaging to structural components (CHABA 1977 and DEIS)".

Please note the low frequencies mentioned in the quote above, plus also note the filtering used in the Draft EIS for metrics such as dBA, which filters out these frequencies. Note the caveat "produced by most military aircraft are rarely above 130 dB.". The Draft EIS provides no data to show the F-35 noise levels at the "30 hertz for window breakage or 15 to 25 hertz for whole-house response" frequencies. The statement above is without basis. There is evidence (see the following) showing that there is in fact significant low frequency noise from the F-35. The quoted USAF statement above, is generic and not true, and leaves the reader with a false impression about the environmental consequences to structures from F-35 operations. Why was this statement included? A more accurate statement would be that the F-35 produces significant noise in the low frequency spectrum and may damage structures. This is the opposite of what was said in the Draft EIS.

We need data on F-35 noise. The data must be for the F-35 aircraft and operation parameters proposed in this EIS, not mystery data derived from a statistical program or a USAF dream. Where is the actual peak filtered/unfiltered noise data for the F-35?

Page HO-41 then states (I have added emphasis):

> "F-35A noise levels are not expected to exceed 130 dB at any off-installation location. Therefore, noise associated with subsonic F-35A aircraft operations is not expected to result in any damage to structures."

NO-30

Again the conclusion is reached without facts, just pulled out of the air. In fact the statement is untrue. If you look at other USAF noise data such as Table 7-10 (from a previous USAF F-35 EIS and shown below) a different picture emerges. This table shows a noise level of 133 to 129 dBA (with low frequencies filtered out) for the F-35 in MTR (300' - 500' AGL, 500 kts) conditions. The USAF quoted statement above is misleading and should be removed from the Draft EIS. Noise levels will most certainly exceed 130 dB unfiltered, perhaps 136 dB (unfiltered). Depending on atmospheric conditions it may exceed this 130 dB number significantly.

The only indication of maximum noise in the DEIS is shown on page HO-46. It purports to show estimated noise for the F-35 at 1,000' AGL and 475 kts to be 120 dB SELr. This 1,000' AGL altitude fails to address MTRs with their 100' (500') AGL floors. The SELr metric used is a derived number with no basis given. Peak noise metrics such as Lmax are not divulged. Airspace rules in MTR allow flight to 100' AGL (not 1,000' AGL given on HO-46) and FARs allow flight within 500' of a person or structure. Further, the MTR rules allow flight speeds just below the sound barrier (650 kts) not the 475 kts shown. Again no actual noise numbers are presented for the F-35 in this MTR regimen. As the Draft EIS states SELr is a mathematically derived (averaged, with a limited frequency range) number. It will not properly model the sound spectrum of the ultra large engine of the F-35 (for either structural damage issues nor for human factors issues). It does not address the very rapid increase in sound level (greater than 80 dB/s, (USAF)) for the MTR airspace. Further, no information is provided about assumptions made by the USAF in deriving this number.

NO-4

The USAF has access to current study information for the MTR noise environment from Germany. The USAF has used this data in past reports. This information and data is for modern aircraft flown at the 100' to 500' levels planned for the F-35 in the MTRs. It is specific to the critical MTR environment that we are concerned with. The authors of the study are recognized researchers. They are quoted and their studies used by the USAF, USMC and the US Navy. Why has the USAF failed to use this up to date information in the DEIS? This is arbitrary and capricious of the USAF. According to the USAF it is the only study targeted specifically at the MTR environment. Yet they fail to use it, Why? From USAF Report dated 1989:

> "The Ising ad Michalak study is the only research to date which specifically addresses low altitude, high speed flight aircraft noise." USAF

NO-26

By not providing information and using misleading data the USAF is arbitrary and capricious, in violation of NEPA. Here is a snippet from a study by Ising and his team of researchers that was left out of this DEIS. A study that indicates the gross impact to the land below the MTR (MTR is known as a MLAF in Germany) and to the impact of the proposed environment on children:

> "In another study of 115 test subjects between 18 and 50 years old, temporary threshold shifts were measured after laboratory exposure to military low-altitude flight (MLAF)(MTR) noise (Ising, et al. 1999).
> According to the authors, the results indicate that repeated exposure to MLAF noise with Lmax greater than 114 dB, especially if the noise level increases rapidly, may have the potential to cause noise induced hearing loss in humans." - Wyle 2008

NO-26 cont'd

Note the rapid noise increase mentioned. Under the rural MTRs in this DEIS increase rates of 100 dB/s are likely (using USAF numbers).

> "3.8 Inner ear damage
> Noise can cause inner ear damage either by acute overload or by chronic high exposure, which leads to metabolic exhaustion. Examples for the first mechanism is impulsive noise of toy pistols, fire crackers etc. and military low altitude flight (MLAF) (MTR) noise. MLAF (MTR) noise is a danger for the inner ear if Lmax exceeds 115 dB(A) and/or the level increase exceeds 60 dB/s. In Germany, the percentage of inner ear pain in 12-17 year olds caused by MLAF noise in area with 150 m and 75 m military flights were 0.7% and 1.1% respectively. Children with inner ear pain after MLAF (MTR) noise had significantly elevated hearing thresholds as compared with controls (Ising et Rebentisch, 1993). The percentage of convulsions in babies after extreme MLAF noise exposure reported by parents from 75 m areas was found to be 0.17%. Six years later these children were found to have permanent hearing threshold shifts at high frequencies" ("Exposure and Effect Indicators of Environmental Noise", www.dfld.de/Downloads/IsingPaper.pdf)

EJ-2

Please take note of the permanent hearing damage found in young children with an Lmax of only 115 dBA. Note convulsions in babies. Note the rate of increase need only be 60 dB/s. Note that the lowest bogus USAF numbers provided in this DEIS show 120+ dBA. The areas below the MTRs have major environmental impacts from the alternatives yet the USAF has ignored the impact to this environment. No data is presented in the Draft EIS to compare alternatives concerning MTR maximum noise levels. Why?

The MTR noise Impacts are knowingly grossly understated by the USAF in the Draft EIS.

Why not show us all the actual noise numbers, including unfiltered maximums? Why not show us numbers at the MTRs floor and at the max speed (100' AGL and 500' AGL and 650 kts)? Our houses are at this 500' spot. Our families ride horses under these MTRs with their 100' AGL floors and almost Mach 1 speed limits. The old measure of average, filtered noise as calculated by the USAF for the past 30 years "may" show less that 65 dB, over a year, averaged but what is the peak, instantaneous noise for me riding my horse under the MTR when a pair of F-35 fly over me at 500' and 600 kts? Annoyance is only one metric. Where are the measures for structural damage and for immediate hearing loss, for peak noise? We are overflown while riding, working and walking under the MTRs. We are overflown at the 100' AGL number and air speeds are in the higher levels. Where is this data? How can we compare the various alternatives without data? Without data it is just guesswork by the USAF when selecting alternatives; A sham.

This EIS is disingenuous guesswork of the worst, most irresponsible kind.

Other recent US Military studies show more flawed USAF methodology. The 2009 US Navy report (Naval Research Advisory Committee Report on Jet Engine Noise Reduction) is concerned with jet noise (Their F-35 is a different version, but the Navy criticisms are methodology based. Aircraft type is not a factor) states it well:

> "Current mathematical models do not accurately predict noise levels."

"Update existing noise models to account for non-linear noise propagation and thrust vectoring affects, as recommended by the Air Force Working Integrated Product Team (WIPT)."

and on the weighted averages used by the USAF (note MTR floor is 100' AGL):

"Each part of the human body has a different resonant frequency, and received noise has both a frequency and pressure level component. Although humans hear primarily between 80 Hz to 6000 Hz, engine generated near-field acoustic pressure levels are non-linear and comprised of frequencies below 10 Hz to above 10,000 Hz. It must be noted that the impact on the human body when exposed to this wide spectrum of frequencies and pressure levels is not well understood." (near-field is 50' floor of the MTRs are 100') and concerning the accuracy / repeatability of F-35 noise tests:

"The Panel raises this concern because there have been two instances in which later measurements were made of both the F-35 and the F/A-18E/F, and differences of 4 dB and 2 dB, respectively, were measured. This shows that a single test, while an indicator of noise levels, cannot be construed as the true level. This variation could be caused by (at least) several contributing factors such as: test set up and execution, microphone placement, type, calibration, weather conditions, engine variability, etc."

and on low frequency noise (such as that produced by the F-35:

"Finally, there are areas of human response to noise for which there is a compelling need for more research and understanding. The impact of high-intensity, low-frequency sound (i.e., below 500 Hz), is not well understood. Studies in the 1960s focused entirely on subjective responses to low-frequency sound in a non-pure-tone environment, and of necessity, did not consider harmonic resonance features, or long-term effects on any organ. Likewise, the impact of long-term noise exposure on cognition – the ability to process, objective data – is not documented."

and:

"Those who have stood near an F-22 or F-35 at high power levels report uncomfortable sensations and believe their internal organs are moving, such as could be caused by low frequency noise. "

for the F-35:

"However, the noise power, watts per square meter, not just dB, generated by the F-35A is two times greater than that generated by the F/A-18 E/F. "

The F-35A is very close (by USAF numbers) to the 130 dB number for structural damage, and beyond the threshold of pain (according to the Draft EIS and many other sources) when flow in the MTRs flight regimen. The most recent (and only according to the USAF) study of modern aircraft flying in MTR regime shows that the F-35 is a danger to the environment below. Let me repeat:

"MLAF (MTR) noise is a danger for the inner ear if Lmax exceeds 115 dB(A) and/or the level increase exceeds 60 dB/s."

"Children with inner ear pain after MLAF (MTR) noise had significantly elevated hearing thresholds as compared with controls (Ising et Rebentisch, 1993). The percentage of convulsions in babies after extreme MLAF noise exposure reported by parents from 75 m areas was found to be 0.17%. Six years later these children were found to have permanent hearing threshold shifts at high frequencies" - Ising ("Exposure and Effect Indicators of Environmental Noise", www.dfld.de/Downloads/IsingPaper.pdf)

The peak noise levels at take-off / landing are not revealed to us by the USAF in the Draft EIS nor is the full effect of low frequency noise. Peak noise in SUA is not revealed (see US Army comments below on the importance of peak noise). Why is this information not presented? NEPA requires "detailed information concerning significant environmental impacts". Where is this data? NO-24

For supersonic operations the Draft F-35 EIS provides disingenuous information, fails to include readily available information, and fails to use proper modeling tools. For example, CABoom is cited for Table HO 3.2–6 and this table purportedly shows sonic boom peak over pressures for direct overflight of F-16C, F-22, and F-35A at Mach 1.2. CABoom is a simplified boom prediction program for steady flight in the standard atmosphere, based on the method of H.W. Carlson. Key is the word "simplified". It dates from 1978.

The analysis program is dated, but worse the whole model used by the USAF is flawed. How? Well, in fact the F-35A does not fly in "straight and level flight" often. In fact it will be frequently maneuvering during training. What happens when it maneuvers? For sure not what is shown in Table HO 3.2–6. That table presents a false picture. It does not represent actual environmental conditions. It obscures significant environmental impacts. The use of this table in the Draft EIS, knowing it presents a false picture of true flight operations, borders on abuse by the USAF. The single sentence "Maneuvers can also affect boom amplitude, increasing or decreasing overpressures relative to those shown in Table HO 3.2–6" (HO-47) fails to change the overall impression by the USAF that the table is valid. This is disingenuous of the USAF.

Table HO 3.2–6 paints a false picture of the ground level environment (except to the limited extent of steady state flight). Why was it included? Why not include the higher "focused boom" pounds per square foot (psf) numbers? These numbers would be more reflective of the significant environmental consequences for the various alternatives and would help to make comparisons between them.

In the Draft EIS and noted in small print in the foot notes of Table HO 3.2–6 is:

> "Note: Over pressures presented reflect straight and level flight at constant speed; aircraft maneuvers may generate localized "focus booms" with over pressures of 2 to 5 times the magnitude of the steady state sonic booms."

NO-25

So, according to this Draft EIS when maneuvering the F-35 will actually generate sonic boom pressures 2 to 5 times greater than shown in Table HO 3.2–6. That multiplier (2X - 5X) is significant (just imagine that this is your bank account we are discussing). Focused booms are limited in size but large in pressure.

Supersonic Transports were banned (in the USA and elsewhere, over land areas) partially due to the focused boom caused during acceleration up to Mach speed. This is a big deal, it cost SST builders and us tax payers billions of dollars. The booms caused a huge public outcry when tests were conducted by the USAF. Yet this focused boom ("superboom") problem is buried in a table footnote by the USAF; Why?

So why is this over pressure from a focused sonic boom significant? Why should it have been considered in the DEIS? After all it affects a small area? Two points, first, recent NASA studies show that the true range of overpressure is 2X to 10X times (not 2 to 5 times as alleged by the DEIS). Even the USAF gives higher numbers elsewhere in their literature (2X - 8X). Here are a couple of citations (there are many more available):

> "When a supersonic aircraft accelerates to its cruise speed, a focusing effect occurs that makes the sonic boom five to 10 times louder than its normal cruise sonic boom over a small region," - Edward Haering, NASA's Dryden Flight Research Center, CA, May 27, 2011

> ". . .Although the focused sonic booms have the potential to be five to eight times greater than normal sonic booms, . . ." - Federal Register Volume 66, Number 53 (Monday, March 19, 2001) NOA A & USAF

> Focused sonic booms may be of much greater intensity than unfocused booms and are typically generated by fighter aircraft in "dogfight" maneuvers. - AFESC TR 88-14, NERC-88/29, June 1988, EFFECTS OF AIRCRAFT NOISE AND SONIC BOOMS ON DOMESTIC ANIMALS AND WILDLIFE: A

LITERATURE SYNTHESIS

The second point is, that this over pressure on the ground is not estimated, nor charted, nor talked about in the DEIS. It is a significant event to the environment below the aircraft (under the supersonic SUA). Yet no analysis by alternative is available. Some of the land impacted in the Holloman alternatives belong to private owners, some to Native Americans, some to the Military and some to the USFS.

Volume 2 of the Draft F-35 EIS provides Table B–6. "Possible Damage to Structures From Sonic Booms". This table shows that practically all parts of a structure will sustain some damage if sonic boom overpressure exceeds 10 Pounds Per Square Foot (psf). Indeed the Table goes no higher in psf - 10 psf is the maximum that the USAF shows.

The USAF in the Draft EIS won't show us data, so let's do the math ourselves and see how big the impact to the environment is; From Table HO 3.2–6, an F-35A at 10,000' AGL the straight and level sonic boom impact on the ground is 5.4 psf. Now let's have that F-35 do real world training: turn, accelerate, etc., that is, conduct normal maneuvers. The base overpressure is 5.4 psf, using the low Draft EIS USAF multiplier of 2X, the pressure experienced by a structure or a person on the ground will be 10.8 psf. Looking at Table B–6. "Possible Damage to Structures From Sonic Booms" we see that damage will likely occur at this level (and this is the lowest possible multiplier - X2).

Now let's take the higher possibility. At a 5X multiplier the overpressure will be 27 psf. Table B–6 does not go this high, but presumably damage would be severe to any structures and other environmental areas (wildlife, cattle, horses, historic structure, etc. we don't know, there is no analysis). NO-25 cont'd

Now taking the NASA high number of 10X, the over pressure would be 54 psf. WOW a BIG number, big damage! Please see my comments on sonic booms as weapons (below).

These focused sonic booms are major environmental events on the ground, whether it is 10+ or 50+ psf.

This is not news to the USAF. They have the tools to show us the likely high damage areas. They know about focused booms. Here is a news snippet from 1965 over 40 years ago:

> "An aviation authority has warned that pilots will not be able to avoid occasional "superbangs" perhaps five to ten times more powerful than usual. The authority, B.K.O. Lundberg, director general of the Aeronautical Research Institute of Sweden, says, "Thus, if the average intensity is allowed to be 1.5 pounds per square foot. booms will frequently damage buildings, break windows and shock people."" -- LOOK / AUGUST 27, 1965

The Draft EIS provides copious data, and analyzes the environment around Holloman AFB and other airbases in minute detail, with no less than thirteen (13) color, detailed maps showing noise impacts, yet the lands under the SUAs / MTRs lack any detail data whatsoever. The SUA / MTR airspace overlays more land area than these airport areas yet there is less information. Why? Where is the data for focused booms / peak noise for the MTRs / SUA?

The legacy (old 1970 - 1990 based) methods used by the USAF in the Draft EIS show data for the land below the SUA that is misleading; the "average filtered" number in dB is low (62 dB CDNL according to the Draft EIS), and the booms per year average daily "only" one or two. These measurement numbers paint a false "rosy" picture of the environment under the sonic SUA . In fact the math we did above shows a real possibility for severe (over 10 psf) focused sonic booms (the same kind that got Supersonic Transports (SST) banned in the USA). Yet the Draft EIS is largely silent about environmental measurements / impact; Why? The USAF now has modeling programs that correctly model focused sonic booms (BOOMap, etc.). The cost for modeling is low, why not provide us information? It takes only one 25 psf boom to cause significant damage on the ground and not just to structures. The cost to show accurate environmental consequences is minimal. None of this is addressed by the DEIS. No information is provided. NO-24 NO-26

The USAF assumes (if the assumptions are different, what are they? No information is provided. Why not?), in this Draft EIS, that all airspace is flown over equally, and thus an average (noise level, booms, pollution, etc.) is representative of the impact on the ground below. Twenty years ago perhaps this simplification was needed, as tools were not available to simulate actual usage patterns. Nowadays we have the tools, and the information is available. Here is information that the USAF chooses not to present in this Draft EIS; NO-26 cont'd

> ". . .Near the MOA edges, examination of radar track data has shown that the operations decrease at a linear rate (Lucas and Calamia 1994). This means that as pilots come within one to two miles of the edge of an airspace boundary, they turn back into the airspace to avoid accidentally going outside the agreed-to airspace boundaries." -- USAF

Why not use actual track data, rather than simplified averages (NOISEMAP) or the even less accurate uniform coverage assumption? The USAF knows that the "average" assumption is false.

Figure B–10. "Supersonic Flight Tracks in Supersonic Air Combat Training Airspace" shows clearly, again, that flight paths are not uniform over the SUA and that some underlying areas receive noise/pollution over and over while others receive none. An "average number" would not be meaningful for environmental analysis yet the USAF still uses them to describe noise in the environment below. MTRs for example, are very uneven in flight patterns due to factors such as structures being used as markers (or waypoints), or navigation aid intersection reuse, prominent landmarks, etc. the same land is overflow over and over. Using an "average number" does not reflect actual patterns on the ground and understates the environmental impact. The variations in noise for example, across the land below the SUA, are extreme and the "average numbers" presented by the USAF make a farce of the NEPA process. NO-24

I reiterate; The use of Table HO 3.2–6, by the USAF in this Draft EIS, knowing it presents a false picture of true flight operations, borders on fraud by the USAF. The single sentence "Maneuvers can also affect boom amplitude, increasing or decreasing overpressures relative to those shown in Table HO 3.2–6" fails to change the overall impression that the table is valid and pressure levels are going to be around a maximum of 5.4 psf for normal F-35 training operations.

How can we tell which alternatives and airspace management, minimizes environmental damage due to focused sonic booms? Based on what measurements? Where are the data and analysis that let us compare alternatives for the Special Use Airspace (SUA) where supersonic training is allowed? The data is readily available at minimal cost to the USAF yet not provided in the Draft EIS. The Public and the USAF need to see this information to make an informed consideration of alternatives. Where is it? NO-25

The misrepresentation of information is for the SUA / MTRs, areas remote to Holloman and Alamogordo. The people and environment that are affected are rural and poor (as stated in the EIS). Notice too that the misrepresentation underplays the impact to the environment since the DEIS leads the reader to believe that the sonic boom pressures are in the 5 psf range rather that the peak possibility of 50 psf. Also notice that the EIS provides no less than thirteen (13) color, detailed maps showing noise impact for the vicinity of airport operations and zero (0) maps for impact under SUA / MTRs. The land below much SUA / MTRs is owned by Private stakeholders, Tribes as well as various governmental agencies. There is little data from the USAF for the SUA despite the fact that the area below the sonic SUA may experience a higher psf impact than the areas documented by the nice color maps.

Not mentioned in the Draft EIS is the use of sonic booms as a weapon. This interest by the military shows the significant impact on the land below the SUA and the USAF's awareness of the impact. Both the USAF and the Israeli Air Force have investigated using sonic booms as weapons. The Israeli Air Force has used them in Gaza (03 November 2005 - http://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/middle-east/palestinians-terrorised-by-sonic-boom-flights-513697.html). Sonic booms are proven effective against undefended civilian populations where the random noise causes a variety of adverse reactions (just as it will on the undefended civilian population below the SUA and MTRs in the DEIS). Israel was investigated for war crimes for this use of sonic booms. In 2008 DARPA commissioned "Acoustic Mission Planning" software to allow booms to be used against an enemy force.

Subsonic noise methodology is also flawed. Data presented is disingenuous at best with more complete data presented in other, previous USAF EIS. In the Draft EIS the MTRs are characterized as (HO-178):

> "Six low-level MTRs would be used by the F-35A as primary use airspace, as shown in Tables HO 2.2–3 and HO 2.2–4; however, these airspace units represent only narrow corridors of airspace, which overlie only small portions of remote counties. No socioeconomic impacts are expected from the F-35A using these MTRs."

The statement "narrow corridors of airspace, which overlie only small portions of remote counties" is not factually correct. These are wide areas encompassing large areas of New Mexico and Texas. Some parts of the MTRs are 20 miles wide. This is NOT a "small portion". In addition, the USAF may fly at 100' and at 650 kts (at sound levels exceeding the pain threshold) in these areas. The quoted USAF statement above is disingenuous and provides false information to the reader. By doing so it underplays the impacts to the environment (including socioeconomic impacts). This is counter to the intent (and rules) of NEPA. Please correct the lie. Give widths for the MTRs, give total area for the MTRs compared to airport areas and SUA. Show the actual picture of environmental impact. SO-14

Page HO-46 purports to show estimated noise for the F-35 at 1,000' AGL and 475 kts to be 120 dB SELr .

Another 2008 USAF study shows an average, filtered sound level of 121 dBA at 1,000' AGL with an airspeed of only 160 kts ("Joint Communications Release JSF Program Office & Lockheed Martin, Subject: F-35 Acoustics Based on Edwards Air Force Base Acoustics Tests", Date: April 2009) NO-30

Another 2008 USAF EIS shows a SEL of 121 dBA at 1,000 AGL and an airspeed of 500 kts. (Eglin AFB EIS Table 7-10 (see below)

Note that the estimated SELr in the DEIS is lower than the SEL number during testing at Edwards. The Eglin data is different yet. Which is the truth? Why? How can this be? How can we believe any of this data? How much is faked to get a specific out come?

As I pointed out above the USAF historically assumes that all airspace is flown over equally, and thus an "average noise" is representative of the impact on the ground below. In 1970 or even 1990 perhaps this simplification was needed, as tools were not available to simulate actual usage patterns and the noise at ground level did not approach the threshold of damage to human hearing. Times have changed.

The USAF uses modeling programs such as NOISEMAP or MR_NMAP (Lucas and Calamia, 1996). The idea is to model noise in the special use airspace. MR_NMAP uses two primary noise models to calculate the noise exposure: track operations and area operations. Track operations are for operations that have a well-defined flight track (such as MTRs with narrow tracks (NOTE: these are not the MTR around Holloman with their 20 mile widths), aerial refueling, and target bombing tracks). Area operations are for activities that do not have well defined tracks but occur within a defined area (such as air-to-air combat within a MOA). NO-26

These USAF programs are not available to the public. They are open to abuse and can easily present an incorrect picture of the environment. For example the floor of an MTR may be raised from 100' AGL to 500' AGL or even 1,000' and the average-filtered noise levels on the ground will change dramatically. Further, by using uniform flight coverage assumptions (see the quote above) rather than the more difficult actual flight patterns, average-filtered noise level will be many times less than the actual noise. For the F-35 this could be a disaster in the environment below the MTRs. Why? Because the peak values will damage hearing or cause pain. Averages don't show this problem. In the Draft EIS the USAF fails to divulge the parameters they used in the analysis. Why? Did they use the MTR floors at the FAA listed height of 100' AGL or at some higher number? How high? How about assumptions on flight paths? Did they just average over the large widths of these Holloman MTRs or did they use the routes actually flow? Were the assumptions the same for Luke, Tucson and Boise or different? If NO-24 different what were they? For us to understand the few numbers presented we need to know the assumptions made by the USAF across all the alternatives. Recall that the F-35 generates around 130 dBA (filtered) at 500' and 500 kts. There is significant environmental impact.

Average numbers are reflective of the environment only in cases where there is relatively limited variation in values. Read any statistics book for proof (or see the DOD suggested practices or read my Army quote, both below). As the variance goes up the average is less meaningful. At the extreme it is practically meaningless. That is why the DOD recommends the use of three noise-measuring metrics: a measure of the highest sound level occurring during an individual aircraft overflight, a combination of the maximum level of that single event with its duration and a description of the noise environment based on the cumulative flight activity. Yet the Draft relies heavily on average numbers with no other metric supplied for the 100' to 500' MTRs. Recently (2006) the US Military (Army) conducted an investigation on how to improve noise measurement and its effects on people. They had comments that summarize the problems with average numbers as used by the USAF in this DEIS, especially as they are used under the SUA / MTRs, where noise levels vary greatly. The USAF has had this information since 2006. I'll let the Army illustrate the problem with the USAF DEIS numbers: NO-24 cont'd

> "Long-term-average noise level does not adequately guide land use. As an example, 100 events of 142 dB peak pressure level yield an annualized CDNL of 62 dB, which is supposedly suitable for all land uses. However, a peak level of 142 dB is so loud that it would almost certainly cause a strong negative public reaction, and in fact exceeds the 140 dB threshold for human hearing damage (Military Standard [MIL-STD]-1474D; Occupational Safety and Health Administration [OSHA] 1983). " - US Army, 2007 "An Investigation of Community Attitudes Toward Blast Noise", Engineer Research and Development Center, Construction Engineering Research Laboratory, 2902 Newmark Dr., Champaign, IL 61822-1076

The threshold of pain is between 120 and 130 dB. Yet this pain metric information is missing from the SUA / MTR analysis. Why? Is the pain threshold not significant data for comparing alternatives? How do the various alternatives compare with respect to pain on the population beneath the MTRs? How many people are expected to experience pain each year in the Holloman alternative? The Boise Alternative? How about in Arizona. Where is the data? This aircraft is different than others in the DEIS, it is noisy to the point of pain in the MTRs. NO-33

Why does Table B–1. "Representative Maximum Sound Levels" (Lmax) fail to show the sound levels for the F-35A? Are actual measurement numbers not available?? How is informed consideration of alternatives possible without data? Lmax numbers are critical to understanding the environmental impact of the F-35 and critical to comparison of alternatives! NO-24

Why does Table B–2. "Representative Sound Exposure Levels" (SEL) fail to show the sound levels for the F-35A? Are actual measurement numbers not available?? How is informed consideration of alternatives possible without data?

The USAF has presented more complete F-35 noise numbers in other USAF documents and has chosen to keep them out of this Draft EIS. Here is Table 7-10 from a 2008, Environmental Impact Statement (Eglin Air Force Base, Florida): NO-30

[2] Power setting metrics vary from engine to engine.

The noise for the F-35 in this data is different yet from other USAF information; at 300' AGL it is 133 dBA average, filtered SEL, At 500' it is 129 dBA. Recall the floor of the Holloman MTR is 100' AGL and the threshold of pain is 120 dB - 130 dB. Let me again insert the most recent study for hearing damage impacts to the areas under MTR; The 1999 Study (www.dfld.de/Downloads/IsingPaper.pdf) which states:

> "3.8 Inner ear damage
> Noise can cause inner ear damage either by acute overload or by chronic high exposure, which leads to metabolic exhaustion. Examples for the first mechanism is impulsive noise of toy pistols, fire crackers etc. and military low altitude flight (MLAF) noise. MLAF (MTR) noise is a danger for the inner ear if Lmax exceeds 115 dB(A) and/or the level increase exceeds 60 dB/s. In Germany, the percentage of inner ear pain in 12-17 year olds caused by MLAF noise in area with 150 m and 75 m military flights were 0.7% and 1.1% respectively. Children with inner ear pain after MLAF (MTR) noise had significantly elevated hearing thresholds as compared with controls (Ising et Rebentisch, 1993). The percentage of convulsions in babies after extreme MLAF noise exposure reported by parents from 75 m areas was found to be 0.17%. Six years later these children were found to have permanent hearing threshold shifts at high frequencies"

The powerful engine of the F-35 presents new hazards. Old studies are inadequate and old methods of analysis work poorly. Old noise data for other aircraft will not project in models correctly for this aircraft / engine. From a single flyover this airplane may cause permanent hearing damage in children and pain to anyone below it. The 130 dB quoted may damage structures. Why is this data and analysis of maximum noise excluded from the Draft EIS ? Shouldn't these high noise numbers trigger a more robust data collection and analysis over the SUA / MTR? Instead it looks to have triggered a cover up of the facts. Where is this data and analysis? I just see broad assurances and "average filtered" numbers - estimated numbers at that. This Draft EIS is a bad joke. Both the spirit and the rules of NEPA should be followed. This work is beneath the USAF.

EJ-2

The DEIS provides very little information on a large portion (50% +/-) of the total land area affected. This is the area underlying the SUAs. This includes the Military Training Routes (MTR).

NO-24

The Draft EIS fails to divulge MTR widths. Why? MTRs allow flight at 100' AGL, at just below the speed of sound. MTRs are used primarily for low-level navigational flight training and transitions from one airspace to another. Page 2-20 of the Draft EIS states that (I added emphasis):

> "F-35A low-level flight training on an MTR is generally at 500 feet above ground level."

No peak sound metrics, no discussion of effects on the ground to the environment, no discussion of MTR use for transitions rather than training (which increases the flights in the MTR). These MTR routes cover vast areas both on the ground and in the air with perhaps 1,800 flights a year for just the F-35. This activity is not minor. Why do we have no peak data? How many people under the MTRs are affected in each alternative? To what extent? Why is the 100' / 500' AGL peak noise level not provided in the Draft EIS?

How can we make an informed consideration of alternatives when most of the land area affected by F-35 training activities is without any significant noise data about the impact to the environment?

Contrast the lack of data for the huge land areas of SUA & MTRs against the vast data for the small amount of land area around Holloman AFB itself. The Draft EIS provides no less than thirteen (13) full color, detailed maps showing noise impacts for the vicinity of airports and zero (0) maps for impact under SUA / MTR. The SUA have more area affected yet have no detailed information about peak noise. Why?

Noise in the vicinity of Holloman (cities in general) as noted in the Draft EIS have a high background noise level. This makes the variances and rate of level (dB) increase in data relativity small. The environment below the SUA, away from the cities (Holloman, Alamogordo) is more problematic, the noise levels are very low normally, often below 30 dBA (USAF). Average numbers such as Ldnmr (onset rate-adjusted day–night average sound level) should be backed up with measures of standard deviation and maximum / minimums and the rate of level increase should be addressed (hearing damage sited above) at the least. We need this data for the alternatives.

In HO 3.2.2.2 "Airspace Environmental Consequences" the Draft EIS states:

> "F-35A being somewhat louder than the other aircraft that currently use the airspace."

This statement by the USAF is false by their own analysis. The F-35A is an aircraft that at best has high noise levels. Table HO 3.2–5 purports to show comparisons of noise between aircraft at 1,000' AGL. The noise for the F-35A is a guess (to quote the Draft EIS);

> "The noise levels for the F-35A operating at high speeds were based on an empirical curve fit from the noise data contained in the NoiseFile database for these high-speed operations ."

NO-1

Actual levels may be higher than shown (see USAF Table 7-10 above). The USAF Table shows the F-35A to be more than twice as loud as any other aircraft flown at the altitudes/regimes planned for the F-35A. Again, stating that the F-35 is "somewhat louder" is misrepresentation to a fault. Why say it? Why not state that the F-35 is significantly louder than the aircraft it replaces? That would be a truthful statement. It does not help the analysis to mislead (lie) to the reader.

The 2007 Army report illustrates the problem of careless statistic use - averages in particular. It shows the fallacy of just using CDNL or even using the better metric Ldnmr. I'll let the Army close this part of my comments with yet another illustration of the flawed USAF methods:

> "Another difficulty is that impact assessment results depend strongly on the selection of the time period over which the noise is averaged. The method ignores any effect of the timing of noise events; there is no difference between 10,000 noise events spread over 1 year or all occurring in 1 day. An underlying assumption behind this method is the "equal energy hypothesis," which states that the noise is accounted for by averaging the total SE over the assessment period, regardless of the magnitude of any individual noise event. This means, for example, that the effect of 1000 events of a given sound exposure level (SEL) is taken to be the same as that of 1 event containing 1000 times as much sound exposure (30 dB greater SEL)." - Same Army Report 2006 as above

USAF - please furnish complete metrics for MTR / SUA noise, both sonic and subsonic, peak and average, filtered and unfiltered. Please let us compare the alternatives by utilizing more than average filtered numbers. Please include data for sound peak noise including those peak numbers at the floor of the MTRs. Please include real, actual data not guesses. Please furnish this data for each alternative so we can make an informed review. Please give us your assumptions.

Chaff has been excluded in the Draft EIS. Will chaff be added later after the F-35 has been based somewhere? If yes, is this an attempt to bypass the NEPA process so chaff may be slid in under the radar? If chaff is not used will other electronic countermeasures be used? If yes do these have any potential to disrupt civilian communications, networks, satellite etc. infrastructure? The DEIS alternatives have large variances in communications infrastructure. Electronic interference in one alternative has much larger impact than in another. We need data to understand the impacts and then to compare alternatives. In scoping we asked for this information (impact to communications infrastructure). No data has been furnished. DO-13

Flares; The DEIS fails to discuss several environmental issues surrounding the planned use of flares. The failure to include data and analysis is significant and affects our ability to make reasoned choice among alternatives.

As described in Chapter 2, Section 2.4.5, and in Section HO 2.2.2, the F-35A would use MJU-61/B defensive flares. The Draft EIS provides no information on the total weight of this flare. Page 2-23 states that:

> "After a flare is deployed, residual materials fall to the ground." and misleading partial flare debris weights are given. The statement sounds so innocent. If only a few thousand were being planned perhaps the measurements for pounds dumped onto the ground would not be important (at least for USAF installations). But the plan is to dump between 26,400 - 132,000 flares each year for perhaps 30 years. This represents a lot of "residual material" to " fall to the ground". But where is the information on this? DO-14

Since the USAF has not provided us any data on "residual material" weight, I found some information from another military source. The total weight listed for the MJU-61/B defensive flare is 195 grams with 120 g of explosive. Assuming all the explosive burns we are left with about 75 g of "residual material" dumped on the ground (ignoring duds) for every flare used. This estimated weight will be somewhat high because not all will be dumped, but it gives an estimate (since the USAF has failed to provide one). So for 26,400 flares (lowest amount called for) this would be 0.165 pounds for each flare x 26,400 flares = 4,356 pounds of "residual material" dumped on private / public/ military land each year. Note that Congress, USAF, our President, the USPS, etc. use ten years as a suitable period to look over for comparisons, so for a 10 year period the dumped materials would equal 43,560 pounds (for the lowest flare use). For the highest use the number is 217,800 pounds dumped. In tons this is 21.8 tons and 109 tons dumped.

The Draft EIS does not show us the correct information (or any information), it shows us no data at all. Why not?

The dumped material will fall upon Private, Tribal, County and federally owned land.

What is dumped? The USAF states in the Draft EIS that it will be; plastic, nylon, silicone foam,17 inch graphite fabric. I believe that the USAF position on this dumped material is (paraphrasing) (from other USAF EIS) "It's not that bad just ignore the stuff" or "It's only 2 ounces per square furlong so who cares?". This "analysis" may work for their land holdings or even for the USFS but most private land owners take pride in keeping trash off their land. Those with cattle and horses try to keep items such as plastic, nylon, silicone foam, 17 inch graphite fabric away from their livestock as it can prove fatal to them when ingested. Otero County has regulations against dumping. A citizen dumping 109 tons of plastic on County land would be prosecuted. What are the actual numbers for the dumped trash so we can compare alternatives? How long will this material remain in the environment? Why have the numbers not been provided? This dumping is a significant environmental issue. DO-15

While the USAF failed to address flare debris in the DEIS, they have addressed it internally (and then they failed to reported it to us in the DEIS). A USAF report about flares states;

> "Other concerns include risks of injury from dud flares, which can be severe but have a low probability of occurrence. There is also some concern that dud flares qualify as a hazardous waste. Initiator cartridges used with some flares still contain chromium and, in some cases lead, which are hazardous air pollutants under the Clean Air Act. Potential impacts on biological resources are primarily related to fire, but there is DO-14

> some concern that burning flares might impair the vision of some animals. Although litter from flare debris is less than with chaff use, it may be a concern in certain pristine areas." --- "TECHNICAL REPORTS ON CHAFF AND FLARES, REPORT NO. I-, REVIEW OF AVAILABLE DATA", U.S. Air Force, Headquarters Air Combat Command, Langley Air Force Base, Virginia DO-14 cont'd

None of these, known, USAF concern areas were addressed (or even mentioned) in the Draft EIS. Why not? How can we make a reasoned choice among alternatives with hidden data and no analysis?

As mentioned above in the noise area of my comments, the USAF often uses "average numbers" to describe the environmental impact to land below a SUA. The logic goes; The SUA is flown over uniformly and therefore stuff dumped in the air by the USAF aircraft must uniformly cover the ground. This simplistic analysis is quick, easy, and presents the lowest possible level of environment damage. It is almost certainly incorrect. Aircraft in training tend to follow relativity fixed corridors. The pilots use the best grid coordinates or the best landmark, or best navigational aides etc. They try to avoid SUA edges since flying out of bounds is not good. In other words human factors make a sham of the "average number" logic. The USAF knows that this is true (see USAF information below) and they know that the average number data is flawed, yet they often use the flawed data anyway as it puts the best face on the environmental impact. The "likely" flight tracks are readily available and it would be easy to show the locations of the areas that are overflow often (and those that are not). From this data we could see the environmental impact from dumping 100 tons of trash on the ground in a small area, and we could evaluate the various alternatives. It would let us see where the 200,000 pounds of trash is likely to be dumped. The old USAF answer has often been given in "ounces per acre average" which is a poor measure and does not reflect the damage to the environment. The data for actual airspace use is cheap to acquire (even cell phone and big trucks have GPS tracking these days) and easy to analyze. Why isn't it offered? Is 200,000 pounds of plastic trash too small an amount?

To repeat the USAF information (left out of the Draft EIS) about land coverage; DO-15

> ". . .Near the MOA edges, examination of radar track data has shown that the operations decrease at a linear rate (Lucas and Calamia 1994). This means that as pilots come within one to two miles of the edge of an airspace boundary, they turn back into the airspace to avoid accidentally going outside the agreed-to airspace boundaries."

The Draft EIS falsely presents a picture of an inconsequential environmental impact from flares. The Draft EIS quickly transitions from flare debris in general to dangers from falling 0.33 oz. fare pieces without addressing the magnitude of debris. How can such a major area be ignored by "accident"? Again an "error" is made by the USAF and that error understates an important environmental issue. Because we have no data we cannot compare alternatives, nor look at mitigation. The long term use of a large number of flares over public and private land has environmental consequences that should not be glossed over as was done in the Draft EIS.

The USAF in the Draft EIS asserts (page HO-90) that the flare failure rate (based on range clean up, no details for this study given) is 0.01 percent. In other studies the USAF (2001) has discussed these same flares, presenting different numbers. For example (from USAF on MJU-61/B defensive flares):

> "The estimated one percent malfunction rate for defensive training flares is based on typical malfunctions."
> and again
> "While the possibility of a dud flare cannot be discounted, such failures are rare (less than 1 percent)." SA-10

Other sources suggest that the failure rate is less than 1% and more than zero (The Quality Control in manufacturing flares mandates a reliability of 99 percent (assuming a confidence level of 95 percent)). So while the 0.01 percent failure rate stated in the Draft EIS falls within the range indicated it portrays a higher reliability than other sources in the USAF. The Draft EIS data comes from "range cleanup" rather than a proper study. The number used in the Draft EIS is very low and strains creditability. I suggest that the USAF planners review this number further and provide information to show it is a valid number. SA-10 cont'd

Let's look at consequences of mis-information about flare reliability. Taking a more reasonable number of 0.3 percent failure rate (still a low rate) changes the scope of environmental consequences for flare use. For example assuming a 0.3 percent failure rate, the use of 26,400 flares would result in 80 failures a year, for 132,000 flares there are 396 failures. Using our ten year period the numbers are 800 to 3,960 failed flares. These failed flares increase the risk of fire and of potential fatal injuries from falling dud flares and dud flares on the ground.

The Draft EIS fails to discuss dud flares dangers (whether for 8 or 800 flares they pose a risk). The Draft EIS provides the generic (paraphrasing) "call someone if your kids find one" kind of advice. This is an unfortunate "oversight" (?) by the USAF. Again the USAF has better information, they just failed to report it to us in the DEIS. A USAF report about flares states;

> "A dud flare on the ground has a hazard potential and should only be handled by trained explosive ordnance disposal personnel. While the component could be ignited, it is improbable that it would spontaneously ignite, or ignite under subtle stimulus such as stepping on it. Normally, the material would only respond to an external heat source of sufficient temperature to cause combustion." and "A program of education of the public and, especially, children was noted as desirable by the public during scoping. " -- ("TECHNICAL REPORTS ON CHAFF AND FLARES, TECHNICAL REPORT NO. 6, FLARE FIRE RISK ASSESSMENT", U.S. Air Force, Headquarters Air Combat Command Langley Air Force Base, Virginia) SA-11

In the DEIS this environmental impact and the safety issues surrounding flares seem to be understated. Why? If flares are explosive devices should this not be stated in the Draft EIS? Should education for children be mentioned? Flares are to be deployed over private holdings and public lands, at least in some alternatives. What about firefighter safety during wildfires in the areas below the SUA? How can we make a reasoned choice among the alternatives with hidden data and no analysis?

Flares cause fires. The draft EIS states:

> "Flare Use. As described in Chapter 2, Section 2.4.5, and in Section HO 2.2.2, the F-35A would use MJU-61/B defensive flares. These flares are similar to the flare types used by legacy aircraft such as the F-16s. Flares would only be used in airspace units approved for flare use and within authorized altitudes. For Holloman AFB, the standard minimum altitude for flares is 2,000 feet AGL. Flares typically burn out in approximately 500 feet, so altitude restrictions in SUA are established to ensure flare burnout before a flare reaches the ground or water under the training airspace. Holloman AFB does restrict flare use during high or extreme fire danger to minimize the risk of wildland fires."
> "Risks of starting a fire remain extremely small as long as the minimum altitude for flare deployment remains designated above 2,000 feet AGL and restrictions on flare use in extreme fire conditions continue to be established by a Command or base to reduce fire risks further. Flare use would be restricted to any authorized airspace where flare use is currently permitted. Restricting flare use to authorized airspace and altitudes reduces the potential for wildland fire ignition and spread. Periodic wildland fire is a regular occurrence in arid grassland ecosystems, and the vegetation and wildlife species are well-adapted to periodic fire, having mechanisms to escape and survive fire and to regenerate after fire. It is unlikely that flare use associated with the F-35A training would appreciably increase the incidence of wildland fires given measures in effect to reduce the potential for fire from flare use; therefore, impacts on vegetation and wildlife would be less than significant. Additional details on flares are presented in Chapter 2, Section 2.4.5." DO-16

The Draft EIS fails to mention how many days a year are likely to have restricted flare use and how this will affect the training mission (and the listed Alternatives) for the F-35. How will the lost days affect the mission?

The claim in the Draft EIS is: "Holloman AFB does restrict flare use during high or extreme fire danger to minimize the risk of wildland fires." Why is the analysis of lost training opportunity due to extreme fire danger not provided? The mountains (not the " arid grassland" mentioned above) of southern New Mexico where the SUA is located have experienced months of extreme drought over the course of the last ten years. There is detailed data available to show this. If the Draft EIS is not disingenuous when it claims, "Holloman AFB does restrict flare use" then this restriction will have a significant impact on operations at Holloman. For us to compare the various alternatives in the Draft EIS we need to see the data and the analysis. Why has this not been furnished? If the statement is not true or if Holloman only limits flare use under the very worst conditions we need to know that as well. How often does Holloman restrict flare use historically? Has it ever restricted flare use? Who decides when there is "high or extreme fire danger"? Is it the USFS or the County or the NOAA or the USAF Base Commander that decides? Who establishes the criteria for "extreme fire danger"? New Mexico has experienced huge losses due to wildfire over the past decade. The answers to the above questions will allow us to compare alternatives. Some alternatives may not have many fire hazards. Yet the Draft EIS provides no data and no analysis. Why not? Surely "up time" for range training with flares affects all the F-35 numbers. Down time due to "high or extreme fire danger " should be analyzed. How do we compare Tucson, Luke or Boise against Holloman? Are fires in the forests of New Mexico not important to the USAF? How can we make a reasoned choice among alternatives with hidden data and no analysis? DO-16 cont'd

The Draft EIS is misleading, disingenuous, about fire risks it states:

> "For Holloman AFB, the standard minimum altitude for flares is 2,000 feet AGL. Flares typically burn out in approximately 500 feet, so altitude restrictions in SUA are established to ensure flare burnout before a flare reaches the ground or water under the training airspace."

This leads a reasonable person to conclude that the 2,000' AGL altitude for flare release is adequate to prevent flare fires on the ground. But is this true? Is altitude the most important factor? The Draft EIS implies that it is. Does the USAF have better data that they choose not to share with us?

Yes the USAF has more complete information available from past studies. It has chosen to not use that information in the Draft EIS (Why?). It has again failed to include information. By omission they present an incorrect picture of fire risks from flares and understate the environmental consequences. The comprehensive flare study titled: "TECHNICAL REPORTS ON CHAFF AND FLARES, FLARE FIRE RISK ASSESSMENT, JANUARY 1995, Updated 1998, U.S. Air Force, Headquarters Air Combat Command, Langley Air Force Base, Virginia" states (emphasis added):

> ". . . Raising the minimum release altitude, another common operating procedure currently employed, appears to be more limited in its effectiveness in reducing fire risk." DO-17
> ". . . dispensing of flares are established to reduce the probability of unplanned ignitions. However, there are several reasons that a self-protection flare could reach the ground while burning:
> - The flare could be released at too low an altitude with inadequate surface clearance.
> - The flare could descend unexpectedly rapidly due to vertical shear or wind burst.
> - The flare could burn at an unexpectedly slow rate due to manufacture error.
> - The igniter could malfunction, causing the flare to ignite late in the air or fall to the ground as a dud and ignite later.
> - The flare could land on a dead tree top while still burning."

The above USAF report concludes, counter to the Draft EIS, that flare use can cause fires in the vegetation below and that the altitude of flare release is limited in effectiveness for fire prevention. How is it that the Draft EIS fails to discuss this? In fact the Draft EIS states the opposite. The Draft EIS fails to present this information and its impact. Which USAF statement is false? Fires are likely below the SUA for the various EIS Alternatives.

How can reasoned selection of alternatives be made with poor, incomplete or false information? Fires impact the environment. Much of the land under the Holloman SUA is private or Tribal. Much of the land is choked with fuels, ripe for wildfire (not just grassland as suggested by the Draft EIS). Some of the alternatives have a much different susceptibility to wildfires than others. Data and analysts is needed to understand alternatives. How do we compare Tucson, Luke or Boise against Holloman with respect to fires? We have no data. We have no analysis.

The Draft EIS does not state that there will be no fires, it just underplays the possibility. Indeed USAF studies indicate that fire is a real possibility (see alternative USAF January 1995 Report above where flare fires are discussed in detail). The Draft EIS fails to discuss response to wildfire. How will fires affect resources in the areas under the SUA? No discussion is provided, no data provided to measure the, in my view, inevitable wildfire environmental damage (air quality, erosion, wildlife, structure loss, etc.). Because there is no data, we cannot evaluate alternatives or mitigation. The Draft EIS seems to state "Just let it burn. The animals can find a way out.":

> "Periodic wildland fire is a regular occurrence in arid grassland ecosystems, and the vegetation and wildlife species are well-adapted to periodic fire, having mechanisms to escape and survive fire and to regenerate after fire." --DEIS

Fire from flares is caused by many factors not just altitude of release or flare failure rate (as suggested in the Draft EIS). For example, from the USAF report, wind shifts that cause a flare to fall rapidly, or undesirable parts of a flare burning, bringing fire to the ground. The fire risk is well understood and real yet the Draft EIS fails to address fire in any meaningful way. Where are the plans for firefighting. Who fights the fires? Is it the USAF plan to let the County Fire Departments or Tribe do the firefighting? Our just let the fire burn as suggested in the DEIS statement above? Will the USAF provide support to these departments? Where is the assessment of the fire risk below the operating airspace? Where is the comparison information for alternatives? Why hasn't data been made public in the Draft EIS? What resources will be available for wildfire suppression under the SUAs? What time table for response to flare caused wildfire (hours, days, minutes)? How about losses to the public, who pays and how? Are there any plans for wildfire at all?

The USAF has poor history with flares and fires. The USAF "management controls" proposed in the Draft EIS have not been completely effective in flare fire prevention. Some recent examples showing the need to plan for fires include:

> Pinelands Fire burned 18,000 acres, destroying four homes, damaging 53 - "Pilot error, a lack of communication among key Air Force personnel and dangerous dry weather conditions all led to the massive fire in May that consumed thousands of acres in the South Jersey Pinelands, an Air Force Accident Investigation Board said today." "The board confirmed the quickly spreading fire was sparked on May 15 by a flare or flares dropped from F-16 Air Force Fighter jet on a "show of force" training maneuver over the Warren Grove Gunnery Range in Ocean County."

Damage Claims; The Draft EIS refers frequently to utilization of USAF procedures for recoup of losses from F-35 activities. The Draft EIS indicates that this procedure is available to anyone to mitigate losses. Alternatives are based upon this assumption that claims may be used when damages occur. For example on page HO-48;

> "If a person feels that his or her property has been damaged by sonic booms caused by aircraft based at Holloman AFB, he or she should contact the Holloman AFB Public Affairs Office to initiate a claim." and on page HO-41 "Any claims from Air Force–related damage would begin by contacting the Holloman AFB Public Affairs Office with details of the claim. The Air Force would then investigate to establish the exact nature and extent of any damage."

DO-18

By including the USAF claim process in the Draft EIS the USAF indicates that this is a valid part of the Draft EIS and is part of the consideration of alternatives. Further the claims process is supplemental to many areas such as losses from fire or sonic boom damage (just file a claim the USAF implies). However, the Draft EIS does not indicate cost information for alternatives, or numbers projected for claims. Nor how well the process has worked in the past for the various alternatives. Nor how the process is monitored for Environmental Justice or any justice for that matter. The Draft EIS provides no data for evaluation of the EIS Alternatives and the Claims Process.

The implication of the statements such as the one on page HO-48 is that the USAF will fully and fairly compensate for losses. This is not true (based on historical data) and creates a false impression for the reader. Further since no data is presented we cannot compare the alternatives in the DEIS.

The records available from the USAF show a different picture than that implied in the Draft EIS. The data available shows that actual payments for claims are less than 15% of the total amount claimed. Or 85% of the claim amounts are not deemed legitimate. That is a good number to save the USAF money. For example, from 1959 to 1970 (only data available to the public), the Air Force paid only $1.7 million dollars in structural damage claims out of $30.6 million dollars in total claimed, a paltry 6% (or 94% of the claims were rejected!). Furthermore, the Air Force paid only $128,000.00 in claims against actual claims of $900,000.00 for animal damage, or 14% (86% of the claims were rejected!). Of claims against damage to chickens, horses, and cattle, only $21,500.00 against $144,000.00 in claims, or 6.7%.

How can a reject rate of 85 to 90% be considered as an available remedy to losses by the public? Worse is the impact on the poor and minorities. Why don't we have data from the USAF?

The NEPA in part is concerned with an agency's "disproportionately high and adverse human health or environmental effects of its programs, policies, and activities on minority populations and low-income populations in the United States". In my view the USAF "claim system" is ripe for disproportionately high discrimination against low-income and minorities. They are the group most affected by the red tape and high court costs. Note that the area below MTR IR-134/195 is one of the areas "disproportionately" affected. The DEIS states:

> ". . . however, noise levels would increase substantially under the F-35A scenarios as compared to baseline conditions. IR-134/195 is estimated to overlie disproportionately minority and low-income populations as compared to the counties as a whole included beneath the MTR. With an increase in noise levels from 49 dB DNLmr under baseline conditions up to as high as 56 dB DNLmr under Scenario H5, disproportionately high and adverse impacts on minority and low-income populations may be expected from F-35A training on IR-134/195. "

EJ-3

The USAF has refused to show that it is not discriminating in its claims processing by releasing current data (I have asked). We must assume that current data would be similar to that above or worse. We must assume that current data would show discrimination against these populations (otherwise why keep is secret?). In addition, the claims process is lengthy (the USAF time lines for responses is long, months), the applicant must complete a complex form. After a long wait the claim is often denied. The USAF then notifies the claimant that they are denied but that they may file suit against the USAF in Federal Court. The claimant has no arbitrator or recourse save spending a great deal of money on the Federal Courts.

Effectively this process eliminates low-income and many minorities from the claim process. The USAF knows this (data is available to them since the 1970s) and uses the process to limit their costs. I ask that the USAF produce information showing that the claims process is more than a sham. The data for each of the DEIS alternatives might show the system is working and provide a comparison between the alternatives. Until the USAF process is shown by performance numbers to be more than just empty words it should be removed from consideration in the alternatives. Without information or data it is not a valid part of the Draft EIS. By including it a false picture is portrayed of the environmental impact of the various alternatives, especially for those unable to utilize the courts. The USAF operates the claims process in secret, no public oversight, and with no watch dog (except the USAF itself) to insure fairness. With the data and analysis of claims history we could see the environmental and cost impacts in each alternative. This could be a significant factor in alternative comparisons. The costs for claims could be significant and should be compared. EJ-3 cont'd

In talking about the claims process, in response to my comments, please don't use the standard USAF answer from other EISs: NP-8

"Each claim will be considered fully and fair settlements made where there is reason to believe that the Air Force caused or contributed to the loss or damage."

That answer is not responsive to the question asked.

The safety risk analysis in the EIS is not based on facts. The F-35 is a brand new aircraft, incorporating new technologies, with no historical safety data records. It should be noted that this aircraft is currently undergoing operational readiness testing and evaluation. Major issues have been found in its engines, software systems, landing gear, etc., which have caused an unexpected three year delay in operational readiness and production. The Draft EIS simply guesses/assumes that operational readiness will be achieved, and makes the statement that history shows that mishap rates of all types of aircraft will decrease the longer the aircraft is operational, as flight crews and maintenance personnel learn more about the aircraft's capabilities and limitations. It then somehow concludes: SA-12

"there would be no anticipated increase in safety risks associated with aircraft mishaps."

How is this conclusion reached?

The Draft EIS has many pages devoted to the impact of noise on schools. All of this information is for the urban areas. The State of New Mexico recognizes that parents may teach their children at home. Below the SUA and especially the MTR there are legitimate home schools, churches, church camps (with schools), riding schools, etc.. The data for these school locations is available. In the Daft EIS I see no data or analysis for the alternatives for these schools/children. Are they excluded from the Draft EIS? If the environmental impacts to some schools are excluded while other schools are included what is the criteria for the exclusion decision. Does the exclusion of a significant portion of rural children's schools fall along income or racial lines or perhaps religious lines? Why are church schools under the MTRs not shown? In scoping we ask for information about this, so alternatives could be compared. Where is the data? How does each alternative compare with respect to the rural home/church schools?

From my scoping letter for the DEIS: EJ-2

"Noise as low as 40 dba impacts learning in children. The JSF will exceed this limit (many times over) during normal operations (but especially at the low altitudes in SUA and MTRs). In the Southern Sacramento Mountains many children are home schooled. Many do not have air conditioning and the windows are open. There are also many low-income families. The Federal Interagency for Aviation Noise (FICAN) has conducted studies that correlate high noise levels from aircraft to disruptions of learning (FICAN, 2000). Given that children have physiological and behavioral characteristics that make them more vulnerable than adults to negative effects of noise, special consideration has to be given to analysis of noise over schools, churches, camps and over families that home school their children. The USAF has admitted that special risks to children are anticipated in the form of increased difficulty in learning at schools impacted by F-35 operations. The noise levels have the potential to interrupt speech and hinder the learning process in classrooms. For any schools, home schools or daycares under the MTRs or the MOAs, the potential for disruptions in learning due to the aircraft noise would result in special risks to children. The elevated noise levels will create many other risk factors for children."

The USAF presents no data for these issues (number of daycares, number of home schools, number of school camps, churches, etc. and the impact each will experience from F-35 operations). Why not? What are the differences in the DEIS Alternatives? The SUA and MTRs have more land area than the Holloman AFB yet they have no data. Why? EJ-2 cont'd

The NEPA process provides for special evaluation of health risks to children. The Draft EIS fails to address the effects of peak noise below the SUA and MTR on children (per the NEPA process). HO 3.12.2.2 Airspace Environmental Consequences for example does not address the peak noise metric, nor the rate of level increase (dB/s) that have shown in studies to affect children disproportionately. This lack of data or analysis is difficult to understand. The USAF in the Draft EIS admits that the F-35 will exceed the threshold for affecting children (and that minorities will be disproportionately affected (under IR-134/195)) but they fail to give us an analysis. Where is the data and comparison for the alternatives? How does Holloman compare against the others? How many children under each alternative will be injured? Feel ear pain?

Recall that this F-35 aircraft is uniquely noisy at the altitudes flown in the MTRs, and that much of this noise is in the low frequency range, the range that affects structures, the range not reported on in the DEIS.

The analysis of vibration caused degradation of astronomical observatory operations (from flight operations as well as sonic and focused sonic booms) including physical damage to present observatories has been left out of the Draft EIS. This despite evidence of low frequency noise and sound levels of 130dB from F-35 operations and despite requests for data and analysis in the scoping process. The economic analysis does not include the loss to the community from future observatory basing in Otero County from loss in environmental quality from USAF operations. Why have these areas been left out of the alternatives comparison? NO-31 SO-15

The same lack of analysis exists for Historic Structures such as the Blue Water Lookout which underlay MTRs and experience over 130 dB (no filtering). The USAF states that there may be impact to structures, Page 3-9 of the DEIS:

"While certain frequencies may be of more concern than other frequencies, conservatively, only subsonic aircraft noise lasting more than 1 second above a sound level of 130 dB is potentially damaging to structural components (CHABA 1977).

And Table 7-10 in my comments above shows a filtered noise (where low frequency noise is understated by perhaps 10+ dB) level for the F-35 of 133 dBA SEL at 300' AGL and 129 dBA SEL at 500' AGL. Unfiltered noise will be significantly higher, perhaps 139 dB to 135 dB. Yet on page 3-24 of the DEIS the USAF states: CU-15

"Given the altitude and speed restrictions on flight training in MTRs and MOAs, historic buildings and structures beneath them also are not likely to be adversely affected. "

Again the Draft EIS understates the environmental impact. Again the statements in the DEIS are incorrect. In fact the structures (such as the historic Bluewater Lookout Complex, listed on aeronautical charts and used as a VFR checkpoint, located under IR-192/194, and on the top of a ridge therefore likely to be overflow at low altitude by aircraft) will be subjected to damaging low frequency noise at or over 130 dB (unfiltered). Why lie about it? What are the the actual unfiltered numbers for the ground areas around below the MTRs? Where are the data and analysis? We need to see how each alternative compares.

Page B-32 of the Draft EIS states: BI-5

"Three out of 43 cattle previously exposed to low-altitude flights showed a startle response to an F/A-18 aircraft flying overhead at 500 feet above ground level at 400 knots by running less than 10 meters. They resumed normal activity within one minute (Air Force 1994)."

The above quote is one of many summarizing impacts to livestock (cattle in this case). Every one of the studies cited (some are 40 years old!) use low noise levels to assess impacts. This is the worst kind of science, projecting results from a low sound environment to a high one. That is incorrect. The F-35A has a single, large, engine with very high thrust. It uses an airframe optimized for stealth, not aerodynamics making it still noisier in flight. USAF Table 7-10 shown above, summarizes noise levels for both the F-35 and the cited F/A-18:

F-35 at 500" AGL and 500 kts 129 dBA SEL
F/A-18 at 500" AGL and 500 kts 114 dBA SEL

BI-5 cont'd

The F-35 is more than three times as loud (15 dB) as the study aircraft. The F-35, unlike the cited study aircraft, reaches the threshold of pain in humans and may exceed the levels for immediate hearing damage. The other studies cited by the DEIS and purporting to show little or no impact to livestock are just as flawed (worse) as they use low noise levels not comparable to the F-35. The USAF is comparing apples to oranges. The studies do not reflect the extreme noise generated by this new aircraft. The F-35 is two to four TIMES noisier than the aircraft that the USAF is relying upon to show no or very limited impact on livestock. Why are the misleading studies used? Why mis-characterize the environmental impact? Again the DEIS understates the impact.

Note also that the socioeconomic impact to the MTRs are stated as:

"No socioeconomic impacts are expected from the F-35A using these MTRs."

This conclusion is reached based on flawed data and on lack of data. In Scoping Weed, NM area comments asked that data be provided for the socioeconomic impact under the MTRs for churches, recreational camps, ranching, horse camps, observatories and more. The F-35 is significantly noisier than previous aircraft that use these MTRs. We ask for data on the impact of the F-35 to our economy. Instead of information we get one sentence. An incorrect sentence at that. There will be an impact to these areas under the MTRs. Where is the data? We cannot look at alternatives in a vacuum of information!

SO-14

Please recall my request for copies of the EIS and any other correspondence released to the public. Further, I expect that my comments will be made part of the permanent record and that they will be included in the Final EIS.

Subject: Flawed Information on the F-35 aircraft; USAF "F-35A Training Basing Draft Environmental Impact Statement"

Dear Ms Ferguson,

I have concerns about the quantum leap upward in noise for the USAF's new F-35. This jump is so great that serious health problems are likely for those on the ground exposed to the aircraft's noise at low altitudes. I live in such an area. The "floor" of the airspace over me is 100 feet (500' from my house).

The USAF has shown that the new F-35, with is "largest in the world engine", will cause auditory pain as if flies overhead at lower altitudes. Numbers provided by the USAF show that in addition to ear pain there will be likely hearing loss for civilians living below the low level training areas. The F-35 is the first aircraft to threaten civilians in this manner. Why? Because the F-35 aircraft is two to four times nosier than the planes that it will replace. This huge change puts the F-35 in its own league with respect to noise.

The "F-35A Training Basing Draft Environmental Impact Statement" was released for review by the USAF on January 20, 2012. This Draft EIS is over 1,200 pages, but fails to provide any information about peak noise levels in the low altitude training areas. These are the levels that have been shown to cause auditory pain and hearing loss. The pain and loss is highest in young children and babies (as reported by the USAF). Earlier studies by the Air Force show the new F-35 to produce over 130 dB, enough to cause hearing pain and loss immediately. Yet the Draft EIS lacks any of this noise data for the low altitude training areas.

National Environmental Policy Act is a tool that helps prevent catastrophic environmental problems and the costs associated from a mistake. NEPA relies on an honest gathering and reporting of information. In the Draft EIS the information about the extreme noise levels has been withheld. This makes a mockery of the NEPA process and may allow a grave mistake.

The F-35 may provide a great deal of money to selected communities. The economic benefits may be great. I believe that we need to consider health impacts too, not just military expediency or the money to be made. The purpose of NEPA is to help us find the best of several alternatives. Perhaps money can be made and the military can train and we can minimize health risks, but we need the process to be honestly followed to know if this is possible. Failure to provide essential information practically insures failure.

Please review my attached comments and then contact the USAF and remind them of the proper steps for NEPA, including the requirement to gather and consider "detailed information concerning significant environmental impacts". I consider the study showing damage to babies and young children to be significant, but apparently the USAF does not.

Sincerely,

Subject: Flawed Information on the F-35 aircraft; USAF "F-35A Training Basing Draft Environmental Impact Statement"

Dear Senator Udall,

This jump is so great that serious health problems are likely for those on the ground exposed to the aircraft's noise at low altitudes. I live in such an area. The "floor" of the airspace over me is 100 feet (500' from my house).

This Draft EIS is over 1,200 pages, but fails to provide any information about peak noise levels in the low altitude training areas. These are the levels that have been shown to cause auditory pain and hearing loss. The pain and loss is highest in young children and babies (as reported by the USAF). Earlier studies by the Air Force show the new F-35 to produce over 130 dB, enough to cause hearing pain and loss immediately. Yet the Draft EIS lacks any of this noise data for the low altitude training areas.

National Environmental Policy Act is a tool that helps prevent catastrophic environmental problems and the costs associated from a mistake. NEPA relies on an honest gathering and reporting of information. In the Draft EIS the information about the extreme noise levels has been withheld. This makes a mockery of the NEPA process and may allow a grave mistake.

The F-35 may provide a great deal of money to selected communities. The economic benefits may be great. I believe that we need to consider health impacts too, not just military expediency or the money to be made. The purpose of NEPA is to help us find the best of several alternatives. Perhaps money can be made and the military can train and we can minimize health risks, but we need the process to be honestly followed to know if this is possible. Failure to provide essential information practically insures failure.

Please review my attached comments and then contact the USAF and remind them of the proper steps for NEPA, including the requirement to gather and consider "detailed information concerning significant environmental impacts". I consider the study showing damage to babies and young children to be significant, but apparently the USAF does not.

Sincerely,

Walt Coffman

Dear Mr. Pearce,

I have concerns about the quantum leap upward in noise for the USAF's new F-35. This jump is so great that serious health problems are likely for those on the ground exposed to the aircraft's noise at low altitudes. I live in such an area. The "floor" of the airspace over me is 100 feet (500' from my house).

The USAF has shown that the new F-35, with is "largest in the world engine", will cause auditory pain as if flies overhead at lower altitudes. Numbers provided by the USAF show that in addition to ear pain there will be likely hearing loss for civilians living below the low level training areas. The F-35 is the first aircraft to threaten civilians in this manner. Why? Because the F-35 aircraft is two to four times nosier than the planes that it will replace. This huge change puts the F-35 in its own league with respect to noise.

The "F-35A Training Basing Draft Environmental Impact Statement" was released for review by the USAF on January 20, 2012. TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

As a citizen of the United States, and a resident living 6 miles north east of Pinon, New Mexico ,We wish to express concern over the approval of the F-35A training in the Holloman Air Force Base area.

It is understood that there is necessary training to be conducted to maintain proficiency with pilots operation of aircraft, but after experiencing first-hand the sonic boom noises that are a part of this training and as American citizens we support the efforts of our military to keep America safe. But, it is a frightful thought to envision what some of the possibilities will be regarding the endangerment to humans, livestock, wildlife, and property damage. The last major boom in our area was approximately 4-6 weeks ago and I happened to be standing on the porch. I was so loud I jumped as did the horses in the pasture by the barn. They took off in all directions, as you know animals rely on flight before fight instincts, and luckily did not run into a barbed wire fence or incur any other obstacles. I can foresee though, a herd of elk being startled and running through fences, horses cutting themselves severely on fences and obtrusions; and even more frightful is the possibility of elderly people outside that the sudden sound and shock could literally cause a heart attack or other problems. NO-15 BI-5 NO-6

We questions the reliability of the Air Force being responsible and accountable for the possible damages that will most certainly occur if this area is to be an area of non-restricted sonic booms and fly-over missions. The government has already evoked their power of eminent domain to take thousands of ranching acres in the Alamogordo area all the way to Interstate 25 to Carrizozo. Why can't the government use the area they have already destroyed and use it for their testing? Show some respect for the citizens who support and depend on your expertise. Please be sensible about this matter and people's legitimate concerns before making a decision that cannot be recanted unless tragedies occur. NO-17 DO-4 to the F-35's. Having been in the Valley on September 11th I remember the quiet skies with only the F 16's flying over our homes protecting us. It was a great comfort. GE-3

Most sincerely,

Comments: Our community should show over-whelming support to this effort. My past experience (23yrs US Army) is that US, allies, + enemy lives are saved by US technology, intelligence, and air superiority. This is due to more accurate information, more efficient use of resources, and more effective (efficient) combat operations. Civilians are less prone to injury or death. It may be odd to think of advanced combat weapons, training, or operations saving lives, but it does! Look at forecast and actual combat related casualties over the past 20 years. It's truely amazing! GE-3
I believe the environmental impact for this project to be minimal, espicially when factoring in how many lives are saved and how much more efficient (cost savings) advanced technology and training results.

Comments: Arizona has uncrowded skies, fantastic weather - areas with little or no population - so it is one of the very best areas for our Air Force to train in.
We have a very long history of training pilots in Arizona - since prior to WWII. The large majority of the population is very patriotic and considers jet noise as the sound of freedom. GE-3

F-35A Public Hearing Comment Form

Sandy Olson Scariano

I decided to address you this evening from the heart. I hope the City of Tucson, the Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce and the DM 50 have provided you with necessary facts, figures and analysis. I came to this public hearing this evening to register my full support for the F-35A training facility to be located in Tucson, Arizona, at the Air Guard location within TIA; in tandem with Luke Air Force Base near Phoenix, Arizona. From my point of view, there is no better location. GE-3

I am a local kid and I take the liberty this evening to address this panel on behalf of all local kids who grew up in Tucson and have lived all our lives with Davis-Monthan AFB and TIA. I had the honor to work with the original Tucson community committee in 1990 when a serious round of American air base closures threatened DM. We fought like wildcats to keep DM as part of our family. DM, the Air Guard, TIA, Hughes aircraft – will always be part of our southern arizona family. Just like The University of Arizona and every Arizona wildcat.

We have respect and passion for the Air Force mission in the Tucson valley. We have the best location in the United States. We must be doing something right if you consider Operation Snowbird. Allied military pilots from all corners come to our Air Guard facility to train during the winter. I thank God for the weather this week. Tucson is a hot location during the winter. And our air quality: There is absolutely no contest between Tucson and the Phoenix valley. One can actually breathe in Tucson.

Many in our community are scared and opposed to the noise that will accompany the F-35's. The worst noise over Tucson happened on the afternoon of 9-11. There was no sound coming from the sky and the silence, to me, was actually deafening. I knew there was no one in uniform, flying jets, watching over those of us on the ground running around in our jeans, shorts and tee shirts. Possibly the folks who are afraid of the noise have purchased homes in either DM's or the Air Guard's known flight patterns; is this any different than living in a known flood plain on the banks of the Rillito, CDO or Santa Cruz. And some folks still say DM is a 'bad neighbor'. Like the black bears and mountain lions in the Catalinas, civil and military operations, in Tucson, began in 1919. DM and TIA were located in the Santa Cruz valley long before Tucson's population was even 100,000. Many people forget the crowds that enter DM in the early spring for Aero Space Days: Must be okay to watch the Thunderbirds and sometimes the Blue Angels for an hour once a year. Many people have no idea Tucson was ringed by Titan missiles in the 1960's and DM was a SAC base. If we were good enough for the Titans and Soviet missiles pointed in our direction we are good enough for the F-35s. GE-3

I am confident the true local kids and many who have joined our community, whether in Tucson, South Tucson, Oro Valley, Marana, Vail and Green Valley do have one thing in common -- We ride for the Brand: The United States of America and our military.

Comments: Issues of concern are: health effects of noise and london jets; noise levels and the fact that noise at such high dB levels can not be mitigated. Safety issues: the fact that single engine jets are inherently less safe than dual engine jets and that crashes have occured in the past killing Tucsons citizens. Use of averages DNL is inappropriate + mis leading. In development so experimental Live ordinance can't be handled at TIA so the fear is that these very loud jets will be flying in and out of DM. Comments: As a former F100 Pilot, I have flown in & out of Luke (training 1964), Nellis (last assign), DM, and Tucson International, and on "Goldwater Range". I favor having the F35 here. It has safer ingress & emergency egress from the range. Having lived many years on F100 bases around the world the noise is not an issue to me. Airplane safety is incredibly safer than when I flew. We wish Congress would make more F35. GE-3

At Nellies in 1968-69 I brought emergency planes off the range safely. Tucson has similar safe alleys.

With planning there can be non offense low level flight paths in Arizona. I flew them & they still exist.

Comments:

I live is the flight plan off the Tucson International Airport. I deal with the F16's flying over my property sometimes from 7am To 10pm. It is impossible to carry on a conversation either inside or out no TV because you can't hear it no matter how high the volume is. What will our Quality of life be if the F35's come in with twice the noise? WHAT effect will this have on our children when the jets fly over the school? I understand that this brings $ into Tucson and the community but not my community. Air Guard here its own. Not local neighborhood people. Don't there a place where the F35 can be parked and that a buffer is created around the air base where people can't live? — NO-8, NO-1, EJ-2, LU-1, LU-1 cont'd

Comments: I UNDERSTAND MOST OBJECTIONS TO the F-35 being BASED IN TUCSON REVOLVE AROUND ENGINE NOISE LEVELS. I ALSO UNDERSTAND the FLIGHT PATH FOR LAUNCHING AIRCRAFT WOULD be POINTING WEST-SOUTHWEST, AND THERE ARE VERY FEW RESIDENCES or BUSINESSES UNDER THAT AREA.
FEW people IN TUCSON HAVE ACTUALLY HEARD AN F-35 UNDER OPERATING CONDITIONS SUCH AS THE PROPOSED.
BECAUSE FEW people WOULD be IMPACTED by LAUNCHING AIRCRAFT I DON'T SEE WHY the REST of the COMMUNITY HAS A REASON to KICK ABOUT NOISE LEVELS THAT they HAVE NEVER HEARD ANYWAY. GE-3

Subject: Draft F-35 EIS and basing at Tucson

To Whom it May Concern:

I am writing to express my support for basing of the F-35 fighter at Tucson International Airport. In the following paragraphs, I will outline my rationale for why I consider Tucson to be the premier location for training new pilots in the JSF.

Tucson enjoys exceptional year-round flying weather, which allows for the Air Guard here to fly and train when many other locations are grounded due to inclement conditions. Our air traffic here is much lower than our neighbors to the northwest in Phoenix, as is the urban encroachment underneath the flight paths that the F-35 would use to depart from and return to Tucson.

The airspace here is second-to-none anywhere else in the United States for training F-35 pilots. The Barry M Goldwater ranges offer world-class tactical and manned ranges, as well as large swaths of airspace within which to conduct air-to-air training as well.

The Air Guard's facilities at the Tucson Airport are already geared for fighter operations and training fighter pilots. Most of the infrastructure is already in place, requiring a minimal amount of additional expenditures to bring in the F-35 here to fly.

A small but vocal minority of people have raised concerns about bringing the F-35 to Tucson. I will emphasize that they do not represent the majority of people in this community that support our military and recognize how important our armed forces are to us here in Tucson. I feel that the opposition's talking point about aircraft noise can be addressed and mitigated through modifying approach and departure corridors, raising traffic pattern altitudes, and minimizing afterburner takeoffs. GE-3

The Arizona Air Guard enjoys the support of a majority of the local community. The Air Guard has been a part of this community for decades, both supporting and being borne out of the local population. Unlike their Active Duty brethren, the Air Guard's members most often hail from the local area.

The EIS goes a lot into the costs and the logistical side of basing the JSF at the candidate locations, but there is also an intangible advantage that Tucson has over all of the others. The Air Guard here has been in the business of training fighter pilots for dozens of partner nations, and sets the standard for international training that other bases cannot begin to compete with. There are vast amounts of experience within the personnel at the Arizona Air Guard in training new fighter pilots, by far the most of any of your candidate bases. To ignore this metric would be doing our country a disservice, especially in today's shrinking budgets and military strength. We must call upon our most experienced and most capable airmen as the military increasingly has to do more with less. It's a proven fact that the Air Guard is a more cost-effective force per sortie flown and dollar spent. Combine that with the flying weather, facilities, and the most experienced airmen money can buy, and I would argue that Tucson should be at the very top of your list for basing the F-35. GE-3 cont'd

Sincerely,

Charles Ferguson

Comments: I am proud to call Tucson home, but our city can not afford not to back the F-35! The majority of Tucson supports both the airbase and the use of Tucson Int Airports for the F-35. Do not allow a small number of people to stand in the way of a great partnership with USAF. Our city needs growth and the addition of the F-35 would provide that. Not only do I support the F-35 move to Tucson I also support DMAFB growth. The airport would provide the needed space and no put any burden on the base airstrips. A WIN WIN situation. GE-3

Comments: I would support the training base here in Tucson. It gives me a feeling of comfort to know that the Air Force is training to defend our country. It seems a small cost to continue training. Comments: WE hope that TUCSON is chosen for the F-35A TRAINING BASING. I'm sorry I won't be able to stay long enough to make a public statement but I wanted to come tonight to record my approval of this program. It will be good for TUCSON and the entire area safety-wise and financially. Please don't decide based on the few that are against the program – their not the majority and we hope you realize it. There are one million+ of us – most don't come to these meetings or make their feelings heard – they are "for" it, or don't see any problem with it. We need our military and should all be supportive. This is important! Thank you! GE-3

Comment on the draft EIS for F-35 Fielding in Tucson

From: PAUL I JEHLE [redacted]
Sent: Mon 1/30/12 1:35 PM
To: aetc.a7cp.inbox@us.af.mil

David Martin and Kim Fornof:

I am against bringing 72 new F-35 Joint Strike Fighters to Tucson for training. They are appreciably noisier than the F-16s that are already a nuisance. What is probably worse, they will be more numerous and be in addition to the F-16s already based here with the Arizona National Guard. I live near Gate's Pass, near the main incoming/landing flight path for all planes landing at Tucson International Airport. Recently I've been pleased to note that some of the newer passenger airliners are becoming quite quiet; they almost whisper in. Some of the older, red airliners, Southwest (?) are pretty (ugly) noisy. The F-16s, especially when they need a little more power to adjust their landing approach, are the worst noise makers. The good part of the guard's F-16s is that they don't fly all the time, there are nice fairly quiet spells, from them and the airliners. If the Air Force starts training with up to 72 F-16s, they are going to fill in much of the quiet respites we get in the Gate's Pass area with yet noisier planes. GE-4 NO-1

The Tucson Mountains are treasured because of their natural peace and beauty. Now, today, they are disturbed enough with the present air traffic. A lot more aircraft noise would degrade the nature experience here much more. There are a lot of people who enjoy Saguaro National Park West, Tucson Mountain Park, and the Sonoran Desert Museum (all in the Tucson mountains); all in addition to all the people who live in the foothills of the Tucson Mountains because they enjoy the natural desert with it's peaceful setting. NO-18

Safety is another issue. If all these additional planes are being piloted by people learning how to fly a new, more advanced and more complicated plane, are we safe mixing them with commercial airliners in an international airport? Are the residents of the Gate's Pass area going to be in significantly more danger than they are now? I think Luke AFB would be a safer place for this training, including the pilots themselves and their F-35s. SA-7 AM-2 GE-1

These are my thoughts and feelings about the F-35s coming to Tucson.

-Paul Jehle, Gate's Pass area, Tucson

Comments: As an F-16 Flight Simulator Technician with L-3 LinK Simulation and Training division at the 162nd Fighter Wing Air National Guard - Tucson International Airport, I see first hand every day the importance of student pilot training and the locale and environmental factors that positively affect that training. Southern Arizona is and has been the ideal climatological location for pilot training. These factors lend themselves to provide the student pilot with extended flying time and conditions that enrich the flying and training overall experience. With this and many other positive reasons, T.I.A. / A.N.G. would continue to be a solid choice for the future of the F-35 program. And with that I feel the same as many others here in Tucson do in saying a Resounding "YES" to bringing the F-35 here. GE-3

Comments: GIVEN THE LIMITED AMOUNT OF DATA GATHERED SO FAR OF THE IMPACT OF THE F-35A JET SHOULD NOT BE CONSIDERED FOR THE TUCSON AREA. I HAVE SPENT THE MAJORITY OF MY LIFE NOT FAR FROM THE AIR FORCE BASE IN TUCSON AND FIND THE CURRENT NOISE LARGELY ANNOYING AND EVEN IRRITATING. WHILE I SUPPORT ECONOMIC STIMULI TO THE AREA, FLYING MORE FREQUENTLY OVER THE URBAN AREA WILL HAVE A DIRECT NEGATIVE IMPACT ON BUSINESSES AND RESIDENTS. MOVE THE F35A TO LUKE AIR FORCE BASE AND KEEP THE PLANE OUT OF THE TUCSON AREA. PLEASE DO NOT BRING THE F35A TO TUCSON, IT WILL HAVE DIRECT NEGATIVE →

Comments: I live South of Broadway. I already cannot enjoy my backyard, because of the Air Force planes that fly over and make ~~Continuous~~ continuous circles. The planes frighten my pet, as well. Please consider the quality of life for the residents of Tucson, who have to put up with these loud planes. Also our property values go down, and our health issues (I have a hearing impairment, and I still am greatly bothered and stressed by the jets flying over my home.) Please, please find another place to fly these jets that will not ruin our community. I went to the meetings over the past years, please make this go away!

Comments: Table B-1 does not include the F35. This information is most relevant and should be prominent, not missing, from such a thick document. Table TU 3.2-5 says the F35 at 1,000 feet. I believe OSHA only allows 4 seconds at this dB level - this should be included in the EIS. The DEIS seems not to mention that TIA lacks the ability to local like ~~the~~ ordinance. One fear is that the F35 will "sneak" into DNL ~~will~~ much as operation Snow Bird tornadoes, Hawkeyes, F16 and F18's have "snuck" in to DNL, all with no EIS. Also the high noise zones should extend much further to the northwest along the flight path and should be based on actual noise measurements. Property values effects should be better quantified - May articles quantify this. Health effects are mentioned in the DEIS but are unclear. This is not comfortity and should be better explained.

Comments:

I used to live in the flight path of DMAFB and experienced a great deal of interruptions and stress from the jet noise from A-10s, the so-called "quiet jets." I know that the high noise level of the F35s would severely impact residents, businesses, students, and visitors to our community. The flight path for the F35s would take these planes over densely populated areas and the EIS tells us how much increased decibels will result. This is an unacceptable noise impact. Tucson is an inappropriate location for the F35A training base. Please choose a better site. — SO-18, EJ-2, NO-1, GE-4

Comments: I support the F-35 flight in Tucson. I think it is important to develope new technology for our Nation's defense and believe the F-35 meets that need. Arizona has the weather and air space required for training. DMAFB and the Air National Guard are important components to Tucson's economy and future and the F-35 is needed by both DMAFB and the ANG. I do not consider the additional noise to be a deterent to moving forward with the F-35 GE-3

The Aerospace industry and military defense INDUSTRY has A large economic impact to our community to the tune of ~~hundreds~~ of billions of dollars. We Need to Keep this going ON AN upward trend.

Tucson has lost too many opportunities for economic growth by SAYING NO. IN the mid 1970's Motorola came to Tucson looking for A home for A New MANUFACTURING PLANT. After A few meetings they decided to take their business to Chandler, Az where they were made to feel welcome. Now they ARE A multi billion dollar company generating high paying jobs. ~~Need~~ We can now say we should have welcomed Motorola - We have A great training Area for the pilots AND we AS A Community Need to SAY yes to keep the jobs AND economic benefit here. Comments: As a resident of Tucson beginning in 1983 I feel I have had the privilege of seeing many important changes in this great city. I would like to register my strong support for the F-35 in Tucson. I feel the benefits provided by acquiring this future aircraft to this town would be another positive change. The Air National Guard base is an integral and important part of the community. It provides both jobs and positive economic benefit. I appreciate the work done by the city to mitigate the noise impact immediately around the airport and fully support the Tucson Airport Authority's effort to develop an aviation corridor south of the airport. I believe that the F-35 can be integrated successfully into our community to provide the positive economic impact we need while mitigating the noise concerns. GE-3 GE-3 cont'd

Comments: As a student of the University of Arizona I have a lot of work on my plate as it is, this creates a certain amount of stress. With the addition of the considerable noise that the F-35's will produce, far greater than any jets in the sky now, my health will be affected negatively. I'm proud of the quality of life that we live with here in Southern Arizona and I believe that this metropolitan area isn't the best location for the F-35. If the F-35 must begin to be tested, I wish that the Air Force consider one of the other three locations that are proposed. Also, I believe that the EIS doesn't consider the actual flight paths that may occur in Tucson and the impact may be different than what is predicted currently.

Comments: I want to hear these jets fly over before the final public response. NO-7

The original published data stated that the decibel level for the F-35A was 22 decibels louder than the F-16c upon landing and without explaination it was later stated that the decibel level was only 9 decibels not 22 decibels louder that the F-16c — what was done to reduce the decibel level? NO-21

I am concerned about the effect, the increased impact of the force and noise the F-35A ~~Was~~ will have upon our environment, our infants, small children, our pets and upon all of Gods creatures that dwell in the natural landscape. EJ-2 BI-5

We don't need a scientest or impact report to inform us of what effect the increased noise and force will have upon the most vulnerable and sensitive of Gods creatures. EJ-2 BI-5 cont'd

Comments: I SUPPORT THE BASING OF THE F-35 AT TUCSON AIR GUARD STATION.

TUCSON ENJOYS EXCEPTIONAL YEAR-ROUND FLYING WEATHER, WHICH ALLOWS THE AIR GUARD HERE TO FLY AND TRAIN WHEN MANY OTHER LOCATIONS ARE GROUNDED DUE TO INCLEMENT CONDITIONS. OUR AIR TRAFFIC HERE IS MUCH LOWER THAN OUR NEIGHBORS TO THE NORTHWEST IN PHOENIX, AS IS THE URBAN ENCROACHMENT UNDERNEATH THE FLIGHT PATHS THAT THE F-35 WOULD USE TO DEPART FROM AND RETURN TO TUCSON. GE-3

A SMALL BUT VOCAL MINORITY OF PEOPLE HAVE RAISED CONCERNS ABOUT BRINGING THE F-35 TO TUCSON. I WILL EMPHASIZE THAT THEY ~~DO~~ DO NOT REPRESENT THE MAJORITY OF PEOPLE →

... IN THIS COMMUNITY THAT SUPPORT OUR MILITARY AND THE POSSIBILITY OF BRINGING THE F-35 TO TUCSON. I FEEL THAT THE "OPPOSITION'S" TALKING POINT ABOUT AIRCRAFT NOISE CAN (AND WILL) BE ADDRESSED AND MITIGATED THROUGH MODIFYING APPROACH AND DEPARTURE CORRIDORS, RAISING TRAFFIC PATTERN ALTITUDES, AND MINIMIZING AFTERBURNER TAKEOFFS. NO-20

I ALSO DISAGREE WITH THE ASSERTION THAT THIS AIRCRAFT IS THE NOISIEST AIRCRAFT TO FLY OUT OF TUCSON. THE OLDER CENTURY-SERIES FIGHTERS (F100, F106, ETC.) WERE QUITE LOUD, AS WERE THE F-4'S THAT FLEW OUT OF DAVIS-MONTHAN. NO-32

IN CLOSING, I WILL ALSO ADD THAT THE UNMATCHED EXPERIENCE AND LOWER COST PER FLYING HOUR THAT THE AIR GUARD PROVIDES SHOULD NOT BE OVERLOOKED.

Dear Mr. Martin,

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the Environment Impact Statement for the proposed F-35A Pilot Training Center at the Tucson Air Guard Station at Tucson, Arizona.

As a homeowner approximately a mile or two from Davis-Monthan AFB, I, too, am concerned about the impact the noise this aircraft will have on the environment in my area. Having recently reviewed the Tucson Airport Authority (TAA) guidelines for noise abatement, http://www.flytucsonairport.com/tucson-airport-authority/about-taa/noise-and-environment-programs/noise/

I discovered that the residents in the vicinity of the Tucson International Airport (TIA) are somewhat protected through a Residential Sound Insulation Program. This Authority clearly recognize how detrimental the noise can be to ones health with the remarks that the Air National Guard F-16 is one of the noisiest aircraft using TIA, as explained on its web page. These same aircraft must upload ordnance at Davis-Monthan and I cannot help but be concerned about health and property values if the F-35 follows that same pattern. Unfortunately, there is no Residential Sound Insulation Program for those of us in the vicinity of Davis-Monthan AFB.

NO-35

I thank you for your time, Mr. Martin. I can only pray that you give favorable consideration to my comments.

Sincerely,

/s/ Al Richardson

I live with my family in the new NSFRU if the F-35A comes to Gowen Field. Please do not destroy our enjoyment of living with these aircraft. Remember that the new NSFRU would include nearly 7000 acres of Boise which would adversely affect over 10,000 residents and the new NSFRU would swallow up 4 schools, 2 parks and 13 day care centers. SO-1

To Whom it May Concern

As a full time Tucson resident, I believe the new jets would create too much noise for our residential areas. In this day and age, all revenue producing ventures should be looked at, but I feel the noise and pollution created would not be worth the revenue generated. The jets should be tested in a more remote area where fewer people will be negatively impacted. NO-1 GE-1

Dear David + Kim,

Carolyn + I live in Sun City West and have lived in the area for 30 years. We have visited Luke a number of times for various occasions and tours and the hospitality and friendliness of the staff and service personnel, makes you want to return. The restaurant food is excellent.

So, a few noisy jets are worth all this, not to mention the vast effect on our economy.

We look forward to the F-35A era.

Very truly yours,

Carolyn + Walt

Comments: Dear Sir, My house is about 2.5 miles north of Luke Base. My house is in 70 db noise level according to noise contours, but the noise you can feel is LOT Louder than 70 db. These days most of the times the Jets fly low and when they fly low my whole house shake with vibrations. My house is new built in 2007 already got lots of cracks because of vibration caused by Luke base Jets. I heard F35 will be 5-10 db loudes. Sir Please we donot want any more pain. & do not wants F-35 on Luke base.

Comments: I strongly support the establishment of the F-35 training program in Tucson. The economic benefit to Southern Arizona will be substantial. Given the current positive environment and support for Davis Monthan it makes Tucson an ideal location for support and acceptance. To Have the opportunity to hear the engines roar in our skies will be a constant reminder of the need for a well armed and trained military to defend our freedoms. Southern Arizona has the ideal climate, land, airspace, ranges and facilities necessary to train pilots on the F-35. Since 1956 the 162nd has had unwavering community support in Tucson. The citizen pilots have built a world premiere fighter training unit. This vital mission is of tremendous value to national defense, the state of Arizona and the Southern Arizona community. GE-3

HEALTH, SAFETY AND ENVIRONMENTAL CONCERNS:

Utilizing completely new technology, with no history of safety records, would endanger the safety of residents, especially when pilots (many foreign) would undergo training in single-engine, single-piloted aircraft with live ordnance, and could fly off course. Proximity to civil air traffic would increase air crash risks. SA-4

Re: Luke AFB F-35

Dear Mr. Martin

We live directly under the flight path the F-16s use to approach AUX 1.We accepted the situation when purchasing our homes. However, a potentially much higher noise volume is very disturbing. Clean air and noise pollution are major factors in a good quality of life. We fear that the increased noise levels of the new F-35s will degrade our living conditions and severely affect our property values. NO-1 NO-36 SO-1

It does appear that many of those who support the F-35s coming Luke AFB are doing so for personal reasons, like the use of the commissary. It also appears that most supporters at the informational meetings are more elderly and may feel guilty if they do not support this jet coming to Luke. Or they may have been scared by all the politicians talk of defending the country or the economic impact of losing those federal dollars. Most are probably unaware that many squadrons training above us are not even Americans.

Our strong belief is that the F-35s should be in an area far away from school, hospitals, shopping centers and homes. A training accident will happen some day again as they have in the past. It should be in an unpopulated area. Bringing the F-35 with it's greatly increased noise level to a metropolitan are like Phoenix will only serve to detract from the pleasant lifestyle Phoenix is known for and be an obstacle for individuals and companies looking to live and invest here. GE-1 SA-1 SO-1 SO-18

We strongly urge that a more remote location be found for the F-35 Joint Strike Fighter. In the long run it will be better for the greater metropolitan Phoenix area. GE-1

Sincerely.
